GERMANY AIMS TO CRUSH 'FOE,' HERRIOT INSISTS

Bares French Belief for Arms Demand.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GRAMAT, France, Sept. 25.—Premier Edouard Herriot today declared that military technicians of the highest qualifications insist that Germany is seeking "to organize a very powerful modern army, not only for national defense, but also for aggression—an army with sufficient strength to defeat with one thrust the designated adversary."

The premier, who spoke at a banquet spread before 3,000 residents of this town in southwestern France, did not name the "adversary."

Recalls Prussia's History.

Outlining the French conception of disarmament with security, Herriot said that the opinion of the military experts brought to his mind memories from the past century. He then put this question to his audience:

"Like Prussia before the Franco-Prussian war, is not Germany trying to organize an army, even a double army, with the intention of striking at the heart of a people for whom national defense is only one of a citizen's duties?"

Herriot's statement was the strongest France has uttered since Germany made her demand for arms equality. It is recalled that the premier a few days ago said he was studying the expediency of presenting the disarmament conference with reports on alleged secret German armaments and that the French government was considering a plan to ask for an international investigation into Germany's armaments.

Training of Youth Disturbing.

"It is actually rearmament that Germany wants," Herriot continued. "There is plenty of proof for that, both direct and indirect. Germany plainly announces what she wants, but what is more disturbing is the German ordinance of Sept. 13 establishing the training of youth in such a fashion as to prepare them to carry arms.

"What a mistake it is to speak of material disarmament if we are to arouse and irritate youthful minds, to which present day industrial civilization can furnish quickly a means for destruction of human life. France, which has often been calumnied, always has directed the education of her youth in other channels."

Herriot declared that Europe must establish a security pact with military and other sanctions before any substantial disarmament can be accomplished.

Peace by Statute.

"We must establish a peace by statute which associates under the same régime of equality all nations of Europe and which, of course, fully guarantees to Germany entire tranquility," he said. "I understand that eminent members of the assembly of the league of nations are at present studying a program which would proportion disarmament to security."

Herriot said further that only when the league is ready to employ "every and all means to defend a violated nation" can the peoples proceed to reduce armaments.

Herriot's plugging for security in a tone heretofore credited only to such hard boiled Nationalists as Raymond Poincare, former president, and Andre Tardieu, former premier, is viewed with disappointment in American diplomatic circles in Geneva, Paris, and other capitals, it is learned. It is considered that the premier's address will put difficulties in the way of American plans for substantial arms reductions.

Speech Angers Germans.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Premier Herriot's discussion of German armament in a speech in France today was attacked by a government spokesman as containing "such a lot of monstrosities" that it "cannot be accepted without reply."

The general feeling in Berlin was that the French premier's statements were contrary to facts. It was denied in behalf of the government that Germany was seeking to increase its armaments.

"Germany would accept and welcome any disarmament measure or prohibition of any weapon," the spokesman said.

FOUR KILLED AS AIRPLANES LOCK WINGS AND FALL

Whittier, Cal., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Four persons were killed when two airplanes locked wings and crashed on Beverly boulevard, near Pico, late today.

The ships were circling above the Los Angeles Eastside airport at an altitude of about 300 feet when the wings interlocked.

The passengers of one plane were identified as James E. Hill, 31, of Los Angeles, and Rollo G. Cadien, 25. In the other ship were James L. Wisner, 33, Los Angeles, and a woman about 28 years old whose identity was not established.

The crash, near the intersection of San Gabriel street with Beverly boulevard, was witnessed by a score of motorists.

Two Killed in Wyoming.

Evanston, Wyo., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Henry Halkjan, 26, and Charles McCuaig, 22, were killed by the crash of Halkjan's airplane after the motor stalled here late today.

PLUMP AND WHITE EGGS WIN FALL FASHION FAVOR

The fall style in eggs calls for plumpness and whiteness, according to observations made yesterday at the poultry, butter and egg men's convention at the Hotel Sherman. This new fashion comes from the west coast.

"All eggs this year should be uniformly white and their yolks only a pale yellow," said L. B. Kilbourne, president of the Egg Men's association. "The deep hued shells and yolks present not half so attractive an appearance and are definitely out."

The convention agreed that the poultry and egg business has experienced two difficult years but also agreed that considerable improvement has been felt. It was predicted at the meeting that the prices of turkeys and capons for Thanksgiving and Christmas will be the lowest in years. This will be due not so much to a large supply as to an expected short demand, it was said.

ADMIRAL PRINGLE DIES IN HOSPITAL IN CALIFORNIA

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Vice Admiral Joel R. P. Pringle, 59, died at the Naval hospital here at 10:40 o'clock tonight. The admiral was taken suddenly ill during maneuvers off the Washington state coast several days ago and was rushed here by ship for treatment. He was said to have been suffering from anemia.

Admiral Pringle, who had commanded the battleship division of the battle force, replaced Vice Admiral Luke McNamee in August. At one time Admiral Pringle was president of the war college at Newport, R. I.

Kidnap Drys in Gun Battle; Hi-Jack Rum

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Machine gunners, kidnapers, hi-jackers, rum runners, dry agents, policemen, racing trucks, a mysterious white yacht, a $250,000 seaside mansion, and $18,000 worth of choice imported liquors—all these figured in a series of swiftly moving incidents near here today.

Prohibition agents raided the Spanish mansion on Plum point owned by Philipo Beereda, son of the late Robert Beereda, once a diplomatic envoy from Peru to the United States. In the course of a search which covered all the 25 rooms, they seized 153 cases of beverages of 16 varieties. George Stenett and his brother, Dorsey, who said they were caretakers, were arrested.

Reinforcements Arrive.

More agents were summoned from Marlboro. They brought a truck into which the liquor was loaded. Then with five agents in a touring car riding in front as an armed escort the motorcade set out for the county seat.

About six miles from the mansion a gang of a dozen or more hi-jackers, armed with machine guns, rifles, and revolvers, attacked them, according to the agents. Two of the agents escaped and raced to the nearest telephone. The hi-jackers held the other six as hostages and took over the truck.

The agents who had escaped telephoned State Police Sergeant Hunt, who in turn telephoned Baltimore dry headquarters. Twenty armed agents drove out from Baltimore, joined Hunt and sped to the scene of the hi-jacking.

Hi-Jackers, Agents in Battle.

Near Prince Frederick the rescuers encountered the truck, the hi-jackers, and kidnaped agents. The hi-jackers fled to cover in the woods and began firing on the agents with their machine guns and other weapons. Police and dry agents returned the fire with revolvers and riot guns. So far as can be learned none was injured.

In their battle with the hidden hi-jackers the agents were drawn some little distance from the truck. When they returned to it they found that it had been overturned and the liquor was missing. Eventually the contraband was found in the house of a Negro living near the road and who told officers the hi-jackers had threatened to kill him if he did not permit them to hide the liquor there.

Claim Big Ring Smashed.

Dry agents declare they have broken up a big liquor smuggling ring which dealt in the choicest of stock and had many wealthy customers in Washington, Baltimore, New York and other cities.

Presence of a white yacht which cruised in and out of the inlets near the mouth of the Patuxent and reports of motor trucks speeding over the byroads near the Beereda mansion first aroused the suspicions of the agents.

Last night the agents waylaid what appeared to be an innocent furniture van. They found 210 cases of liquor in it. Joseph Rushin and Arthur Dorress, both of Baltimore, were arrested. It was after this seizure that the agents staged the raid on the Beereda estate.

GANDHI TO END HIS DEATH FAST; PLAN ACCEPTED

British Officials to Urge Adoption.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(Monday.)—(AP)—The India office announced this morning it would recommend to parliament the adoption of the agreement reached by Hindu leaders last week intended to end the death fast of Mahatma Gandhi.

BULLETIN.

POONA, India, Sept. 26.—(Monday.)—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, revived from a sinking condition today by news that the British government had accepted the compromise plan on electoral representation for India's untouchable classes, began preparations shortly after noon to end his six day death fast of protest.

POONA, India, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi warned the people of India today he would suspend his "fast unto death" only if the compromise electoral plan, accepted by untouchables and caste Hindus, is approved by Prime Minister MacDonald.

His voice was barely audible as he neared the end of his fifth day without food. A physician who examined the 62 year old Nationalist said he would be unable to recover unless he took food soon.

"If my fast is broken by virtue of the cabinet's decision, it will be but a suspension," he said. "Sure as fate, I shall take my vow again if the part to be played by caste Hindus is not well played in the coming months."

Lies on Enameled Bed.

Gandhi lay on an enameled bed under a mango tree in the compound of Yeravda jail.

The compromise plan, hastily effected yesterday in an effort to end Gandhi's hunger strike in protest against the separate electorates set up for India's untouchables, was cabled to Prime Minister MacDonald. The British prime minister previously had said if the Indians themselves arrived at a compromise, their wishes would be respected.

If the prime minister accepted terms of the agreement in toto, the mahatma said he would be bound to break his fast. But he added, in making the threat to renew the fast, that if he was capable of delivering an ultimatum to the government, he was also capable of presenting one to his own people.

"But the tremendous awakening of the country in the last five days fills me with the hope that orthodoxy will surpass itself and rid Hinduism of this canker of untouchability, which is eating its vitals," the 62 year old Nationalist declared.

Cannot Last Much Longer.

A physician who examined the mahatma this morning said:

"I am satisfied his condition is as it ought to be, but he cannot last much longer without food and keep sufficient strength for recovery."

Gandhi received Miss Ellen Wilkinson, who is touring India in behalf of the India league.

He asked her to send a message to the league stating that it is now up to the British cabinet summarily to reject the settlement if it felt it is not "the true voice" of the people. On the other hand, he said, if it is convinced the settlement is genuine, "with God as witness," it should do its utmost to make the compromise effective.

Plans in British Hands.

The mahatma said his future personal plans were in the hands of the government.

His hearing was excellent and his eyes still keen as he concentrated on his subject, but he needed prompting to commence and it was necessary for listeners to lean forward to hear him.

The watchers at Gandhi's bedside in the jail yard were busy tonight because the yarn which the emaciated little man insisted on trying to spin kept breaking with the turns of the wheel. Try as he could, the thread would part and his strength was no longer adequate to repair it, so his disciples did it for him, patiently, unobtrusively, again and again.

Gandhi's ration of salt in water was considerably reduced tonight, but he took pinches of soda as he drank frequently. The little leader noted with keen interest the expert craft of an attendant who massaged him to stimulate the circulation of blood, but the masseur was no longer able to produce the fresh appearance that he had Saturday after the tiresome negotiations.

There was a touching scene when

Judge Quizzes Bomb Suspect in Police Cell

Superior Judge John P. McGoorty visited the Chicago Lawn police station yesterday to talk to a prisoner, William McDaniels. It was an unusual situation because McDaniels is the principal suspect in the bombing of Judge McGoorty's home last Tuesday evening, a bombing that blinded a boy and disfigured a girl, and the jurist was appearing as a private citizen who has been wronged and who wanted to know why and by whom.

"There is something about you that is familiar to me," Judge McGoorty told McDaniels. "I have a vague recollection of you in some manner and I want you to tell me where and under what circumstances we have met before."

Prisoner Denies Meeting.

A sullen denial was the response from the prisoner.

As the two sat facing each other, the white haired judge was searching his own memory. He is 66 years old, the father of eight children, and a highly respected citizen. The prisoner, who is 59 years old, has dyed his hair brown. He is admittedly a bootlegger, who served at least one sentence, and who had 13½ sticks of dyamite in his possession when arrested. He knows how to make a bomb, and he has been identified by two people as a man they had seen for three successive nights seated in an automobile less than two blocks from Judge McGoorty's home at 929 East 45th street, the last time being five minutes before the bomb was thrown.

"I know something about you and you know something about me; please tell me?" Judge McGoorty persisted.

Recalls Old Memories.

He was reviewing in memory the many years of his public career, his four terms in the state legislature, the years since 1911 during which he has been a judge in Circuit, Superior, and Criminal courts.

Where had his path crossed that of the 59 year old hoodlum and what grievance could McDaniels have had, if any, the judge wanted to know.

"Why were you waiting on my street for three nights?" the judge asked.

"Aw, I was never there?" McDaniels asserted.

Q.—Where did you ever see me before? A.—I never did.

Q.—Were you ever in my court?" A.—I was only in court once as a witness in a murder case and I wasn't called.

Q.—Who was the judge? A.—I don't know.

Finally Judge McGoorty gave up in disgust and went home.

Arrest Two New Suspects.

Meanwhile police last night arrested Max Kraske, 46 years old, of 5744 South Hermitage avenue, for questioning. Earlier in the day they seized Ben Shanks, 30 years old, of 14 South Central avenue. Kraske, a roofer, was taken into custody last July as the "alleged brains" of a supposed plot to extort $50,000 from Jack Durand, foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Durand of Lake Bluff. The case never materialized.

Kraske's arrest followed information given to Deputy Chief of Detectives Walter Storms that he had received $500 at 81st street and South Chicago avenue from another man and had given $100 of that sum to McDaniels. Kraske denied receiving the money.

Shanks, according to the police, was indicted last year for a bombing for which two men were sent to prison.

ONE IS KILLED, MANY WOUNDED AS MINERS FIGHT

Leland Hotel Scene of Battling.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—A detective sergeant was shot and killed and more than twenty other persons were beaten, stabbed or shot in a spectacular clash in a downtown street this evening between armed factions of the United Mine Workers of America and the Progressive Miners' organization. It was the most serious clash to occur in this district since the schism developed over the regular union's acceptance of the $5 wage pact.

So threatening did the situation become that local police called for help from the state police department and the county sheriff's office. These heavy reenforcements finally quelled the disturbance after using tear gas bombs and threatening to spray the hostiles with machine gun bullets.

Admits Slaying of Policeman.

Twenty-four members of the United Mine Workers' union were arrested and charged with inciting riot. Also a charge of murder was lodged against Garnet H. Smith of Herrin for the killing of the detective sergeant—Porter Williams. Smith, himself in a serious condition from knife wounds, admitted killing Williams, but defended his act as accidental.

Smith's admission and formal booking cleared William J. Sneed of Williamson county, an international representative of the United Mine Workers and a former Illinois state senator, who earlier was accused of the shooting by United States Deputy Marshal J. O. Boules.

The fight this evening occurred in midtown Springfield, outside and inside the Leland hotel, and less than three blocks from the governor's mansion. The hotel is the headquarters for John L. Lewis, international mine union president, and of other officers.

Clash Follows Meeting.

The stage was set earlier at the Knights of Columbus hall at 6th and Edwards streets, a short distance away, when about 100 miners of Sangamon county gathered there in response to a call by Sneed and other regular mine agents.

The purpose of the gathering was to obtain support for the $5 wage pact and to reopen the closed Sangamon county mines. Among the speakers besides Sneed were Nicholas Fortaccio, international organizer; Lawrence Dwyel of Pineville, Ky.; Edward O'Donnell of Hazleton, Pa.; John Conque of the Ohio organization, and Bozo Damich and John Grecula, both of Pittsburgh.

From the point of attendance the meeting was a failure, and the reason for this was a large crowd of pickets, members of the progressive faction—who are holding out for a $6.10 wage scale, which had gathered outside the hall. The pickets persuaded many miners from entering; no forcible restraint was used. Shortly before 6 o'clock the meeting inside broke up.

Pickets Heckle "Regulars."

As the small crowd of regular union organizers and audience stepped into the street they were jeered by the pickets, whose strength by that time had reached about 1,000. Many of the progressives carried banners bearing derisive legends. Leaders of the "regulars" ordered a march to the Leland hotel, and the small band started down 6th street to Capitol avenue. Behind them followed the shouting, heckling crowd of pickets.

In front of the Leland hotel one wing of the pickets made a flank movement, cutting off the "regulars" from the hotel entrance. There was a momentary lull, a moment of dramatic tension. A shot rang out—allegedly from among the group of "regulars."

The one shot started hostilities. Almost immediately the pickets closed in on the marchers. Fists flew right and left. Clubs were brought down on unprotected skulls. Knives flashed, and here and there shots were fired.

As the clash occurred Sergt. Williams and Policeman Fred Doerfler, who had been assigned to the hotel to prevent disorder, rushed into the mêlée. They had barely started when the former dropped with a bullet in his back. Doerfler picked him up and hurried him to St. John's hospital. Williams died thirty minutes later without making a statement. It was improbable he knew his slayer.

The fatal shooting failed to halt the fight. Many of the "regular" miners eluded harm by mixing with the pickets. Some of the others stood their ground and managed finally to escape into the hotel lobby.

Hotel employés turned in a riot call and within a few minutes riot squads carrying shotguns and gas bombs were at the scene. Their presence did not immediately check disorder; indeed, several of the policemen were slugged, but none seriously.

Calls were sent to state police headquarters and the sheriff's office, and reënforcements were dispatched from both places. Thirty state patrolmen, some armed with submachine guns, surrounded the hotel. Other officers entered the lobby and drove out both pickets and "regulars." Sporadic fights occurred outside. Gas bombs were finally resorted to, with success.

Injured Given First Aid.

First aid was given to many of the injured on the scene. Half a dozen others were taken to the hospital. Among the more seriously wounded were Smith, Sergt. Williams' confessed slayer, and Dominic Geiromano, a Springfield miner, who was shot in the chest. Former Senator Sneed, himself, was severely slugged and kicked.

The riot had barely been halted when Sneed was taken to police headquarters and questioned regarding the rioting. He denied knowledge of the shooting of Williams, and to outsiders refused to discuss the clash beyond stating "it was regrettable."

At police headquarters, even after Smith had admitted the Williams shooting, Deputy Marshal Boules insisted that his version was correct—that the ex-legislator had shot the policeman. Officials announced that both he and Sneed would probably be summoned for the inquest tomorrow.

Revolver Found in Pocket.

Another witness probably will be Sergt. Bullard Kelley who had questioned Smith at the hospital. Kelley said he had found a revolver, with one cartridge discharged, in Smith's pocket. In view of the developments, Sneed was not held for further questioning.

Police planned to question the other injured men also. Those at the hospital were W. A. Pace of Herrin, brother of A. T. Pace, auditor of the United Mine workers; Bozo Damich, and Edward O'Donnell, also of the mine workers, and Dan McGill, Springfield progressive leader.

Counter charges were being made by both sides, the progressives in particular claiming that the riot was started by the "regulars." Tonight streets were cleared and the situation appeared under control.

15,000 ATTEND PATRIOTIC FETE ON GERMAN DAY

President Sends Message —Gen. Parker Speaks.

German music and patriotic oratory reverberated in the Chicago Stadium yesterday afternoon at the annual German day celebration, in which 15,000 persons honored the poet Goethe, the composer Haydn, Gen Von Steuben, and George Washington, and commemorated the landing of the German pilgrims who founded Germantown, Pa.

Drills by military organizations, pageantry, including "living portraits" of Washington and Von Steuben, singing by a male chorus of 1,000 voices, overtures by Henry Johnk's German Day Symphony orchestra, exhibitions by German turners, salutes to the flags and much hearty community singing of "Deutschland Ueber Alles" and "The Star Spankled Banner" supplemented the vocal tributes to the German immortals.

Von Steuben Trains Patriots.

The principal address was delivered by Maj. Gen. Frank J. Parker, commander of the 6th army corps area, who reviewed the careers of Washington and Von Steuben and discussed their contributions to military science.

"From the spring of 1775 until the arrival of Gen. von Steuben in December, 1777, the discipline, as well as the organization and instruction of the Continental army," he said, "was at a very low ebb. This old Prussian brought to Washington's command an organization, a system of instruction and of discipline that soon turned the confusion of ignorance into the efficiency of organized and disciplined team work.

"The same soldiers who broke at White Plains in 1776 and at Brandywine in 1777 were, in 1781, to storm the ramparts of Yorktown beside the seasoned regulars of Rochambeau with a steadiness equal to that of their French allies.

Aids Washington to Victory.

"Without the German and other military leaders who came to us from the armies of Europe one may well question whether Washington could have succeeded in the task set for him by destiny."

A message from President Hoover read to the gathering said in part: "In the realm of intellect and art the great poet Goethe has influenced the entire civilized world. By a fair exchange our own George Washington has been a tower of inspiration in all lands. It is therefore fitting that the centennial of one and the bicentennial of the other should be jointly commemorated at your exercises."

The lives of Goethe and Haydn were discussed by Julius Klein, vice president of the German Day association, who also paid a tribute to the landing of the pilgrims at Germantown. Capt. George H. Weideling, chairman of the association, presided.

A resolution praising President Hoover's efforts in bringing about the moratorium, hailed as a step toward the world's economic recovery, was adopted.

LACK OF MONEY STOPS DRAINAGE OF ZUYDER ZEE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Sept. 25.—Because of a lack of funds drainage of the Zuyder Zee will be stopped at the end of the year. One marshy tract of 54,340 acres has already been reclaimed and a dike twenty miles across the Zuyder Zee has been completed at a cost of $100,000,000. The rest of the work, which would cost $400,000,000, is considered too much of a burden upon the Dutch treasury.

Watches Police Chase; Killed by Stray Shot

Laventy Tatarchuk, 31 years old, 2126 South Washtenaw avenue, a Checker taxicab driver, was struck in the abdomen and fatally wounded yesterday by a stray bullet as four policemen from the Maxwell street station emptied their pistols at three fleeing burglars, who escaped. Tatarchuk, standing at Wood and Maxwell streets, was watching the chase.

BLAST DAMAGES FLAT BUILDING.

An explosion, supposed to have been caused by the ignition of gas fumes in a basement, caused $1,000 damage last night in a three story flat building at 1118 South Western avenue. The only tenant in the building, Frank Consalino, was not present at the time of the explosion.

SLAYING BLAMED ON WARFARE OVER SLOT MACHINES

Roadhouse Attack Recalls Shooting at Dells.

A struggle for control of the slot machine privilege in the roadhouses of Cook county was seen last night as the cause of an attack early yesterday on the Palais Rue roadhouse, Mannheim road and Lake street, Melrose Park, during which a doorman was killed and scores of shots fired.

The victim was Michael "Blackie" Tamburrino, 27 years old, doorman and parking attendant. He was shot in the back and died in the arms of his bride of four months, Jane, who worked in the roadhouse as a dishwasher. Tamburrino apparently had recognized the hoodlums in an automobile and was fleeing from them when he was shot down.

Recall Shooting at Dells.

County highway police, led by Lieut. James Meyering, who conducted an investigation, recalled a similar shooting mystery at the Dells roadhouse, Morton Grove, three months ago in which two men were shot, one fatally, and one of the assailants wounded. The slot machine war was regarded as the reason for this shooting.

There were no slot machines in the Palais Rue roadhouse and the police theorized that Ralph Carbon, the owner, may have refused to install them. There have been reports that the slot machine gang has been forcing roadhouse owners to install them.

Carbon was questioned but refused to discuss the slot machine theory. He said he knew of no reason why his place should have been attacked.

An automobile containing five men drove up to the roadhouse about 4 o'clock in the morning. Tamburrino saw them and tried to flee. He was shot as the gangsters drove away.

Gunmen Return.

Five minutes later, however, they returned and poured a volley into the walls of the roadhouse, smashing windows and terrorizing the musicians, waiters and other employés who were inside. All the guests had fled after the first shooting.

The slot machine business in the western suburbs has been reported to be in control of Nick De Grazia, former Capone lieutenant, and his three brothers. Many roadhouse keepers were said to have resented the installation of slot machines in their places because they were not given the percentage of profits which were formerly allowed.

FIGHT FOR CHACO FORT RAGES ON; CASUALTIES GROW

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Sept. 25.—(AP)—A government statement tonight said the battle of Fort Boqueron between Bolivian and Paraguayan forces in the Chaco jungle continued and that Paraguayan troops had captured several machine guns and other weapons. It was unofficially added that Bolivian casualties had been heavy.

Deny Loss of Forts.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The army general staff today published a denial of a Paraguayan report that Paraguayan troops had captured Forts Falcon and Rojas Silva.

It was added that Bolivians had repulsed an attack on Fort Tinfuque by the Paraguayan legion, "Macheteros of Death," constituted of men of advanced age which "indicated the desperate efforts of the Paraguayans."

3 STEAL PLANE; KIDNAP GUARD; CRASH; ALL DEAD

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Three adventurers today kidnaped an airport watchman, stole a commercial airplane and apparently attempted to fly to the rebel capital of Sao Paulo, but the coup ended in death for all four. The wreckage of the burned plane was found fifteen miles south of Rio de Janeiro. Witnesses there said the pilot had dived crashly just before the crash, indicating a lack of experience in flying.

Police tonight said they had identified the leader of the ill fated expedition as Walter Voss, 43, a German. They said he had engineered the expedition in the hope of financial profit. Voss and an unidentified companion rowed to the inland airport of the Pan-American Airways sometime during the night. Employés of a coal company nearby heard the watchman quarreling and shouting.

Authorities said they were convinced Voss and his companions had plotted with Jayme Taveira, a Brazilian employé of the Pan-American Airways operations department, who was at the field all night. They surmised the three men had forced the watchman into the ship at pistol point and taken off in the early morning hours. The wrecked plane had been well fueled and apparently made ready for a long journey. The watchman was identified by relatives.

FORM PLANS FOR FEDERAL INSULL INQUIRY TODAY

Green Calls Heads of 4 Investigating Bureaus.

Federal investigation of the collapse of the Insull utilities system will be organized today, under direction of United States Attorney Dwight H. Green.

Mr. Green will meet with the chiefs of four federal bureaus of this district and apportion a task to each. The object of the federal prosecutor is to determine whether any criminal statutes of the United States were violated by Samuel Insull, his brother, Martin, and his son, Samuel Insull Jr., or by any of their associates, in the financing or operation of the two billion dollar Insull companies.

Examine Insull Literature.

Attending Mr. Green's conference will be K. P. Aldrich, chief postoffice inspector; William A. McSwain, chief of the bureau of investigation, department of justice; A. P. Madden, chief of the special intelligence unit, bureau of internal revenue, and C. W. Herrick, chief internal revenue agent.

To Mr. Aldrich will fall the work of scrutinizing the hundreds of pamphlets and brochures issued by the Insull holding and investment companies in the last 18 months, to determine whether the financial status of the companies was misrepresented in violation of postal regulations.

To Mr. Madden and Mr. Herrick will be given the task of determining by study of bank and brokerage records, whether any of the Insull executives profited secretly by market dealings in Insull stocks and failed to list such profits in their income tax returns.

Search for Assets.

Mr. McSwain will be assigned to find out whether any concealment of assets occurred in the bankruptcy of the two big Insull investment trusts —Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities company.

Two transactions, previously uncovered by State's Attorney Swanson's staff in investigating the Insull operations, also will be studied. One of these is the transaction in which Samuel Insull used $168,000 of the funds of the Middle West Utilities company, to protect a margin account of his brother, Martin, in the stock market.

Second is the transaction in which Marshall E. Sampsell, former president of the Illinois Public Service company, borrowed 4,000 shares of the preferred stock of that concern to use as collateral in his margin account, covering the withdrawal with his trust receipts.

Find No Law Violations.

It is doubtful whether either of these transactions comes within the scope of the federal code, however, according to an authority on federal law. Indeed, according to this same authority, it is unlikely that any federal violation will be found, excepting perhaps with reference to postoffice regulations.

Receivers for the insolvent Insull concerns have had opportunity to scrutinize the records of all these concerns for the last six months and, in their reports to Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley, have reported no evidence of criminality in the Insull financing. Similarly, State's Attorney Swanson has announced that to date his investigation has disclosed nothing on which indictments might be based.

Even in the floating of securities of the Insull investment trusts, the assets of which are now proved worthless, Samuel Insull made public statements setting forth that the principal object of the trusts was to protect the Insull domination of the utilities field. If investors in these trusts wished to risk their money to aid Insull in his self-avowed purpose, they should now have no cause for complaint, an attorney connected with the case pointed out.

As an indication of Mr. Insull's frankness in exposing the purpose of the investment trusts, the attorney pointed to Insull's signed statement in a brochure entitled "The Insull Group," issued in October, 1930, a year after Corporation Securities was organized and a few weeks before the corporation floated its series of gold notes.

"The purposes of the two companies are identical," Samuel Insull declared, referring to Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities. "These purposes are to acquire between them and to hold as investments, not the control, but enough of the equity securities of the Insull companies to insure continuity of policy and management throughout the Insull group of properties."

One other significant statement in the brochure was pointed out, to wit: "Both companies [Insull Utility Investment and Corporation Securities] are fundamentally investment companies and not trading concerns."

In view of the amount of borrowing, lending and stock transferring between the Insull corporation and the individuals who controlled them, Samuel Insull must have forgotten the distinction he drew between trading and investment companies before the investment trusts collapsed, the attorney said. He added that it was extremely doubtful whether Mr. Insull's phrase legally could be proved to be misrepresentation.

Fight Banks' Stock Sale.

Attorneys Russell F. Locke and Carroll J. Lord, counsel for Raymond J. McNally, receiver for Corporation Securities, will leave today for New York to represent the receiver in ancillary bankruptcy proceedings before Federal Judge Caffey in the southern district of New York.

The proceeding is a hearing on the petition of the receiver for an injunction restraining four New York banks from disposing of collateral they hold on 10 million dollars of Corporation Security loans. The New York court is expected to hand down a decision Wednesday either granting the receiver a temporary injunction restraining sale of the collateral, or dismissing the petition.

In the event the petition is dismissed, the attorneys indicated they would rely on a prior injunction issued here by Federal Judge Lindley.

CATALONIA HAILS LIBERTY; ANCIENT FEUD IS BURIED

Spanish Premier Delivers Charter of Independence

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BARCELONA, Spain, Sept. 25.—Premier Manuel Azana today brought to Catalonia the charter of her liberty, dead for centuries, and revived by the constituent cortes in the statute of autonomy duly signed by the president of the republic, Niceto Alcala Zamora.

And if the delirious Catalan greeting of the republic's man of the hour means anything, then the century long feud between Castile and her Ireland is at last buried, even to its memory.

It was a triumph from the time the premier's train with a delegation from parliament aboard crossed the river Ebro today until Azana appeared arm in arm with Col. Francisco Macia, cheftain of Catalonia, on the balcony of the historic palace of the generalidad.

300,000 Roar Their Joy.

Then it became a delirium. From the old square below 10,000 Catalans roared their joy. From the streets all about another 200,000 or 300,000 roared their delight. The nine-barred red and yellow banners of Catalonia and the red, yellow, and purple flags of republican Spain fluttered everywhere. Airplanes roared overhead.

"This is a revolution triumphant," said Azana. "Today, Catalans, there is no longer a king in Castile to declare war on Catalonia. You no longer have enemies. You now are of the republic. Your liberty and the republic are indissolubly bound. Be of the republic!"

A clamorous "Si!" was raised a mile around. There were cheers for Spain, the republic and liberty. And so today's jubilation sealed the loyalty to the republic of this rich and powerful region, which, in 1923, started Primo Rivera, former dictator, on his career.

Oath of Loyalty.

"Catalonia's stand is clear," said Col. Macia, the old warrior, who will be elected president of the generalidad at the November elections. "If any one raises a hand against the republic, count on us."

Tonight Barcelona was gorged with festivities. The people danced the once forbidden Sarsana in the streets in honor of the expedition from Madrid.

EDNA S. NEWMAN NAMED DEAN OF NURSING SCHOOL

Miss Edna S. Newman, veteran nursing teacher and executive, has been appointed temporary dean of the Cook County School of Nursing, 509 South Honore street, it was announced yesterday. She will assume her new duties Oct. 1, succeeding Miss Laura Logan, who resigned last June.

Since 1925 Miss Newman has been assistant to Miss Logan, and her promotion, which is expected to be made permanent, is "from within the ranks." Miss Newman received degrees from Indiana State university and Columbia university teachers' college, and took up graduate work at the University of Chicago. She was graduated in 1921 from the Philadelphia General Hospital Nurses' school, where she was head nurse for a year. Before coming to the Cook county school she taught at Western Reserve university.

Miss Logan's resignation followed eight years of service. Her resignation resulted from differences over a strike of hospital employés.

Schoemaker Cuts Short Vacation; Enters Bomb Quiz

Forsaking one week of a scheduled three weeks vacation, Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker returned to duty yesterday. He had spent two weeks in northern Wisconsin. "I got lonesome for the bureau," explained Chief Schoemaker to friends. Associates, however, said the chief came back to help in solving the McGoorty bombing.

WALKER IS LATE, BUT MAKES BOAT; IT STUCK IN MUD

NAPLES, Italy, Sept. 25.—(AP)—James J. Walker, who kept many notables waiting by being late for appointments when he was mayor of New York, held up an ocean liner today, but he was only partly to blame.

After the President Pierce, sailing for Genoa, was held up one hour for him it was found the prow was stuck in mud and it took another hour's work by tugs to release the ship.

Just as Mr. Walker was about to board the boat he received word from his hotel that a long cable message had arrived for him from New York. He tried vainly to take the message over the telephone and then sent his secretary, George Collins, after it in a taxicab. The ship's mishap saved Jimmy's day.

VENIZELOS BEATS ROYALISTS; LEADS IN GREEK VOTE

Name New Parliament in Quiet Election.

ATHENS, Sept. 26 [Monday.]—(AP)—The candidates of Premier Eleutherios C. Venizelos' Liberal Nationalist party in early provisional returns in yesterday's parliamentary elections were leading the field in Athens, Piraeus, Salonica, and on the island of Mitylene.

Final results of the election, held for 250 seats in the lower chamber of parliament and one-third of the senate, will not be known for three or four days because of the system of proportional representation used which involves several separate counts.

Because of the tension newspapers were forbidden to publish early returns and political gatherings were also banned. The voting everywhere, however, was orderly.

Great Interest in Vote.

The Geek election this year held unusual interest because of the bitter exchange of charges between the various parties, particularly the Venizelists and the royalists.

The 68 year old premier, who has been involved in dozens of political storms during his career, ran into the last one early this month when in an election speech he attacked the former royal family of Greece and indicated he would use armed force, if defeated by the royalists at the polls, to prevent overthrow of the republic.

Thereupon P. E. Tsaldaris, the royalist leader, accused the premier of working with a military group in pre-election activities and demanded that President Alexander Zaimis appoint a premier "who would assure uninfluenced voting."

Challenge Is Met.

The premier was then in Crete, but upon his return to the capital on Sept. 3 he met the challenge by resigning. President Zaimis then requested him to remain at the head of the government, and the premier said everything would take its normal course until the election was decided.

In the last election of a lower chamber in 1928, Venizelos won 228 out of the 250 seats filled, 191 of the deputies belonging to his own party. The royalists won 18 seats, but this did not represent their complete strength.

War on Hitch Hiking to Begin This Week

A war on hitch hiking will be undertaken this week by a group of civic organizations in coöperation with the Chicago safety council and the city council committee on traffic and public safety. It was pointed out that a city ordinance prohibits the soliciting of rides from drivers. The campaign is aimed to prevent crime which accompanies the practice and accidents caused by hitch hikers standing in the roads.

2 MORE JUDGES ACCEPT 48-DAY CUT IN SALARY

Two more Municipal court judges yesterday announced acceptance of a 48 day pay cut, the same reduction given all city employés. Twenty-five of the 36 associate judges have now accepted the slash, six have refused, and five have not answered inquiries sent them six weeks ago by Chief Justice Sonsteby.

"I think the reduction in judges' salaries is rather large, particularly for those judges who are candidates for reëlection and have heavy expenses," said Judge Alfar M. Eberhardt. "But I told Judge Sonsteby that I will take the cut."

Judge William R. Fetzer also announced that he would accept the slash.

LONDON TO N. Y. OCEAN AIR LINE PLANS RUSHED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The Sunday Chronicle today said an Atlantic air service will be established in the near future by the Imperial Airways. Plans are completed for regular flying boat service from England to New York, with stops at the Azores and Bermuda. The 4,000 mile flight is expected to take 35 hours.

Imperial Airways has sent a representative to Bermuda to assist in selecting a port. The scheme will be operated in conjunction with officials of American and French lines—Pan-American Airways and Aero Postale—each country operating one section. France will take over the route to the Azores, Britain will operate the 1,980 midocean flight between the Azores and Bermuda, and America will control the Bermuda to New York route.

The British will use large flying boats capable of carrying 40 passengers in addition to the crew. One plane already is half constructed. The first plane may start from England next year.

G. O. P. LEADERS URGE HOOVER TO SPEAK IN WEST

Six Mountain States Put in Doubtful Class.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—With Republican dissatisfaction rampant in Utah and neighboring mountain states, Republican leaders have appealed to President Hoover to visit this part of the country and make one or more speeches. They regard Utah, Colorado, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana, and Nevada doubtful states as of today, but believe that Mr. Hoover would have a good chance of stemming the tide of public sentiment running in favor of Roosevelt.

REED SMOOT. [Harris & Ewing

Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], who himself is up against a desperate fight for reelection, is the bearer of the Republican managers' plea to the President. He has gone to Washington to lay the corner stone of the new postoffice department building, a marble palace which he was instrumental in getting authorized, and which the Democrats are citing as an example of Hoover economy, inasmuch as the department now occupies a building barely 30 years old which is to be torn down eventually because it is not in architectural harmony with the newer palaces.

Smoot Will Urge Trip.

While in Washington on this mission the senator is to bring all his influence to bear on Mr. Hoover to obtain his consent to visit this region in behalf of the Republican ticket. Mr. Smoot was told to inform the President that cabinet members cannot save the Republican cause from defeat in this region; that the situation demands the presence of Mr. Hoover himself.

Utah has one Democratic senator and has had a Democratic governor for the last eight years, but generally gives its electoral vote to the Republican candidate for President. Since 1896 when it was carried by Bryan on the silver issue it has gone Republican steadily except in 1916 when it was carried by Wilson, having been one of the two states Taft carried in 1912.

Hoover's plurality, however, four years ago was only 14,000 and only the most optimistic Republican leaders expect him to do that well this year. Their preliminary check-up in the cities and the rural districts has given them pause. The majority of normally Republican localities checked give Roosevelt an edge or better.

Charged to Depression.

As everywhere else in the west the Republican dissatisfaction is attributed to the depression, to the desperation of impoverished citizens which is translated into the oft heard exclamation: "Well, I'm going to vote for a change: It couldn't be any worse."

In Utah, which has no manufacturing industries, mining and agriculture are prostrate, with the exception of the sugar beet growers. There is a good crop of beets being taken by the refineries at a contracted price. But what with the drought of last year, and none too much rain this year and depression prices for their products the wheat raisers, the cattle men and sheep men are busted, many of them in actual want. The cities and towns are crowded with unemployed miners.

In Salt Lake City and Ogden the business men are conspicuously favorable to Hoover, though one Republican leader told me the President has lost strength even with that element because of the feeling that he vacillates and acts weakly or belatedly on the problems that present themselves. This he thought was possibly because Hoover was "oversold" to the country in 1928 as a superman. It is among the workingmen of the cities and the farmers, however, that Hoover popularity has suffered its greatest eclipse.

The visit of Roosevelt evoked considerable enthusiasm here, though there was much disappointment that he chose to speak on the railroad question in which there is virtually no interest hereabouts and refused to state his views on the silver rehabilitation question with which political discussion begins and ends in this principal silver producing state of the country. Later at Butte the New York governor said he would call an international conference on silver, if elected, and that dissipated the disappointment to some extent.

Rejects Smoot Silver Plank.

For a long time one of the reasons for opposition to the President in this community was his coldness to the proposals to do something for silver. He rejected the silver plank Smoot tried to get into the Chicago platform, having previously failed to comply with the senate's request to call an international silver conference. Mr. Hoover's alibi was that the European powers, being sounded, would have nothing to do with the proposition. As a result of influence exerted by Smoot, however, Mr. Hoover recently obtained the consent of the powers to place silver on the agenda of the forthcoming world economic conference.

What the silver states are aiming to bring about is an international agreement whereby the Indian government's 400 million ounces of silver would be withheld from the market, and silver would be restored to its former position in the monetary systems of nations which have demonetized the metal and debased such silver coinage as has been retained.

Want Silver "Primary" Money.

For the United States this would mean the undoing of the "crime of '73," and the restoration of silver to the position of a "primary" money which together with gold would then become a reserve securing the issuance of paper currency. The treasury would purchase American produced silver, and pay for it with silver certificates. This would not be bimetallism, the silver interests contend. Gold would remain the standard.

The amount of money in circulation would be increased, however, and this would operate to raise the prices of commodities. More money in circulation is the demand of this whole region, almost as much so as in the days of Bryan and Weaver, though it is being expressed in different terms with great care exercised to save it from being tainted with the flavor of the lost cause of sixteen to one.

By such measures the silver interests believe that the level of the price of silver, which is now selling for 27 cents an ounce, could be raised to 50 cents or more. That would mean reopening of closed mines and prosperity for this region.

Smoot 30 Years in Senate.

Senator Smoot, thirty years in the senate, chairman of the finance committee and a power in the appropriations committee, not only faces the danger of being carried down if Roosevelt should sweep Utah, but faces a formidable adversary in his 49 year old Democratic opponent, Elbert D. Thomas, professor of history and political science in the University of Utah.

Like Smoot, Dr. Thomas is a Mormon. He is exceedingly popular with the younger generation. Although Smoot is an apostle of the church and next in line to its headship, he lacks united Mormon support for reelection. As a matter of fact, his most powerful support has always been non-Mormon, notably the big mining companies, the railroads, and other elements of big business which, however, on account of decreased forces of employés are no longer able to swing so many votes.

Smoot, who is reputed to have more henchmen on the federal pay roll than any senator, is reminding the Utah voters of the millions of dollars of federal appropriations he has been instrumental in having expended in Utah and the tariff protection of Utah products he has procured.

Smoot Lauds Appropriations.

It is as a spender, not an economizer, that Smoot has distinguished himself in the senate. He not only has procured extravagant federal expenditures in Utah and other mountain states, but he has done so by logrolling, which promoted extravagant expenditures in other states.

NORRIS IS HEAD OF NEW LEAGUE FOR ROOSEVELT

Senator Will Take Stump for Candidate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Notice that a definite effort would be made to rally the radical elements of all parties to the Democratic standard of Gov. Roosevelt was contained today in the announcement here of the formation of the National Progressive league.

SENATOR NORRIS

Senator George W. Norris [rad. Rep., Neb.], who announced some time ago that he would bolt the Republican ticket as he did in 1928 and support Roosevelt, was announced as chairman of the league. Senator Edward P. Costigan [rad. Dem., Colo.] is vice chairman and Frederic C. Howe, by whom today's announcement was made, is secretary.

"Nonpartisan in Policy."

Despite its espousal of the candidacy of Gov. Roosevelt "and the progressive principles for which he stands," the league, according to Mr. Howe's statement, is to be nonpartisan in policy and its activities are to be confined solely to economic issues.

Among the members of the league, Mr. Howe said, were Henry A. Wallace, Iowa farm publisher; William D. Lewis of Pennsylvania, director of the American Law Institute; Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit; former Senator H. C. Hansbrough of North Dakota; Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard university Law school; Donald R. Richberg, Chicago, counsel for the Railway Labor Executives association; James M. Thomson, New Orleans publisher; Ray Stannard Baker, and Amos Pinchot of New York.

Norris Will Take Stump.

Senator Norris, it was announced, will speak under the auspices of the league in a coast to coast tour beginning Oct. 15. Other speakers, including Mayor Murphy, Mr. Pinchot, and former Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby, are to follow. Headquarters have been set up in New York and Washington, D. C.

RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD ANNOUNCES HE SUPPORTS ROOSEVELT

New York, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Richard Washburn Child, who was ambassador to Italy under Presidents Harding and Coolidge, announced today that he would support Franklin D. Roosevelt for president and would head an organization to be known as the Republicans for Roosevelt league.

Child made public a letter he had written to Col. E. M. House predicting that "Roosevelt will be elected by Republican votes" for three reasons:

"First, because Republicans despair of reorganizing our party under the present leadership so that it can even write a program.

"Second, because Republicans have no desire for another four years of contest between a Republican administration and a Democratic congress.

"Third, because the time comes when above all party considerations the nation needs hope, needs liberalism and a greater human understanding."

WIFE OF ROBINS PUSHES HUNT FOR MISSING HUSBAND

New York, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Margaret Dreier Robins said today that she planned to go to Washington Friday or Saturday for consultations regarding the disappearance of her husband, Col. Raymond Robins.

She said she expected to confer with federal authorities who are conducting a nation-wide search for Col. Robins and she hoped also to talk to President Hoover.

Col. Robins had an engagement with the President at the time he disappeared.

Mrs. Robins is at the home of her brother, H. Edward Dreier, at Fort Salonga, Long Island.

HOOVER DIRECTS GRAND OFFENSIVE TO SAVE TICKET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—A Republican grand offensive will be launched this week under the personal direction of President Hoover in a major attempt to stem the wave of popular discontent which starting in 1930 now threatens to turn the Hoover family out of the White House on March 4 and give the nation its first Democratic administration since 1917.

Party leaders leaving Washington for the political wars express optimism for final victory in November but admit that the great silent vote must be reached and appeased if the challenge of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is to be turned back and another four year term obtained for President Hoover.

Appeal to All Leaders.

Elder statesmen, sympathetic members of congress, former President Coolidge and virtually all the Republican candidates, radical as well as regular, have been appealed to to go to the front for the Hoover-Curtis ticket and make every possible attempt to line up Republican votes by emphasizing the program advanced by President Hoover for ending the depression and starting the country on the road to prosperity.

As the President considered today the speech he will deliver at Des Moines, Ia., a week from Tuesday in his first major campaign effort, party leaders had before them reports not only of continued dissatisfaction with the "ins" at Washington, but also apparently well authenticated reports of disaffection within the party itself in some states.

The most serious of these came from Illinois where it was reported that certain Illinois state officials have deserted the national Republican ticket and have nailed the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee at the head of privately circulated tickets carrying the names of candidates recommended for support by the voters.

Circulate Hybrid Ticket.

This report regarding the circulation of the Roosevelt headed ticket was brought to Republican leaders by a high official who said he personally had seen one of the printed forms. An immediate search was begun by friends of the party, but whether a copy of one of the tickets has been found has not been made known. No information was available here as to the identity of those sponsoring the printing and circulation of the hybrid tickets.

That the situation in Illinois has not been a healthy one for the national Republican ticket has been known to President Hoover for some time. Efforts have been made, however, to improve conditions there, but up to date the President's anxiety regarding his prospects in that state has not caused him to make arrangements to do any personal campaigning there. Such a course of action would put the President in a position where pressure would be applied to get him to speak a good word for Len Small, the Republican candidate for governor who is being supported by a former Chicago mayor.

The report of the disaffection in Illinois followed circulation of newspaper reports to the effect that in certain western states candidates for state offices have been soft pedaling the national ticket during their campaigning. This has been due according to the reports largely to the widespread dissatisfaction on the part of farmers with the prices they are receiving for their produce, a condition which is blamed on the President.

In an attempt to put the Republican machine into smooth running order for the final weeks of the campaign, administration spokesmen have urged all Republicans to work harmoniously for the local, state and national ticket. The President, through his spokesmen and by long distance telephone messages from the White House has urged that party workers make every effort to reach the protest votes. Several times a day the President talks by telephone to his campaign leaders at Chicago and New York on campaign matters. He has not hesitated to telephone directly to Republican leaders in their states for advice on local conditions or for assistance in meeting a development.

HORNER GREETS FAIR PATRONS IN CLINTON COUNTY

Egypt Is Friendly to the Nominee.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Breese, Ill., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Judge Henry Horner campaigned for governor in his favorite way here this afternoon. The Democratic candidate was a guest at a huge picnic sponsored by the Clinton County Jefferson club in the Breese fairgrounds and more than 10,000 persons came from all Egypt to hear him.

By noon hard roads leading to this village were crammed with automobiles and the gravel lanes winding down from the hills resounded to the creaking of wagon wheels as isolated farmers brought their families to the fiesta. The weather was ideal, the sky clear and blue and a slight wind bore the comfortable coolness of autumn.

Fairgrounds Crowded.

A whole beef had been roasted on a gigantic spit and 100 hams barbecued for the picnic. The fairgrounds were packed long before the speaking began and families took the opportunity of engaging in long postponed reunions, dotting the park in groups where the older folks met about tables to enjoy the lunch while their children whooped and shouted in play as they dashed through the grove.

Judge Horner spent most of the afternoon moving about among these pleasantly clannish groups, stopping to chat here and there, play with the children, or sit surrounded by solemn farmers, exchanging ideas on agricultural relief.

Promises Tax Reduction.

This easy familiarity brought a definite response in the almost rapt attention given when the judge began his address, stressing his ideas of help for the farmer by reduction of taxes and a free rein to conduct his labors unhampered by interference from the state. Again the judge reiterated his distrust of "political farm experts" and promised to give ear only to the dirt farmers, the actual tillers.

Accompanying him were other candidates on the Democratic state ticket: Martin A. Brennan of Bloomington, candidate for congressman at large, and State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett, who is campaigning with Congressman Dietrich's party. He came over from Granite City, where he spoke last night, to attend the picnic and do a little campaigning for state auditor, the post he seeks.

Mr. Brennan gained considerable applause when he declared for repeal of the prohibition law and promised to work for the abolition of all dry laws if elected to congress. Mr. Barrett told of his payment to the state of interest on funds earned by the treasury and promised strict supervision of state banks if elected auditor.

The Horner party was still commenting today on the parade at Vandalia yesterday arranged in the judge's honor by State Representative Arthur Roe, veteran downstate house leader. It extended more than three miles and included floats and Democratic displays. The turnout pleased Judge Horner immensely. Tomorrow his party will speak at Grayville and Eldorado.

GOV. ROOSEVELT IN ARIZONA; TO REST ON RANCH

Considers Coast States Safe for Him.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Williams, Ariz., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—East bound after the swing down the Pacific coast, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and his campaign generals aboard the private car Pioneer arrived in Williams tonight after having spent rather an easy day, most of it in trying to devise means of enduring a suffocating heat and the rest in counting the effects of the western tour.

The governor feels that Washington, Oregon, and California will be safely in the Democratic column next November and he has expressed the greatest gratification over the way in which the Pacific people greeted him.

Farley Leaves for Chicago.

James A. Farley, national chairman of the Democratic party, who left the group of faithful aboard the Pioneer last night and set out for Chicago declared before leaving that the western expedition has more than repaid the effort and expense involved and the effect produced by Gov. Roosevelt in his speeches and appearances will be of immeasurable aid to him all over the nation.

Today's journey through the baking heat of the Great American desert, a heat which has made the air conditioned car the only place of refuge aboard the train, was not deemed of any political significance. In the first place it was Sunday and the governor does not believe in campaigning on the Sabbath, and in the second place, Arizona is so safely Democratic, according to the promises given the Roosevelt managers, that no campaigning is necessary.

Makes Stop at Phoenix.

The governor left the train for an hour at Phoenix, and was driven to the state capitol, where a crowd of several thousand heard him say "Hello" and a few more words expressing his pleasure at being in their state.

Arizona has gone Republican in the last three national campaigns, but Gov. Roosevelt was told today by United States Senator Carl Hayden of Arizona and others that he would poll an overwhelming majority this November.

The crowd which greeted the New York governor today was much the same as all the gatherings which have met him during the rest of the tour. In all of the cities there have been great outpourings of people poorly dressed, in clothes mended and patched and worn since the good old work days of '29.

Refers to "Forgotten Man."

Gov. Roosevelt is referring in almost every speech now to his intention of helping the "forgotten man," and he intends that designation to cover these many thousands of jobless and despirited folk who have turned out in such numbers to see him pass and to hear his messages.

The governor was to be joined by Mrs. Roosevelt at the ranch of Mrs. Isabella Greenway, near Williams. Mrs. Greenway, the widow of John C. Greenway, who was a rough rider with "T. R." and who was the maid of honor at the wedding of the governor and Mrs. Roosevelt, is Arizona's national committeewoman. Mrs. Roosevelt flew from Kansas City to Winslow and was being driven to the Greenway ranch.

The governor will spend tonight and tomorrow at the Greenway ranch and will depart tomorrow night for Colorado Springs, Colo., and thence to Albuquerque, N. M., and Sioux City, Ia., where on Thursday he will deliver an address.

CERMAK HEADS CZECH CLUBS TO AID ROOSEVELT

Oklahoma City, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Organized Czechoslovakian support for Franklin D. Roosevelt for President was assured today with Anton J. Cermak, Chicago mayor, as its head.

Mayor Cermak was elected president of the National Association of Roosevelt Czechoslovakian Clubs of America at an organization meeting here yesterday.

Formed to "foster enthusiasm among Czechoslovakian folk of America who have the right of franchise to support Franklin D. Roosevelt for President," the organization named John F. Kroutil, Yukon, Okla., flour mill owner; John A. Cervenka, Chicago city budget director, and Mayor William Stepanek of Cedar Rapids, Ia., national vice presidents.

Scopes of Evolution Trial Fame to Support Thomas

Socialist headquarters for Norman Thomas, presidential candidate, gave out a letter yesterday from J. T. Scopes, the high school teacher who was the central figure in the Tennessee evolution trial. Scopes announced his support of Thomas and his belief that capitalism is headed for a collapse. "I am glad to be associated with a party which recognizes that a change in ideals of economy is necessary," Mr. Scopes wrote to Candidate Thomas. "I am glad to be able to support you in your candidacy, which is based on a very humanitarion immediate relief program, backed up by an orderly program of socializing industry."

ROOSEVELT HERE FRIDAY; PARTY OPENS CAMPAIGN

Farley Coming Tomorrow to Help Map Drive.

Democratic chieftains yesterday mapped a program for a busy week in which the national campaign will be launched with the arrival here tomorrow of James Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee and manager of Gov. Roosevelt's campaign, and the arrival here on Friday of Gov. Roosevelt, who is swinging back from his tour of the west.

A luncheon is planned for Mr. Farley in the Gold Room of the Congress hotel for noon tomorrow, Mayor Cermak, who is also Democratic national committeeman, Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, national committeewoman, and Mr. Farley will be speakers.

Call Round Table Parley.

Following the luncheon there will be a round table conference at which the fifty ward committeemen, representatives of country town districts, and Democratic officials will have a frank discussion of the campaign with Mr. Farley. The campaign plans will take definite form and Mr. Farley expects to remain here until Saturday, probably leaving with Gov. Roosevelt.

The train bearing the Democratic presidential candidate is scheduled to arrive in Chicago at 9 o'clock Friday night at the Union station, over the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad. Democratic ward organizations will escort Gov. Roosevelt to his hotel, and an old fashioned parade is to be staged. There will be bands, drum and bugle corps, illuminated floats, and plenty of red fire along the line of march on Jackson and Michigan boulevards.

Rivalry in Ward Groups.

The ward organizations are trying to outdo each other in making a showing in the parade. Bailiff Al Horan and Moe Rosenberg are a committee in charge of arranging special features for the parade.

Gov. Roosevelt will hold conferences with Democratic leaders Friday evening and Saturday morning. Saturday afternoon he may attend the world series baseball game at Cubs park.

At 6 o'clock Saturday evening Gov. Roosevelt will be the guest of the Democratic committee at a dinner in the Stevens hotel. There will be seats for 2,600 persons and tickets will be $3 each. The Democratic organization announced that invitations will not be sent out, but it is expected that the public will respond without invitations. Clayton F. Smith, chairman of the dinner committee, said he hopes business men and civic leaders will attend.

Cermak to Be Toastmaster.

Mayor Cermak will act as toastmaster. He will introduce State Senator Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, who is to say a few words of welcome in behalf of Democratic county candidates. Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for governor, will do the same on behalf of state candidates. Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank and the recipient of Illinois Democrats' favorite son votes in the Democratic national convention which nominated Gov. Roosevelt will speak in behalf of the business men of the city.

Gov. Roosevelt is scheduled to be speaking at 8:15 o'clock, his talk being broadcast over two national systems. He will depart from Chicago at 11 o'clock, but is expected to return here for another campaign speech at a meeting which probably will be held in the Chicago Stadium.

HOOVER MAINTAINING THREE TO ONE LEAD IN WHO'S WHO POLL

Figures announced yesterday by Republican national headquarters in the Palmer house showed that President Hoover is maintaining his lead of three to one over Gov. Roosevelt in the postcard poll of persons listed in "Who's Who in America." Out of 12,000 straw ballots returned President Hoover received more than 9,000 votes, the report stated.

Cards were sent to the 28,000 persons listed and the replies are coming in faster and in greater proportions than was expected, it was announced. The standing yesterday was as follows:

Herbert Hoover	9,234
Franklin D. Roosevelt	2,805
Norman Thomas	563
Alfred E. Smith	22
Total	12,614

The publicity department reported that 256 of those casting votes for Hoover replied that they had voted for Smith in 1928, and 817 Roosevelt voters said they voted for Hoover four years ago. Of those who marked for Thomas, the Socialist candidate, 254 said they had voted Republican and 151 Democratic four years ago.

Three Youths Identified in Robbery of Hunters

Three youths yesterday were identified as the robbers who held up five hunters on the morning of Sept. 11 at 95th street and Archer avenue, and took five shotguns and a small sum of money from them. The shotguns were recovered. The prisoners are Edward Casper, 22 years old, 1415 West 66th street; Roy Carr, 20 years old, 5129 Emerald avenue; and Stephen Martinowics, 20 years old, 5600 South Marshfield avenue.

H. J. ALLEN TWITS ROOSEVELT FOR HIS NEW FRIENDS

Shows How Candidate's Backers Switched.

Henry J. Allen, former United States Senator for Kansas and now director of publicity for the Hoover campaign, issued a statement from national headquarters of the party in the Palmer house yesterday criticising the new friendships of Gov. Roosevelt, Democratic opponent of Hoover for the Presidency.

HENRY J. ALLEN.

"Gov. Roosevelt in his speech yesterday said he was proud of the enemies he had made," the Allen statement began. "He leaves us wondering why he did not also express his pride in some of the new friends he has made.

Known for What He Is Not.

"For instance, there is William Randolph Hearst, who on May 1 declared that 'all who are in a position to appraise Roosevelt's equipment declare his presidential boom is a fake, pure and simple; they know him for what he is not, rather than for what he is.' Why didn't he express his pride in the new friendship of William Gibbs McAdoo, who at the time agreed with Mr. Hearst, and of Jack Garner, who agreed with both of them."

The statement contained similar comment regarding Senators Long, Dill, Wheeler and Norris, whom he called socialistic philosophers. He mentioned Baruch, Kennedy "and other outstanding speculators in Wall street," and Gov. Roosevelt's campaign manager, James Farley, of whom he said: "As chairman of the boxing commission of New York state he calmed the sport world with official assurance that the Sharkey-Schmeling fight was on the level."

Nathan William MacChesney, director of the national Hoover-Curtis organization bureau, yesterday announced the formation of a national committee of physicians and surgeons Dr. Herman Louis Kretschmer, president of the Chicago Medical society, is to act as its chairman. In accepting the post Dr. Kretschmer said:

"Although the medical profession ordinarily does not take an active part in politics I believe that the physicians and surgeons of the United States will be a real factor at this time.

Resist Rivals' Propaganda.

"The men and women of the medical profession cannot stand idly by and see President Hoover's practical, efficient and humane administration undermined by propaganda and, I am sure, will resent as a body, any attack made upon his public record. We cannot forget the President's own personal attitude toward poverty and disease and the many effective measures he has taken to alleviate them."

SALE OF WHEAT TO CHINA, R. F. C. LOAN DISCUSSED

Hoover Hurriedly Calls In His Advisers.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Federal aid in an attempt to sell many millions of bushels of privately owned northwestern wheat to China was discussed today by President Hoover and high government officials at a hurriedly called White House conference.

Although definite figures were not available, it was said in one reliable quarter that the proposed sale might amount to 15,000,000 bushels or more.

It was learned authoritatively that there was discussion of a possible loan of $8,000,000 of Reconstruction corporation funds either directly to China or possibly to the Farmers' National Grain corporation, to finance the export of this wheat.

Reconstruction corporation officials said they knew of no direct application for such a sum either from China or the grain corporation, and no decision on this point was reached at the White House parley.

Market Balance Involved.

The Reconstruction corporation is empowered to make loans to facilitate the export of surplus agricultural commodities, provided such export does not unbalance the world market, but authorities said today there was a legal question still to be decided as to whether the corporation could lend directly to a foreign country.

Those present with the chief executive during the discussion in the Lincoln study of the White House were Secretary Hyde, C. B. Denman, and Charles S. Wilson, members of the farm board; Chairman Atlee Pomerene of the Reconstruction corporation, and Jesse Jones, Gardner Cowles, Wilson MacCarthy, and Harvey Couch, all directors of the corporation. Chairman Stone of the farm board, who has been ill for several days, was not present.

Owned By Northwest Growers.

It was said after the conference that the proposed sale would involve wheat now held by growers in the northwest. The grain producers in that section, it was explained, have suffered some distress because of the cost of shipping their product to the east or midwest for sale.

George Milnor, manager of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, has been attempting to arrange the sale to China, but it was said today that no final arrangements had been made.

More than a year ago, the farm board sold approximately 15,000,000 bushels of its stabilization wheat to China.

At the White House it was said no announcement could be made concerning today's conference.

ILLINOIS TO ASK $5,000,000 MORE FOR RELIEF WORK

Assembly Unlikely to Act Until After Nov. 8.

Back from Washington and jubilant over the $5,000,000 relief loan granted Illinois by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, state legislators yesterday prepared for the session of the assembly tomorrow at Springfield. Leaders of both houses admitted frankly that there is little prospect that any relief measures will be passed this week.

Although the $5,000,000 loan by the finance corporation was made with the "distinct understanding" that the Illinois assembly would enact measures for relief at the "earliest possible moment," not much will be accomplished by the legislature until after election day, Nov. 8, it was stated.

Need Another $5,000,000.

The relief stations caring for 125,000 families in Chicago will be kept open until Nov. 1, as a result of the 5,000,000 loan. An additional $5,000,000 will be asked soon of the Finance corporation to provide for Chicago's relief needs until Dec. 1. By that time, the assembly may have passed the legislation needed to provide funds to keep the relief stations in operation, it was said.

The legislators were confident that the state will be loaned another $5,000,000 by the finance corporation even though no definite action has been taken by the legislature in the meanwhile. They enthused about the cordial reception given them by Senator Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the corporation, and other officers and declared that the officers have a sympathetic understanding of Illinois' problem.

Relief officials, however, were not so certain that another loan would be granted in the absence of any specific action by the legislature. They pointed out that the finance corporation has now advanced $14,000,000 to Illinois for its relief needs, issuing a warning which grows stronger with each loan that the state itself must take steps to provide relief funds.

Favors Sales Tax.

State Senator Richard J. Barr, majority leader in the senate, declared that the only solution to the relief problem is passage of a state sales tax and said flatly that there was no chance for passage of such a measure before election day.

"There are three bills pending in the assembly," he pointed out. "They are the state sales tax, the optional county sales tax, and the gas tax diversion measure.

"There is no hope of passing the state sales tax until after the November election. Fifty counties are in no need of relief and are getting none. The representatives of those counties in the house and senate will not jeopardize their standing with their constituents just before election by voting a state sales tax which would impose on those fifty counties a tax burden made necessary by the relief needs of a few counties.

Doubts if Measures Pass.

"It is doubtful if the other two measures will pass. I am skeptical about the constitutionality of the county optional tax measure. As for the bill to allow counties to divert their share of the gasoline tax for relief purposes, it should be remembered that the $20,000,000 bond issue is on the November ballot. The $20,000,000 has been spent and the bond issue, if carried, must be paid for out of the gasoline tax. If it doesn't carry, there will be an increase of 89 cents in the state tax rate.

"I think it is probable that the Reconstruction Finance corporation will grant us another loan. They realize that the legislature cannot provide for immediate relief."

State Representative Michael L. Igoe, minority leader in the house, also expressed the belief that another loan will be advanced by the Finance corporation.

Faced with Court Tests.

"There is only a possibility that the legislature will pass a relief measure this week," he said. "A real drive might put over the county optional sales tax. But there would be no actual money raised for several months. The constitutionality of the measure would first be tested and no money would flow into the treasury for some time even if it is declared constitutional. I think that the Finance corporation realizes the situation and will make another loan.

"The state sales tax is the only answer to the problem, but there is no hope of passing it until after the election. The counties that don't need relief funds can use the money to reduce their real estate taxes and school indebtedness."

Mr. Igoe said it is probable that the legislature, after meeting this week, would recess until after the Nov. 8 election.

WOMAN DIES IN GAS FILLED ROOM.

Duquoin, Ill., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Flora Appuhn Farthing, 28, was found dead last night in her farm home southeast of Duquoin in a room filled with gas. In a note addressed to relatives, she told of her grief over the recent deaths of her mother and brother.

FORMER SENATOR WHO VOTED DRY SAYS LAW FAILS

New York, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Former United States Senator Henry French Hollis [Dem., N. H.], who voted for the prohibition amendment in 1919, but now says he is an authority on French wines, arrived today on his second visit to the United States in 13 years.

He said he came from Paris with two convictions: that the 18th amendment is a failure and that Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the next President.

"I see nothing incompatible," he said, "between a belief in prohibition as the best system for the United States and the enjoyment of fine wines in France. I have now concluded, however, that prohibition will not work in our country as the laws stand at present. I believe that beer and wine should be permitted, but that the saloon and distilled spirits should remain outlawed."

START DAIRY BUILDING TODAY AT WORLD'S FAIR

Work will start today on the Dairy building and the Illinois section of the Agricultural building at the World's Fair, officials announced yesterday. Contracts for both projects have been awarded to the E. W. Sproul Construction company.

The Dairy building, milk white in color, 167 feet long, 114 feet wide, and with a tower 69 feet high, will be erected just west of the north end of the Agricultural building, on Northerly island. A feature of the auditorium will be a "Fountain of Milk," with sculptures symbolizing the place of milk in the development of civilization.

The Illinois section of the Agricultural building will be L shaped, and located on the southeast corner. There will be a main hall, 65 feet long, and two smaller halls in which the story of Illinois agriculture will be told.

Widespread interest in Chicago's plans for the exposition was reported by a group of Burlington Railroad officials headed by President Ralph Budd, who have just returned from a 6,000 mile trip through the west, northwest, and south.

FREE BUSINESS OF U. S. RIVALRY, LEADERS PLEAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Government must be driven out of the business field and kept out, it was asserted emphatically in a report given out today by the directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Drawn up by a special committee as the result of a detailed investigation, the report asserted that government enterprise enjoyed such unfair advantages, as compared with private enterprise, that it could always crush the private competitor.

Avoid First Intrusion.

Unless Americans were willing to see a particular field of endeavor taken over by the government, the report asserted, the only safeguard was to prevent the initial intrusion of the government into that field.

In their announcement of the report the directors of the chamber of commerce recalled their long opposition to government competition and promised that their efforts would be continued "until the chamber's objective is accomplished."

The special committee was headed by Henry D. Sharpe of Providence, R. I.

Ignores Profit or Loss.

"The government's operations," the committee said, "can be and are carried on without regard to the elements of profit or loss, which are unavoidable factors in private business. The government can and does furnish the funds which are employed, largely from taxation, without requiring or expecting payment of interest, let alone dividends, out of business."

The committee acknowledged the need of government manufacture of secret military and naval weapons; of a limited number of complete naval vessels; of money and stamps; of certain government publications; of articles required to keep prisoners humanely occupied; and of charts.

But in all such cases of government activity the true costs should be ascertained and published and unfair practices should be guarded against.

The report recognized that government loans and subsidies were a form of competition.

The committee directed its final recommendation to business itself. If government competition is to cease, the report declared, business must not call on the government for services which it can perform for itself.

COUNTY TO OFFER TAX WARRANTS FOR '32 SALARIES

President Emmet Whealan of the county board yesterday summoned a special meeting of the county finance committee for tomorrow morning to consider payment of county employés' salaries in 1932 tax anticipation warrants. Representatives of the employés will be asked to appear Thursday to express views on the proposal.

The committee is to hear a statement of the county's financial condition by Deputy Controller Michael O'Connor. He said yesterday the report would show little hope for payment of salaries in cash after the pay day of tomorrow.

Through the sale of $450,000 of 1931 tax anticipation warrants to banks, the pay day of tomorrow was made possible. About 3,000 county employés will receive checks for the last half of May.

If the tax warrant plan is approved, pay rolls for August and September and future rolls would be met similarly until there is cash in the county treasury.

Senator Borah's Wife Gains in Battle with Parrot Fever

Boise, Ida., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The condition of Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of the senior senator from Idaho, who is ill with psittacosis or parrot fever, continued to improve today. Physicians said she was responding to treatment with psittacosis serum received by airplane from Washington.

TOWN SHRINKS, BUT POSTOFFICE GAINS IN SIZE

Cost $65,000 and Serves 2,650 Persons.

Boyne City, Mich., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—This town of 2,650 persons—1930 population—has a brand new $65,000 postoffice. If the business men of the community can keep the receipts from dropping off $1,200 a year more, it will continue to be a second class postoffice, and not lapse into third class.

The new postoffice, with its expensive hardwood furnishings, electric clocks in each room, shower baths for the carriers and fine washrooms for the public, is an example of the beneficence of the United States government.

The janitor and the broom man of the new postoffice receive $2,040 a year, which serves a population of 2,650, while the rent for the old postoffice, serving at one time a population of 5,218, was $960 a year.

Town Shrinks, Expenses Grew.

In 1910 the population of Boyne City was 5,218. At that time and until the construction of the new $65,000 postoffice, just completed, the government paid $80 a month for rent, which covered heat, light, and janitor service. There were, and still are, three local and three rural carriers.

But with the new postoffice, serving a population of 2,650, the government pays a janitor $105 a month, or $1,260 a year, and a broom man 50 cents an hour for five hours a day, six days a week, or $780 a year.

Twenty years ago, Boyne City, a lumber town, had an iron furnace, a chemical plant, four saw mills, a basket factory, and the Michigan Tanning and Extract plant. Now only the Michigan Tanning and Extract plant is operating. The town's two banks merged, then failed a year ago. With the decline of Boyne City's industries the population has fallen off from 5,218 in 1910, to 4,334 in 1920, to 3,650 in 1930.

Climax of 20 Years.

The fight for Boyne City's new postoffice, however, was begun twenty years ago by Congressman Francis Dodds, although the rented quarters at that time were considered ample by the populace. Congressman Frank Scott carried on the campaign to land the new building, and the further efforts of Congressman Frank P. Bohn proved successful in the era of Speaker John N. Garner and bigger and better public works appropriations.

THIRD SUSPECT SOUGHT IN DRY AGENT'S KILLING

Tamarack, Minn., Sept. 25.—(AP)—A second suspect was arrested for questioning and the north woods was searched for a third man by officers today in their investigation of the killing of James G. Harney, federal prohibition agent found shot to death near here yesterday.

Emil Giving, 28, was arrested when he returned to his cabin today and taken to the county jail at Aitken, where also was held Gust Hedstrom, 36 years old.

Both denied any connection with the killing of Harney, who was a brother of M. L. Harney, district prohibition administrator at Chicago, and who had been one of a party of federal agents raiding a still at the Harry Hedstrom farm near Tamarack.

Harry Hedstrom, 42, was the third man sought. He is a brother of Gust Hedstrom.

BLIND TELEPHONE OPERATORS WIN JOBS WITH STATE

Thirty-five blind men and women have been employed during the past six weeks as telephone switchboard operators in state institutions, it was revealed yesterday. Their employment, officials said, is part of a plan to train graduates of the vocational school for the blind at Jacksonville to earn a living.

The 35 graduates of the school have been placed in charge of specially prepared switchboards in state institutions at Elgin, Dixon, Lincoln, Anna, Peoria, and Alton. Ten blind stenographers, graduates of the vocational school, are also in the state employ.

Russell Wallman, 26 years old, and Charles Brinkley, 22 years old, both totally blind, are in charge of the switchboard at the Elgin hospital for the Insane. After three weeks at the hospital, their work has been pronounced "excellent" by Dr. Charles F. Read, in charge.

The specially constructed switchboard is equipped with a high and low tone buzzer and a bell. The low tone buzzer is the signal for a disconnect, the high tone buzzer indicates that someone in the hospital wants the operator, and incoming calls are marked by the bell.

"WHY DIDN'T I SAVE $27.23 On My Automobile Insurance?"

Consider these SAVINGS in the world's largest mutual casualty insurance company

THIS table shows how much the Liberty Mutual dividend has reduced the cost of complete insurance on cars in Chicago and vicinity. Liberty has paid substantial dividends to every policyholder every year for 20 years.

	CHICAGO	CHICAGO (suburbs)	GARY & HAMMOND
Lincoln, Cadillac, Packard Class up to	$27.23	$19.18	$20.10
Buick, Chrysler Class up to	21.95	15.41	16.10
Ford, Chevrolet, Plymouth Class up to	16.14	12.03	12.77

PARTIAL PAYMENTS if desired—Liberty's low-cost divided payment plan makes thousands of new friends every year.

"IF I HAD bought the automobile insurance on my Cadillac direct from Liberty Mutual, I would have saved $27.23.

"My friends are saving money every year by insuring with Liberty, and they tell me they get prompt, competent service, if they have accidents or if they want information about any phase of their insurance.

"Naturally, my broker won't like it when I tell him I'm going to insure with Liberty—because they won't pay him a commission. But that's why Liberty is reducing the cost of insurance—their sales costs are only one third as much as the average insurance company. I'm going to pay the commission I normally pay my broker, to myself.

"Liberty also saves money for policyholders by insuring careful drivers only. Policyholders in the Liberty don't have to help pay for a lot of accidents caused by irresponsible car-owners.

"Now, in the ordinary company, these savings wouldn't mean anything to me—but in the Liberty, they actually reduce my yearly premium. You see, Liberty is a mutual company—no stockholders to share in profits. In the Liberty, the profits made by selling direct and by careful selection of policyholders are paid back to policyholders.

"Liberty has saved and returned over $33,000,000 to its policyholders. I could have saved $27.23 on my premium this year. At the same time, Liberty has grown in size and strength—on June 30, 1932, it had Assets of $23,154,67[illegible]; Reserves for Liabilities of $19,215,036; and a Surplus of $3,939,639."

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

GOV. ROOSEVELT ON INSULLISM.

When Gov. Roosevelt, in his Portland speech on public utilities, tied into the conduct of the Insull holding and investment companies, Mr. Roosevelt was performing a useful service to the people of this country. The record of outrageous abuse of public confidence, and the corruption and bribery which accompanied it, are matters of concern to all citizens. Mr. Roosevelt may be criticized by his opponents for injecting an issue into the campaign that does not belong there, but this criticism will not stand examination. If our system of law is not adequate to prevent men in a position of trust from juggling funds in their keeping and if our laws are not adequate to punish bribery and corruption when committed, then it is plainly the duty of public officials to point to the shortcomings in our statutes and to demand appropriate changes.

That is what Gov. Roosevelt did in his Portland speech, and to the extent that he confined himself to this issue he has the whole-hearted support, we believe, of all citizens who prefer honesty to dishonesty in government and in business. When Gov. Roosevelt turned to a discussion of public ownership of power sites and political regulation of power companies he was on less certain ground. These aspects of his address will be dealt with subsequently. For the present it is our purpose to discuss only his observations about fraud and corruption on the part of utility magnates at the expense of innocent investors.

The question arises at once whether the practices complained of are peculiar to the power business. To this, we believe, the answer is no. Possibly the gravest abuses have taken place in the manipulation of the securities of power companies and power holding companies, but it must be plain to any reader of newspapers that the revelations of what happened to the Insull companies are merely the latest in a series of revelations of mismanagement in diverse fields. The washing up of a score of investment trusts has not been forgotten by thousands of investors. The reckless flotation of so-called first mortgage gold bonds on urban real estate is remembered by even more. There has been much incompetence and some downright dishonesty in bank management, with costly consequences to depositors. And there was Ivar Kreuger with his match companies. To mention these instances of betrayal and loss is not in any sense to condone what happened to the Insull investors, but merely to demonstrate that the evil was not confined to utilities.

Gov. Roosevelt pointed to the utility failures and drew the moral that more stringent regulation by public authority of utility companies is the remedy. Here his logic is open to criticism. If further protection of the investment public is required it should not be limited to surveillance of the stocks and bonds of the utilities alone, but to all forms of publicly issued securities.

We would therefore extend some of the safeguards which Mr. Roosevelt proposes to all kinds of public financing. Mr. Roosevelt says every utility company should be required to publish periodically a full balance sheet and income account. These companies, too, he says, should publish sworn statements of the amounts of their stock and bonds held by their officers and directors. More than that, they should be required to publish a full statement of intercorporate relations and contracts. We believe experience has proved the wisdom of these recommendations, not only for power companies but for all publicly financed businesses.

When Gov. Roosevelt goes on to recommend, among other things, more stringent regulation of utilities by federal and state commissions, some doubts will arise. The accumulation of evidence casts doubt upon the value of this kind of regulation. Certainly Mr. Insull was never much troubled by it. He had no more difficulty controlling some regulatory commissions than he had in controlling the funds which investors intrusted to him. At present Illinois enjoys the spectacle of Len Small's campaign for the governorship being managed by Frank Smith, erstwhile chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, which regulates utilities in this state. Mr. Insull contributed the lion's share of the $203,000 in campaign contributions which Frank Smith received from public utility sources at the time he was running for the United States senate.

That the safeguarding of invested funds is desirable goes without saying. That regulatory commissions of political origin can contribute much to this end is at least doubtful. A regulatory commission passed upon every defaulted real estate bond sold in Illinois. A state or a federal regulatory agency examined the books of every busted bank in the United States. The publicity which Gov. Roosevelt recommends is calculated to do more good than additional regulation, if this record means anything.

Still more would be accomplished, we believe, if our laws against fraud, bribery, and breaches of trust were enforced with vigor. It may be that these laws are in need of change to include practices which were unknown when the laws were framed, but that is doubtful. If so, the necessary changes should be made.

No one is ever going to devise a crookproof financial system. We can hope that additional publicity will make it harder for the crooks to operate and easier to punish them. We can hope, more especially, for a more rigorous enforcement of the law covering financial management. And we can hope, too, that any changes in law for the protection of investors will not be limited in scope to investments in utility companies.

SANITY IN QUEBEC.

The people of this country have allowed prohibition to slip into the background of their political thinking since the conventions in June. There is a feeling that prohibition is dead, whatever happens in the election. This complacence is not justified. Both the modification of the Volstead act and repeal of the amendment require action by congress. If prohibition is to go, congressmen must be elected who will vote wet.

In addition, the probability of an early repeal makes it more important than ever to turn attention to the system of liquor control which is to replace prohibition. That this control shall be by states is now pretty generally conceded, but what form it shall take is still undecided in many minds.

The Quebec régime offers a model which many states in this country will be disposed to copy. In Quebec it is possible to obtain light beer in taprooms and wine with meals, but hard liquor is much more heavily taxed and much less conveniently obtained. Whisky cannot be drunk on the premises where it is sold, though any one can buy whisky if he has the price and is willing to take the trouble to get it. The result is a temperate use of liquor and of spirits in particular. The saloon as it was known in this country before prohibition and the contemporary speakeasy have no prototypes in Quebec. The government receives substantial revenues from the liquor sold. And any community within Quebec which does not want liquor sold within its borders can make its will effective.

There is no perfect way of handling the trade in liquor. No system is wholly proof against the machinations of men and women who are determined to abuse it. But no one who has seen the Quebec system in operation and who has the experience of this country with prohibition and before prohibition in mind can doubt that Quebec has come much nearer to the ideal solution of the problem than we have.

Quebec has taken private profit out of the sale of spirits. The control of liquor is placed in the hands of a commission whose administration is regarded as successful in the measure that drunkenness is minimized and bootlegging is made unprofitable. Those objectives should guide our legislators, too, when the time comes to frame new liquor legislation in our state.

With the Quebec system in force we might expect to avoid most of the evils associated with the pre-prohibition saloon and all of the political and social corruption which has attended prohibition.

DRY KILLINGS CONTINUE.

The Mexican ley fuga, or law of flight, still has standing in dry law enforcement. In a raid on a still near Boonville, Mo., one man tried to escape through the brush and was shot at by a deputy sheriff and fatally wounded. There is nothing in the law or in morals fixing the death penalty for an attempt to escape arrest unless the individual is charged with the most serious crime. The making of illicit liquor is not a crime which justifies killing, except in the bigot mind. The law enforcer is not endangered by a man who runs away, and to shoot him down is murder morally if not legally. We have had repeated offenses of this sort. They are a grim part of the price we pay for the fanaticism which has been permitted to influence prohibitionist legislation and enforcement. Isn't it time that official discipline and restraint upon this evil be made strong enough to suppress it?

Editorial of the Day

THE POLITICAL SHOWBOAT ARRIVES.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

No stranger chapter has unfolded in American history than that which brought to the St. Louis river front today the political junket which Len Small, Big Bill Thompson, and Frank L. Smith, the three horsemen of Illinois' political degeneration, are making down the river in support of Small's candidacy for governor.

Missouri is not a part of that disgraceful spectacle across the Mississippi by which the three most discredited men in the public life of a neighboring state have pooled their disqualifications to bring one of their number back to the public crib, but they nevertheless did us the honor to tie up this morning at the local wharf.

A purely political emprise in the guise of a deep waterway rally, as grotesque an outfit as ever went down a stream which has seen the successive pageants of Indian war canoes, the barges of explorers, the pirogues of the French colonists and the flatboats of a time when young Abraham Lincoln manned a sweep, this motley crew will journey on down to the Ohio and thence around to old Shawneetown.

By night the merry crew will have maneuvered across the river to East St. Louis so all who will may dance, sing, and make whoopee generally on a barge belonging to the United States government which was lent through the "kindness of Secretary Hurley." There is no more reason why the United States government should furnish a barge for this political cruise than there would be for getting Jimmie Walker out of the country on a warship. The whole thing is an impudent performance, a prostitution of free government that makes our decadent time smack of the saffron days when Heliogabalus was emperor of Rome.

The first impulse is to laugh at the whole thing. It is a cheap, tawdry spectacle, designed to rope in the votes of unthinking persons. Who is the guiding spirit behind it is as plain as day. He is the master of ceremonies, sworn enemy of King George, none other than Big Bill, who but two years ago was parading the streets of Chicago with donkeys, camels, and various other animals in an unsuccessful effort to get himself reelected mayor of the city whose bankruptcy his administration had precipitated. He has not changed a whit from the time when he exhibited rats in a cage to ward meetings in the loop. Our Illinois neighbors who go aboard to hear his shouts and watch his waving arms will witness a travesty on popular government.

But if the cruise is politics reduced to the ridiculous, it is also a disgrace to the state which once sent Abraham Lincoln to the White House. Today the third most populous state in the Union faces problems the like of which it has never seen. Yet all the showboat has to offer is an orchestra and a government barge for dancing. That and an unparalleled exhibition of discredited former officeholders, all turned out by the people when their conduct became insufferable.

"TWO" RECKLESS.

"Gerald, dear," said Gerald's aunt, "aren't you sometimes afraid you'll lose control of the car?"

"Constantly," replied Gerald, "I'm two installments behind already."—Tit-Bits.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Here to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

DAYLIGHT SAVING ended yesterday. We set back the clock one hour. There comes always a little choking in the throat when we put back the clock at the end of the daylight saving season. As we push the hands back an hour we can't help wishing we could push them back five years or ten years or even more, and with them all the mistakes and foolish things we did in that time would be pushed back, too. And then they would never happen because we would know too much to let them happen again. How much unhappiness, how much heartache we could rub out if we could only push the hands of the clock back through the years. But only an hour, just an hour, and it's hard to see that we have got the hands back exactly sixty minutes because of the tears. Oh, gosh! Next year when daylight savings ends we'll hire somebody to shove the damn clock back.

CLOTHES.

There they hang in serried rows,
Dead men's clothes, dead men's clothes!
Wonder what the paths they trod
Ere they slithered back to God.

See that long black coat and hat
There which you are staring at?
A pussyfooter's clothes, I trow;
Wonder where he's snooping now?

Note that flashy looking suit,
Flecked with blackened holes minute?
A gangster's raiment like as not;
Must have put him on the spot.

Flannel shirt and ragged pants,
Pass them by with but a glance,
Dreaming poet, roaming 'bo,
Maybe life was better so.

Men who lived a while and died,
Failed, succeeded, quit or tried;
Where they are nobody knows,
All that's left of them is clothes!

"COLORADO IN DOUBT, but Both Parties Claim State."—Headline. But, in point of fact, about the only states that both parties haven't claimed in addition to Colorado and the other forty-seven, are the state of man, the state of nature, the state of facts, the Orange Free State, the state of unconsciousness, the state of inebriety, and the state of single blessedness.

She May When She Finds Out Her Name.

[From the Clear Lake, Iowa, Reporter.]

Helen May is the name given a little daughter born to Mr. and Mrs James A. Buck last Monday.

"SEES MILLION Illinois Roosevelt Majority."—Headline. "Tell Hoover He'll Carry Illinois by Two Hundred Thousand."—Another headline. A study of these two headlines shows that the Jefferson boys are in a much more optimistic and enthusiastic frame of mind than the G. O. P. boys. It isn't that the side which claims the most always gets it, but the side which is bubbling with confidence generally has good and sufficient reason for its high hopes and high figures. For instance, we are not near as confident of the vote that our peerless leader, Norman Thomas, will poll in Illinois, so we only say that he will not run ahead of either of the two old parties more than 90,000. The point is that the less confidence one has of the complete and glorious triumph of his candidate the lower he places his majority over the others. But, as Cleopatra laughingly said to Marc Antony, all signs fail in wet weather.

Same Place.

Sir: Didja see where the curator of the N. Y. Zoölogical institute has returned from some outlandish place or other with a katydid which sings like a grand opera star? It is to be placed in the zoo. Now if some one would just find a place for the opera stars who sing like a katydid.

JAEBO OF OLD DUBUQUE.

AND NOW THE SAD DAYS are nearing when we've got to pour alcohol in the radiator of the old bus. Of course, it's wood alcohol and kills at six feet and farther, but it's alcohol at that, and it makes one's heart ache to see it go gurgling down into the tummy of an automobile. An automobile shouldn't drink likker, anyhow; that's probably what makes 'em rare around the way they do and go through red lights.

LADY WILLOW PLUME.

What is that moving there upon the wall?
The Lady Willow Plume—who, proud and tall,
Has hung for years there smiling, while I sat
And scoffed at her wasp-waist and leghorn hat.
She's stepping out of her gold picture frame—
Look out!—You'll fall! I shall not take the blame!
Just visiting? Well, come—and sit you down.
How have you fared, Miss Nineteen-Seven Gown?
Don't look about my desk with curious eye.
Yes—those are cigarets, why should I lie?
Don't read those papers—you'll be scandalized.
Yes, I have penned them, why look so surprised?
My hair? It's bobbed—slicked back, glued to the skull—
I know my eyes are dim, my glance is dull—
Don't pat your muff as nervously as that—
Look out! The plume is falling from your hat!
Yes, times and styles have changed, and years do pass—
Go back into your frame behind the glass.
You stare down at your shoes? I wonder why
You look so wistful—Girl who once was I—

SALT AS A PREVENTIVE OF FATIGUE.

SOME Italian military surgeons investigated the advisability of giving salt in the form of mildly salt water to troops starting out on long marches and to athletes who are to engage in endurance contests. The soldiers under observation marched ten to twelve miles a day. The athletes were runners participating in races of from two-thirds of a mile to about four miles.

The amount given was about thirty grains. The time was three-quarters of an hour before the start of the race or the beginning of the march. The method was to dissolve the salt in enough water to give to it a very faint salty taste. The water was made cool and appealing. It was found that the men who drank this salt water lost less weight, sweat less, and had more endurance than those who had not taken it.

In a hard prize fight each contestant will lose ten or more pounds. Some of this loss is due to loss of blood, sugar, fat, and broken down body cells, but the great bulk of it is water. With the water there goes a moderate amount of salt. During the course of the contest a gallon or more of sweat is secreted and each gallon weighs a little more than eight pounds.

Between rounds the seconds permit a contestant to swallow some water, but the intake is far below the amount that pours out as sweat. Besides the water lost by sweating there is a moderate vaporization through the lungs, and some is lost by other excretions. Therefore, at the end of a hard fight the tissues of the contestant are far too dry—so dry he cannot function well—and he is below normal in his blood sugar, his salt, and in some other essentials.

In view of this, the drying out process to which fighters are subjected during the forty-eight hours before the fight may be carried too far—probably is carried too far.

This, which is true of prize fighters, is true of wrestlers, handball players, tennis players, and all who engage in endurance contests, such as long distance runners. Perhaps this is, in part, the explanation of the slight albuminuria several times observed in athletes who have just completed endurance contests.

I presume the theory is that a little extra salt, taken about an hour in advance of the march or run, tends to hold the water in the tissues and thus to prevent excessive drying out.

LEG ULCERS.

C. J. S., M. D., writes: I have lately treated two cases of leg ulcer that were treated in the old way for years—one for eight years and the other for five. Both healed over entirely in three months with the new method.

Dr. McPheeters claims that the patient should not be in bed; that walking increases the flow of blood to and from the ulcer and in that way promotes granulation. The method we have used is to apply any simple ointment on sterile gauze and place over that a sponge and wrap it snugly with an ordinary bandage. Then apply one of the several kinds of elastic bandage from the knee down, reasonably tight. The dressings are changed as needed—at first once or twice daily, later not so often. I like this way much better.

BEDBUGS.

I. E. H. writes: To get rid of bedbugs: After storing our goods once we became infested and tried corrosive sublimate and everything any one suggested. I sent to the United States department of agriculture for a booklet and it advised shutting up the house and leaving sulphur burning several hours. That is all that will kill the eggs. We did it and never had another bug. One must coat metal fixtures with vaseline and take silverware out before using the sulphur, otherwise it is blackened. One must be ready to run from the house when sulphur is put on the coals. We put fire coals in container, set on bricks in pan or tub of water, so as not to set house on fire, and sprinkled sulphur on coals.

PSYCHOLOGIC.

J. G. writes: You state that it is not true that a mother may mark her baby during the period of gestation and attempt to establish your claim by stating that "there is no anatomical connection by which mental shock in the mother could be transmitted to the body of her baby."

Very well! But I would like for you to explain this extraordinary phenomenon which, if there is any truth to be had from men who claim to have experienced it, is a fact. Why are some fathers, who are altogether dissociated from the body of the baby, sometimes required to spill their breakfasts in the early stages of pregnancy?

REPLY.

You would not call that a birthmark. I am sure you state a fact. That is, such cases are well authenticated. The cause is psychologic.

ACID STOMACH.

Mrs. E. M. B. writes: 1. Which foods should and which foods should not be eaten to correct acid stomach?

2. What medicine, if any, should I take to help correct this acid condition?

3. I have ulcers in my mouth often. Does this condition of my stomach cause them?

4. Is a teaspoonful of soda taken in water beneficial in this case?

REPLY.

1. Eat plain, simple foods with very little seasoning. Avoid any food which appears to cause acidity. However, dieting for acidity is generally a waste of effort, since acidity is a symptom and the cause may not be in the stomach.

2. Try to find the cause and treat that.

3. It is possible. The cause is certainly in your diet or in your digestive tract.

4. I don't think so. Eating a little peppermint candy is better, or sucking a few mint tablets. If you need to take alkali you can find a better preparation than soda. If you need soda the method of taking it you ask about is not the right one.

IT IS NOT IMPORTANT.

E. R. writes: I am troubled with hydrocele, which developed from a rupture. It is about two years gone now and I wonder if it would be dangerous to wait any longer? My age is 22.

REPLY.

It would not be dangerous to wait. No malady is less important.

JUDGMENT NOTE.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some time ago an article appeared in THE TRIBUNE regarding notes. 1. In this article you gave the reason why a judgment note is safer and more desirable to hold than a regular note. A company I know of has issued notes to their employés for one week's salary. These notes were to be payable one year from date and bore interest at 6 per cent. They were signed by the firm, per the president, and were regular in every way. 2. However, some one has told me that in your article you state that such notes would no longer be "good" after a certain length of time had elapsed [two or three months]. 3. In case the firm went bankrupt. Is this true? 4. If so, why is the judgment note better? F. M. D.

1. It is easier to take judgment on a judgment note than on an ordinary note, but unless this step is taken there is no difference between the safety of the two instruments.

2. We do not remember the article to which you refer. The limitation period on either note is ten years, but if judgment is taken on either one the limitation period on the judgment is twenty years. As previously stated, it is easier to secure judgment on the judgment note.

3. Either form of note or a judgment secured on either note could be barred by bankruptcy.

4. See preceding answers. If you wish to ask further questions please send us the clipping to which you refer.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

IS A CITIZEN.

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—I was born in Czechoslovakia in 1912. My father and mother came to the United States when I was eighteen months old and are naturalized citizens. I came over in November, 1929. Am I a citizen? Z. B.

Yes. Section 2172 of the revised statutes of the United States reads as follows: "The children of persons who have been duly naturalized under any law of the United States, or who, previous to the passing of any law on that subject by the government of the United States, may have become citizens of any one of the states, under the laws thereof, being under the age of twenty-one years at the time of the naturalization of their parents, shall, if dwelling in the United States, be considered as citizens thereof; and the children of persons who now are, or have been, citizens of the United States, shall, though born out of the limits and jurisdiction of the United States, be considered as citizens thereof."

LEVY ON ASSETS.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Recently I was granted a judgment in court against a party who owes me money. He refuses to pay. 1. What can I do in such a case? 2. Can he be sent to jail for refusing to pay? L. D.

1. Levy on his assets or garnishee his wages in excess of exemptions.

2. A debtor cannot be sent to jail for an ordinary debt.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 26, 1916.

LONDON.—Simultaneous advances by the British and French to the north of the Somme yesterday brought them the greatest success of any single day since the "big drive" opened early in July. Combles, the town of vast strategic importance to the northwest of Peronne, is surrounded with the exception of a narrow "bottle neck" to the northeast. British troops, sweeping southeast, yesterday reached to within cannon range of the French, who are pushing northward east of Combles. Thus it appears certain that the fall of Combles with the death or surrender of the German troops remaining there is inevitable. The British gains carried them forward more than a mile on the entire six mile front from directly north of Combles to Martinpuich. During this advance they captured the villages of Morval and Les Boeufs, together with several lines of German trenches.

LONDON. — Serbian, Russian, French, and British troops have won victories in practically every sector of the Macedonian front, while the Rumanians have halted the Teutonic invasion of their northwestern frontier and have taken the offensive at Vulcan pass, according to official and unofficial reports reaching here. In the Dobrudja torrential rains continue and there has been only an exchange of artillery fire and small infantry gains, according to Bucharest dispatches, but Berlin chronicles a success for Von Mackensen south of the Cobadin-Topral-Sari line. The extent of the success is not reported.

LONDON.—At least six German Zeppelins last night made the second raid in three days on England. An official report issued by the war office early this morning said the raiders had attacked the northeastern and southern counties. Bombs were dropped in the northern counties and some casualties and damage are reported, but the details are unknown at this hour.

ROME.—The war office announced that the Italian troops had taken by storm another mountain top on the Trentino front, inflicting heavy losses on the Austrians.

WASHINGTON.—Brig. Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding the American expeditionary forces in Mexico, was promoted to major general, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Maj. Gen. Albert L. Mills.

NEW YORK.—With labor leaders continuing their efforts to bring about a general suspension of work as an aid to the striking car men in this city, members of the state legislature from the metropolis, at a meeting late today, decided to urge Gov. Whitman to convene the legislature in extraordinary session to deal with the strike situation.

CHICAGO.—Within the week the proposed increase in the cost of bread will be put in force in Chicago. Bakers in other big cities of the country are expected to follow in another week, and within a month the jump will be national, Chicago master bakers are predicting.

NEW YORK. — The New York Giants are the proud holders of the major league record for the winning of consecutive games. They equaled the mark of twenty set by Providence of the National league thirty-two years ago in beating St. Louis by a score of 1 to 0 in the opening game of a double header today. They established a new mark of twenty-one games by defeating St. Louis in the second game, 6 to 3.

WHAT HAPPENED AT FREEPORT.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—If there was any unfairness in connection with the Freeport prohibition debate it was in the letter contributed to this column on Sept. 20, not in THE TRIBUNE'S report of the debate. The writer of that letter apparently was sitting in the midst of the dry claque immediately in front of the speakers' stand. As is usual on such occasions, the drys monopolized the front seats. It was said that a special effort had been made by certain Freeport preachers to get their followers out for this open air debate. Except for this dry claque the crowd applauded Col. Reeves heartily from the beginning to the end of his talk. To be sure, Col. Reeves did not make an emotional appeal; his was an appeal to reason and judgment, whereas Upshaw delivered a revivalist harangue of the Billy Sunday type—"full of sound and fury, signifying nothing." Instead of discussing prohibition in his opening remarks he insisted that the audience join him in singing "America," which he wrongly called "the national anthem."

With reference to Col. Reeves' question during the rebuttal, his point was not to get a vote on prohibition, but merely to show the great difference in the public attitude toward the 18th amendment on the one hand and toward the other amendments on the other hand. At that time the amplifiers were no longer working. When Upshaw, immediately afterward, jumped to his feet and put the question for the retention of the 18th amendment few beyond the dry claque knew what he was talking about.

Paradoxically it is the drys today who are the real wets, inasmuch as they favor the continuance of a system intrenching in power a liquor traffic that is a far greater menace than that of the days before prohibition. We never have had prohibition in any other than a Pickwickian sense. J. V. N.

FINANCIAL PRACTICES.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Why all the hullabaloo about the list of preferred Insull stock buyers? Except that the complete list might show that some of our bankers are not giants of finance but are human beings like the rest of us poor mortals, this list is worthless. How about the list of those who, on Aug. 3, 1932, were allowed to purchase Commonwealth Edison company's first mortgage 5½ per cent gold bonds, series G, at 93? These bonds never sold for less than 95 in the open market and today sold for 103. It would also be interesting to know how much the Commonwealth Edison company received for the bonds.

E. H. S.

THE INSULL FLOTATION.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—I think THE TRIBUNE would be doing the public a service if they would point out that the favored list, such as that revealed in connection with Insull Utility Investment, is the usual practice when a stock is brought out. The object of it is not so much to enrich the favored ones as to protect the other buyers. If such a device were not used, big market operators and other speculators for the turn would simply dump thousands of shares back on the promoters, through short sales, and make it virtually impossible to get any bona fide distribution for any new stock issue. I might add further that I doubt if there's a single critic of Insull who would not have jumped at the chance to be on the backlog list at the time it was made up unless, perhaps, the bankers.

O'C.

HOOVER ENDORSED.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 22.—Maine went Democratic, but Wisconsin endorses the Hoover administration. The nomination of Chapple and Kohler cannot be construed as anything but that. This gives us something to think about.

JAMES G. BRADELL.

A WISCONSIN FORECAST.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 23.—In your editorial, "Wisconsin Invites La Follette Out," you assume that because Kohler and Chapple have been nominated they will just naturally be elected in November. As a matter of fact, their fight has just begun. An analysis of the situation should reveal this to you. This was a Republican factional fight that left sores that cannot be healed. La Follette voters will never be stalwart voters. Kohler has a chance of winning with his 92,000 plurality. But the Hoover millstone hangs around his neck. Not once during the campaign did the stalwarts mention Hoover's name. It was taboo. A conservative estimate of Kohler's prospects leaves the matter very much in doubt. Chapple cannot win. His meager plurality of less than 20,000 votes over Blaine insures the fact that F. Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac will be the next United States senator. Four years ago the Democrats polled only 17,000 votes. This year they polled over 150,000. Based on these figures and the innate psychology of over 300,000 La Follette voters, Mayor Schmedeman of Madison will be the next governor and Duffy the next senator. H. M. STEVENSON.

IN REPLY TO Q. E. D.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—One Q. E. D. complains in this morning's TRIBUNE about the Illinois Bell Telephone company. Here are the real facts: Telephone rates in Chicago are lower, not higher, than they were in 1922. Through boom time and depression the telephone company has not only been able to improve the standard of service but has reduced rates. All rates, including the installation fees, have been approved as reasonable by the Illinois commerce commission.

The telephone company provides employment for 25,000 people, all of whom have been retained in the face of declining revenues and business. There have been few discharged, and wage rates have been maintained at the 1929 level.

The telephone company has paid dividends to its stockholders and interest to its bondholders, but these people are certainly entitled to a fair return on their investment.

The telephone company is the largest taxpayer in Cook county. All its taxes are paid promptly. It is a liberal contributor to many charity funds. It is an excellent employer. In short, it is a fine citizen of this city and state.

HUGH WILSON.

HAVE YOU TRIED PETTING HIM?

Chicago, Aug. 11.—I have a tarantula [spider] well caged for the sole purpose of observation, but am disappointed because it sleeps during the days so that I believe it dead [which will satisfy me, because I'm tired of its actions] and at night it begins to prowl around, just when I wish to sleep, so that I cannot observe it at all in the way I wish.

I supply it daily with fresh water and weekly with a banana.

Are there other foods besides bananas? The reason I ask is because the banana I take out is untouched.

BUYING POWER HAILED AS BEST BUSINESS CURE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Present business trends indicate a period of convalescence, but a cure cannot be achieved until the nation's buying power has been restored, the American Federation of Labor declared today through its monthly survey of business.

The survey stated that the stock market had shown that its recent rise was not justified by actual business improvement. Signs of that improvement, it said, were coming slowly; the unemployment rise was checked in August, but 11,400,000 workers were still jobless.

"The gains taken together are too modest to rouse enthusiasm, but they do hint that since the end of financial panic we may have entered a period of convalescence," the survey declared. "Confidence is spreading, but we cannot expect convalescence to develop into a cure until consumer buying picks up.

Auto Production Cited.

"The chief obstacle to recovery in consumer buying is workers' income loss. Wage and small salaried workers with incomes under $5,000 a year buy 53 per cent of the goods and services consumed in our country in a year of active business. The effect of workers' income loss is told in the drastic cuts in auto production [for workers own and operate well over half the passenger cars], the telephones taken out, declines in home and apartment building because workers' families have been forced to double up, the losses in such consumer industries as textiles, clothing, house furnishings and other products which make up the stream of retail trade."

The time has come, the survey stated, to reverse the downward trend of wages and buying power. The object now, it asserted, should be not to reduce wages but to raise them.

Point to Oversupply.

"Only thus can we build up buying power and keep business rising," the labor publication declared. "The wage deflation theory arose in a scarcity economy where production could not supply enough for all. But times have changed; we are suffering from problems of oversupply and underconsumption; mass production industries cannot grow unless mass buying increases. At present, with prices beginning to rise, consuming power will decline unless wages rise too."

Five Counties Join Aurora Friendship Week Festival

Residents in five northern Illinois counties, Kane, Kendall, De Kalb, Will, and Du Page, will take part in a Friendship Week festival which will open today and continue until Saturday. The event is sponsored by the merchants' division of the Aurora Chamber of Commerce to stimulate business. There will be parades, carnivals and dances each evening, with a Venetian parade on the Fox river, hundreds of decorated boats taking part, next Saturday night.

DEMAND BETTER TROLLEY SERVICE OR 5 CENT FARE

More than 1,000 residents of the northwest side held a massmeeting yesterday in Riis park in protest against the delay of the Chicago surface lines in installing feeder buses.

State Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe presented a resolution demanding one feeder bus route on Addison street from Sheridan road to the city limits, and another route from the Edgewater Beach hotel westward on Ridge avenue to Peterson avenue, thence northwest on Caldwell avenue to Edison Park.

The resolution, which was unanimously adopted, demands a decision in the track extension cases now pending in Circuit court, on appeal from the Illinois commerce commission.

"If the Chicago Railway company, within thirty days, does not give the northwest side better service, we resolve that members of the city council direct the corporation counsel to appear before the commerce commission and demand a five cent fare," the resolution concludes.

FEAR JAPANESE PLANE CRASHED IN OCEAN STORM

Overdue Good Will Flyers Are Unreported.

TOKIO, Sept. 26 (Monday).—(AP)—The wireless station at Ochiishi continued throughout the night to cover the North Pacific for news of the Japanese good will plane en route to Nome, Alaska, but the efforts were fruitless. Fear was expressed the plane had not survived a week-end storm.

The plane hopped off at 5:35 a. m. Saturday from Samushiro, Japan, and the last word was at 10:16 a. m. the same day when the plane flashed it was 750 miles northeast of Tokio.

Out 60 Hours.

At 12:30 a. m. today [9:30 a. m. Sunday Chicago Standard time], the good will ship had been out nearly 60 hours. It had fuel for only 40 hours' flying.

The newspaper Hochi Shimbun, promoter of the flight, doubted whether the ship would ever be heard from.

Aboard were three aviators, Eiichiro Baba, pilot; Kiyoshi Honma, navigator; and Tomoyoshi Ishita, radio operator. Their ship was a single motored one. This was the third ill fated good will flight sponsored by the newspaper.

Appeals for Aid in Hunt.

Since the flying time limit for the plane had long since passed, the newspaper today appealed to the soviet and Japanese governments to search the islands rimming the North Pacific in the hope the flyers had been forced down on land somewhere.

A similar request was to be forwarded to Washington today through the United States embassy, although it was known here the American coast guard and other agencies were already on the lookout along the Aleutian islands and Alaskan coasts.

No Reports on Plane.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The coast guard cutter Northland, in Alaskan waters, radioed to the naval radio station here today that the Japanese good will flyers, bound from Tokio to Nome and San Francisco still were unreported.

INDIA TERRORISTS BOMB DANCERS; 8 EUROPEANS HURT

CALCUTTA, India, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Eight Europeans, including two British police officers, were wounded last night when Bengali terrorists tossed a bomb into the European institute at Baratali. A 20 year old Bengali girl was found slain, presumably by a police fusillade which followed upon the bomb tossing.

Police Inspector MacDonald, Police Sergt. Willis, and a woman identified as Mrs. Sullivan were among Europeans injured by the explosion. It occurred during a dance at the institute.

The slain girl, whose bullet pierced body was left behind by fleeing terrorists, was identified as Pritilata Waddedar, a young Indian intellectual and graduate of Bethune college in Calcutta. Her name came up recently in the investigation into the shooting of Capt. E. Cameron of the 8th Gurka rifles by terrorists on June 14. Her picture was found at the scene of the slaying between pages of a book. She had been questioned but later disappeared.

GANDHI CLOSE TO DEATH; ASKS HINDU PLEDGE

Warns India of Peril of "Untouchability."

Mrs. Motilal Nehru, widow of the late national congress leader, visited Gandhi. She burst into tears on perceiving his emaciation, but Gandhi slowly pointed to a seat beside him and tried his best to comfort her.

Expect British Acceptance.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Sept. 25.—There is every likelihood that Prime Minister MacDonald will announce his acceptance of yesterday's Hindu settlement with certain minor reservations tomorrow.

Realizing that Mahatma Gandhi is growing steadily weaker in Yeravda jail at Poona, the prime minister abandoned his week-end at Chequers and had long talks at 10 Downing street with Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of state for India, and the marquess of Lothian, undersecretary for India. Urgent telegraphic messages flashed back and forth between Mr. MacDonald and government officials in India throughout the afternoon. An official statement was issued saying: "Every effort has been made and is being made to avoid delay."

The full text of the Poona agreement reached London this morning. It is understood it convinced MacDonald that its main provisions contained nothing affecting the other Indian communities. The whole-hearted approval of the British government can be expected for the most important part of the agreement which gives great concessions to the untouchables in return for their acceptance of joint electorates.

May End Fast Today.

As this was the issue over which the mahatma started his "fast unto death," officials here are confident that their approval will enable him to end his hunger strike, probably tomorrow.

At the same time there are two features of the Hindu settlement which go beyond the terms of the British communal award. One is the number of seats allotted to the untouchables in the central legislature. The second is the establishment of a system of primary elections for the untouchables. On these two issues the government is expected to enter reservations neither approving nor disapproving. Whether this will satisfy the mahatma is regarded here as solely a matter for Gandhi's conscience. There is a strong hope and belief here that it will.

U. S. Will Seek New Liquor Indictment for Capone Gang

Preparations of evidence for the second indictment of Al Capone and some hundred others on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition act is almost completed, it was learned yesterday. The new indictment will probably be sought this week or the first of next week, the authorities here being spurred to haste by the new effort of the gang leader to win his freedom from Atlanta prison, where he is serving a ten year sentence for income tax fraud.

The first liquor conspiracy indictment against Capone and his men was returned in June, 1931. The gang leader was never tried on this indictment, his income tax trial taking precedence.

For several months special prohibition agents under the direction of Assistant United States Attorney Daniel Anderson have been going through voluminous records of the liquor traffic in the Chicago area. According to reports, their evidence is now complete and is rapidly being prepared for presentation.

A Threefold Purpose.

The new indictment will have a threefold purpose, according to federal officials. It will include all recent evidence bringing the indictment up to date so that any possible appeal to the statute of limitations, one of Capone's favorite defenses in court attacks, will be without avail. It will also include new members of the Capone syndicate. It will also do much, federal agents say, to preclude any attempt on the part of gangsters now in prison to win their freedom by parole.

According to United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, whose work in the income tax cases against the gangsters was largely responsible for their conviction, no effort will be made to return Capone to Chicago for trial on the liquor conspiracy charges. Keeping the indictment up to date, however, will permit the government to issue a stop order for any indicted gangster now in a state or federal prison and to bring them back here for trial as soon as they complete their present sentences.

Hope for Quick Action.

It is the government's hope that the new indictment will be returned before Capone's hearing in Atlanta on his present effort to win his freedom by a writ of habeas corpus based on the statute of limitations in income tax cases.

Attorneys for the gangster contend that his conviction on felony counts for the years 1925, 1926 and 1927, for which he is serving the ten year sentence, was illegal under the three year statute of limitations upheld by the United States Supreme court. The government contends the appeal is not timely and should have brought up in a demurrer to the income tax indictment.

If Capone should win the case he would be seized on a stop order and returned to Chicago for prosecution on the liquor conspiracy indictment, federal officials said. In addition he would have to serve out a county jail sentence on two misdemeanor counts in the income tax indictment. He was sentenced to a year on each misdemeanor count, one of the years to run concurrently with the ten year sentence on the felony counts.

Michigan Man Kills Self; Leaves Note to His Wife

Roscommon, Mich., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Charles Malone, 45, shot himself through the head with a Winchester rifle in his cabin on the Ausable river. A note on the door to his wife, Mae, read as follows:

"Don't go inside unless some one is with you. I still love you. You did not think I would do this but I did."

Mrs. Malone said her husband had threatened to kill himself several times. Mr. and Mrs. Malone were well known in this vicinity, having been formerly caretakers of the Underhill club, at Lovells, the Red Dog on the Ausable which is owned by prominent Chicago parties.

DEPOSED RECTOR ACTS TO SPARE CLERGYMEN PAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The Rev. Harold F. Davidson, deposed as rector of Stiffkey because of alleged immoral relations with girls, made himself conspicuous again today. He charged that the London Pavilion theater exhibited a poster showing a clergyman leaning out of a theater box which he declared many people considered a caricature of himself.

The Rev. Mr. Davidson therefore instructed his solicitors to issue a writ claiming damages for libel. In a letter to the manager of the theater the pastor complained that it was "extremely offensive" and in "bad taste."

"I am determined to stop the ministers of the church to which I belong from being pained through exploitation of my unfortunate notoriety," he said. "I feel perfectly certain that had it not been for my case such advertisements as this would have no value."

BASEL, Switzerland, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Sixteen balloons, representing eight nations, including the United States, were released in stormy weather today to begin the Gordon Bennett balloon cup race.

A strong north wind carried them away from the Alps, some heading toward Belgium.

W. T. Van Orman, seeking his third straight victory in the Goodyear VIII., was the thirteenth to take off. The United States navy bag, which won the American National Balloon race last year, immediately preceded the Van Orman balloon in the air. Both were flying the stars and stripes.

R. J. Blair accompanied Van Orman. Lieutenant Commander E. G. W. Settle and Wilfred Bushnell were in the navy bag.

German First in Air.

The German entry, Deutschland, was the first balloon released, followed by L'Aventure, a French balloon. Germany, France, and Switzerland had three entries each; Poland two, and Spain, Austria, and Belgium one each.

Ernest Demuyter, who is considered Van Orman's greatest rival, was in the air a quarter of an hour before the American in the Belgian balloon Belgica.

All balloons carried mail to be posted at the nearest points to wherever they land. Pilots will be advised of weather conditions by radio.

List of Entries.

Other entries and personnel follow:

Germany — Barmen, Otto Bertram. Alexander Dapl; Stadt Essen, Ferdinand Eimermacher, Dr. Hugo Kaulen; Deutschland, Erich Leimkugel, Richard Schuetze.

France—Lafayette, Georges Blanchet; L'Aventure, Marius Marquant, Georges Renollaud; Petit Mousse, Georges Ravaine, M. Speiss.

Austria—Ernst Brandenburg, Capt. Baron de Etthofen, Lieut. Col. F. Mannsbarth.

Poland—Polonia, Fomaski Wladislaw, Janusz Antoni; Gdynia, Hynek Franciszek, Burzynski Zbignien.

Switzerland—Zurich, Lieut. Col. Valo Gerber, Dr. Erick Tilgencamp; Victor de Beauclair, Capt. Huber, Lieut. Lochinger; Basel, Dr. A. Van Baerls, Dr. E. Dietschi.

Spain—14 de April, Capt. Antonio Nunez, Lieut. Francisco Carrasco.

FLYING TEACHERS IN STATE MUST PASS NEW EXAMS

A new rule is to be instituted by the Illinois aeronautics commission tomorrow under which all flying and ground instructors in the state will be required to take written examinations and flying tests in order to remain in business. The written examinations will be given in Chicago, Springfield, and East St. Louis. The flight tests will be conducted at those points later.

The regulation covers a field that has not been as completely regulated by the federal government through the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce. The federal regulations provide that no pilot shall instruct for hire unless he holds a transport license, and that no pilot shall instruct under any circumstances unless he holds a limited commercial license. The state's new regulation sets up a new measuring stick.

Announcement of the new rule by Maj. Reed G. Landis, chairman of the commission, has caused considerable criticism by flying instructors around Chicago. They feel that the regulation itself is unnecessary and that the $25 annual fee to be charged all flying schools is an imposition. Maj. Landis has replied that the measure is designed for the protection of the public against incompetent instructors.

In Chicago the written tests will be given at the Curtiss Wright ground school, 1338 South Michigan avenue, and the flight tests at Curtiss-Reynolds airport in Glen View.

KING OF ITALY SAILS FOR AFRICA TO 'BUILD EMPIRE'

Backs Fascist Policy for Colonial Expansion.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 25.—King Victor Emmanuel III., accompanied by Senator Emilio de Bono, minister of colonies, embarked on the royal yacht Savoia tonight from Naples. The Italian ruler set out to visit the colony of Eritrea, on the Red sea, to put the monarchy solidly behind Premier Mussolini's policy of colonial expansion.

KING VICTOR EMMANUEL. [Acme Photo.]

It was one of the king's rare departures from Italy within the last ten years and his first trip east of Suez. Eritrea this year is celebrating its 50th anniversary as an Italian colony. The king will inaugurate a roadway and monument and review troops, spending about a week in Eritrea.

Vigorous Colonial Policy.

As indicated in a speech by Dino Grandi, then foreign minister, before the senate last spring, Italy is pursuing a vigorous policy of development and expansion in Africa. She has interests in the development of relations with Abyssinia, which borders Eritrea. Eritrea highways connect Abyssinia with the sea.

The Fascist press expounds the idea that Rome may find in Somaliland and Eritrea and other African colonies a basis for the empire which it is seeking to reëstablish in the Mediterranean and one similar to that of ancient Rome.

Wants Full Share.

Anyway, the king's visit emphasizes the determination to grab a full share of the black continent in any shifting of the present ownership which might result in a redistribution of the mandates over the former German and Turkish territories set up by the peace treaties.

There also have been reports that the Italian monarchy might be changed to an empire.

STUDENTS CALL NEW ELECTION AT U. OF ILLINOIS

Charge Irregularities in Class Vote.

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Due to irregularities in an election held last Friday to name class presidents at the University of Illinois, the Illinois union, which had charge of the election has ordered another election to be held Monday afternoon to name a president for the senior class.

At the eletion Friday, I. N. Thompson, Lacon, Ill., was named president of the senior class; S. P. Shoemaker, Indianapolis, Ind., the junior class; and D. S. Rocke, Logansport, Ind., the sophomore class. All are members of the old line party. Lowell Blanchard, Palmer, Ill., opposed Thompson for the senior class leadership and was a member of the "Mules" party.

Following a checkup of the ballots by C. R. Frederick, assistant dean of men for student affairs, he made the following statement:

"A thorough audit undertaken in my office of ballots used in Friday's class elections indicates certain definite irregularities in the junior and senior class balloting.

"Our check up leads us to believe that some time during the noon hour Friday, a small number of junior and senior ballots were stolen from the supply in the Illinois union office, the initials of the checking clerk forged, and the ballots voted. This fraudulent voting was not discovered in the count made Friday evening by representatives of both parties."

MRS. J. H. DIRKS, 87, DIES; MOTHER OF CARTOONIST

Mrs. Dirks died late Saturday night in her home at 1 East 114th street.

Old age and shock of the death of her husband, John H. Dirks, 90 years old, who died in Phillips, Wis., only last Monday, contributed to her passing, the family said. Mrs. Dirks was born at Meldorf, Germany, and came to Chicago 48 years ago.

Surviving Mrs. Dirks besides Rudolph are seven other children, eighteen grandchildren, and eleven great grandchildren. The children are Mrs. John Boe, Mrs. Henry von Meeteren, Mrs. Doris Grundhofer, Mrs. Henry Buehling, Mrs. La Bert St. Clair, and Helen and Alfred C. Dirks.

16 HURT AS AUTO STRIKES 6 CARS; DRIVER UNHURT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 25.—Sixteen persons were injured, five seriously, in an extraordinary automobile accident on the Paris-Orleans road tonight.

Veering to the left to pass a car ahead while moving at more than fifty miles an hour, the driver of a large automobile apparently did not see the vehicles coming in an opposite direction. One after the other five automobiles and two motorcycles were struck and overturned by the speeding machine, which finally was demolished by a sixth car, which was crushed against a tree.

The driver responsible for the accident was not hurt, but disappeared uttering demented cries, while rescuers worked for several hours removing the victims from the wreckage.

SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

War Fever Grips Japanese; See Clash with U. S. Near

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 25.—Public opinion in Japan, from her masses to her political leaders, today regards the status of relations with the United States as pointing inevitably and conclusively to war, probably within a few months.

This statement undoubtedly sounds preposterous to Americans, for rare is the American correspondent in Japan who realizes its truth. However, it is indubitably the feeling of the vast majority of Japanese people.

"Stimson Doctrine" Versus Fact.

According to political experts, each day brings nearer the collision between the theoretical "Stimson doctrine," which refuses to recognize Manchuria as other than under Chinese sovereignty, and the hard fact that Japan has leaped into the saddle in Manchuria and intends to stick there, even if it means war.

(Japan on Sept. 15 recognized the Manchurian state of Manchukuo as independent and made of it a virtual protectorate by a guaranty of defense in case of invasion. Last Thursday Manchukuo took what is considered a significant step toward consolidating Japan's position with an edict declaring that the rights and interests of nations which have not granted recognition within six months will be in abeyance.)

The combination of American apathy toward and lack of knowledge of Japanese feeling and the emotional war fever which that feeling has reached has tended to produce a dangerous situation, it is held.

The war literature which has been breaking into newspapers and magazines regularly for the last year and warlike statements by Japan's army and navy chiefs have reached the Japanese in every class of society—in cities and on farms. People talk openly of war with America. They expect it and apparently are ready and willing to go through with it. The foundation has been well laid.

How Japanese Reason.

The Japanese reasoning has been somewhat along these lines:

1—The United States, bent on economic aggrandizement in the far east [the Japanese produce Secretary of State Stimson's frequent assertions that Japan's conquest of Manchuria will not be recognized as evidence], is the only obstacle to Japan's development and the fulfillment of her national destiny.

2—The United States, Japan feels, again pointing to Secretary Stimson's utterances, will stake its life on a defense of the principles involved in the Kellogg anti-war pact and the nine power treaty of 1922 establishing China's boundaries as inviolate.

3—Japan, however, and public opinion is solidly behind her leaders on this point, will fight before she relinquishes her hold on Manchuria.

Japan holds that to attain an amicable solution to the United States either must forget its principles as enunciated in the Stimson policy, and recognize Manchukuo or Japan must get out. Since either action is regarded as unlikely, was, Japan reasons, must follow.

Naval Chiefs Ready.

Here the Japanese naval leaders take the spotlight. War being inevitable, they argue, now is the time to tackle America. The American fleet, they maintain, today is superior to that of Japan only on paper, but by 1936, they point out, America will be able to show a considerable margin of superiority.

The Japanese have justified the retention of their Manchurian position in their war literature by a "turn-about-is-fair play" argument. In the 18th and 19th centuries, they point out, the western nations expanded as they pleased. But now that Japan, with a late start, is expanding, the western peoples hypocritically have prepared treaties and pacts preventing Japan from expanding. Japan asks: could anything be more unfair?

Old Feudal Obsession.

Another more indirect, but perhaps more fundamental, reason advanced for the tense feeling among the Japanese is that they are still unable to rid themselves of the old feudal obsession that every one and everything is under suspicion. For three centuries, up to the restoration 70 years ago in the Tokugawa era, society as well as government was based on suspicion.

The country, during the 300 years of the Tokugawa régime, was closed to all foreign countries, so great was the suspicion of the designs of foreigners.

That this "suspicion complex" still clings to the Japanese is exemplified by several incidents of the last year, notably the arrest of Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn, American aviators on a round-the-world flight, for flying without a permit over Japanese territory, and the more recent excitement and American resentment aroused when a branch of the National City Bank of New York in Japan attempted to take pictures of public buildings in the principal Japanese and Manchurian cities.

This suspicion, too, is regarded as at the bottom of the feeling that the United States is bent on expanding its own economic interests in the far east at the expense of Japan.

BRITISH STEAMER USES OFFICERS AS DECKHANDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 25.—Carrying a full deck complement of certified officers, the British steamer Moveria the first ship so manned to leave the port of Glasgow, is in Victoria after a passage of 30 days from the Clyde.

The Donaldson line, it was learned, is testing out a new plan of employing certified officers to take the place of the regular and able seamen on deck. It is a policy that is being more or less generally followed through the British mercantile marine service.

British seamen as well as the seamen of other countries have been hit by the world depression. When the ordinary seaman loses his job in Britain he goes on the "dole." When certified officers lose their posts they are thrown upon their own resources.

Robbery Suspect Escapes from Evanston Police Car

Policemen Edward Krogman and George Gunnerson of Evanston arrested a Negro at Grant street and Wesley avenue in the suburb last night when they found him loitering in a neighborhood where several burglaries have been committed recently. The prisoner jumped out of the policemen's car and escaped, although they fired a number of shots at him.

JEALOUSY SEEN IN SLAYING OF 2 AT CHURCH DOOR

Expect Wounded Child to Recover.

Leesville, La., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Vernon parish authorities said today they believed a gun fight at a rural revival service near here last night in which two men were killed and a sleeping child was wounded was caused by long standing jealousy between two farm youths over a girl.

Authorities also were working on the theory the slayings may have been an outbreak of a feud which officers said had existed in the Whiskachitta community where the church is situated, for 30 years.

Farm Youths Victims.

Lee Johnson, 20, and Jesse Perkins, 22, both farmers, were shot and killed as the shooting started outside the church door and were carried into the church where preaching was in progress. The 8 year old son of Douglas Carroll, another farmer, sleeping in a rear pew, was struck in the head by a bullet, but is expected to recover.

Several other members of the congregation were bruised in the rush for the exits.

Claims Self-Defense.

An hour after the shooting Everett Wisby, 25, surrendered to Sheriff D. F. Turner, who quoted him as saying he shot Johnson and Perkins in self-defense. Bystanders reported the three met outside the revival service and quarreled. The sheriff said Wisby and Johnson had been at odds because of attentions paid to the same girl.

Relatives of both Johnson and Wisby have been arrested as suspects in at least four slayings which have occurred in the two families, Deputy Sheriff H. L. Barrington said. The affray Saturday increased to six the number of members of the families who have died by gunfire in the last few years.

You Can Lose Fat a Pound a Day on a Full Stomach this way

Do Just These Two Simple Things—Fat Melts Away

Science has made important discoveries in fat reduction. The average fat person can now rip off a pound a day—four to seven pounds every week!—on a full stomach, with never a hungry moment. Thus it is foolish to stay fat.

This is what you do: Take a teaspoonful ordinary Jad salts in a glass of water a half hour before breakfast every morning. This reduces moisture-weight instantly. Also cleanses the system of the waste matter and excess toxins that most fat people have, and banishes puffiness and bloat.

Then do this about eating: FILL YOUR STOMACH—eat your fill—of lean meats, vegetables like spinach, cauliflower, cabbage, tomatoes, etc., and lots of salads. Eat a lot. Eat all you can hold. Don't go hungry a minute! Cut down on fats, starches and desserts. Eat any fruit for dessert.

That's all you do. Fat seems to melt away. The coarse lines of overweight give way to the refined ones of tenderness. You lose as much as a pound a day. You feel better than for years. For in this treatment you achieve two important results. The Jad Salts clear your system of toxins. *The diet takes off fat with food that turns into energy instead of weight.

If you're tired of being embarrassed by fat, try this way. You'll be glad that you did. You can get Jad Salts at any drug store.

*Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work.

TWO AGED MEN KILLED BY AUTOS IN TWO SUBURBS

Two elderly men were fatally injured by automobiles in outlying communities last night. George Schmidt, 75 years old, of Lemont, was killed in Lemont by an automobile driven by Miss Martha Ludwig, 25, also of Lemont, when he stepped back to avoid another car. William Remick, 78 years old, of 7313 Oakwood avenue, Lyons, was fatally injured in Route 4, near the Des Plaines river bridge, in Lyons, when he was run down by a car driven by Miles Hodous, 21, of Westmont. He died in the Berwyn hospital. Hodous was released on bond. These deaths raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 840.

RUSSIA HONORS GORKY; AUTHOR GUEST AT FETE

MOSCOW, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Soviet Russia today honored one of its most distinguished "comrades" in commemorating the fortieth anniversary of the literary activity of Maxim Gorky. The author himself was the guest of honor in a jubilee meeting held in the Trade Union house here. All cultural and artistic institutions coöperated to make the observance nationwide.

Theaters throughout the country, including movie houses, showed productions based on his works, and special editions of his editorial writings were issued. The establishment of the soviet union's highest literary institute, named the Gorky institute, was announced, and Gorky scholarships were opened in various institutions of higher learning.

Gorky's real name is Aleksei Maksimovich Pyeshkov and he is 64 years old. All newspaper hailed him as "the greatest revolutionary writer of our day." Josef Stalin, Russia's dictator, said: "From all my soul I congratulate you and shake your hand and wish you a long life and work for the joy of the workers' class and for the fear of the enemies of the workers' class."

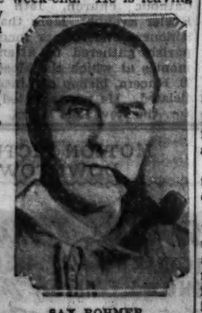
Sax Rohmer Is Surprise to Book Critic

English Author Describes "Production Plan."

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

SAX ROHMER, creator of one of the most "insidious" characters in all of mystery story history, "The Insidious Dr. Fu Manchu," arrived in Chicago Saturday morning to spend the week-end. He is leaving tomorrow morning, on a bee line for London after having spent two days in New York on the way out. The world is getting smaller day by day when week-end jaunts of that magnitude are just part of the day's amusement.



SAX ROHMER.

Such a shock as I had when I met Mr. Rohmer! I seemed to remember that Dr. Fu Manchu was one of the characters upon whom I cut my eye teeth in the mystery line, and oddly enough every one to whom I mentioned the fact that he was arriving had the same notion. Imagine having a well set up man with the wiry English frame and the supple English youth of an indeterminate age confront one when Santa Claus was one's expectation.

Twenty-three books published in America and a memory of countless magazine tales seemed assurance enough of white whiskers, and the fact that the English "Who's Who" totally disregarded his age spoke well for a rubber-tipped cane and a bended back. "Far from Fu Manchu's being hoary," he said, "he appeared for the first time in 1913 in England and 1914 in America, but for some strange reason every one everywhere I go seems to think that they read him in school from thirty to fifty odd years ago."

"But you had been writing long before that," I said, to bolster up my theory.

"Only occasional newspaper articles. I had a job on a weekly paper, when I kept it. But I was forever getting on to a boat and going somewhere instead of sticking to my job. Fleet street didn't seem to offer me a great deal. I suppose because I knew I would never be able to be tied down. Tramp steamers to the Orient were my line." "And that, of course, is where you got the idea for the Fu Manchu stories?" I interposed.

"That is where," he answered. "But Fu Manchu wasn't my first story although it was my first book. I wrote about six short stories before I did Fu Manchu, and I sold every one of them almost at once. As a matter of fact I didn't write a second until I had sold the first, nor a third until the second was sold. And there is something very amusing about that first story. It was about a robbery in the British museum. I had my thief disguise himself as a mummy, that is, wrap himself in mummy clothes under a shabby old black prince Albert. He went into the museum with the visitors, then, knowing that everything was kept in sarcophagi in the basement until it was passed on by the board of the museum, he sneaked into one of the sarcophagi and doubled as a mummy. When the guards made their rounds he was perfectly safe. In the hour between those rounds he sneaked upstairs, took from his coat pocket a vase which he had copied meticulously from the original, stole the original, substituting the fake, went back to his hiding place and with the first visitors in the morning walked out, a shabby little man who attracted no notice from any one.

"That story appeared in Pearson's Magazine and caused no great stir. But six months later a Frenchman did exactly the same thing in the Louvre, stole a very valuable gold vase and by the mischance of leaving a bit too early in the morning, was caught. His effects were searched and a copy of Pearson's Magazine was found among them. He confessed that when he had read the story it sounded so sensible and so logical a way to rob a museum that he had tried it himself."

"Well, you must confess," I said, "that if you aren't it, you might be suspected of at least seventy-seven with the amount of work you do. Perhaps you're a factory, though. I notice that your letter heads have Sax Rohmer, Inc. on them."

"I am incorporated, but I am the whole working branch of the corporation. I have tried, heaven knows often enough to find somebody to fill in the padding, to do the kind of thing that Dumas had done for him and that Edgar Wallace did, but I have never found one human being, man or woman, who has been able to write a paragraph in my copy, however unimportant, that didn't sound like patchwork. So I am forced to do every bit of my own writing."

"You mean your own dictating, don't you?" I asked. "I can't believe that you write, actually write, two novels a year by hand, when you were a newspaper man trained to the typewriter."

"Every bit of it by pencil. I was a newspaper man long enough to hate the look and feel of a typewriter. I used to run one of those little machines and it was fine for journalism but I couldn't stand it for anything else. Sometimes I dictate to a dictagraph, just some unimportant part of a book, but I invariably write everything over entirely, in that case, use the typed script merely as guide lines."

"Office hours, I suppose, then," I suggested.

"I never write during the day. Every night, invariably, I begin to work at eleven o'clock and I usually work until three."

And then we talked about Chicago. It's his first visit here, although he knows New York well, and he said he was more interested in meeting some of his fellow craftsmen than the advertised crackmen of the town. And so it has been arranged that tonight he is to meet a few of them.

Mr. Rohmer's real name is Arthur Sarsfield Ward.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

— BY — H · A · RIPLEY

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clue necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE SHERIFF GETS A CLUE.

With a puzzled look Prof. Fordney sat down on the smooth stump of the recently felled tree, removed his hat, wiped the perspiration from his forehead and watched Sheriff Jordan and his deputy.

Parting the leafy branches of the tree, Jordan stared down at the body of a man pinned beneath it.

"Why, it's Homer!" he explained. "An old timer and an experienced woodman. That's the second such accident in a year! The branches must have caught on another tree as it fell, swinging it around and catching him before he could escape. Give me a hand and we'll get him out of here!"

After peering up at the surrounding trees, Fordney blinked from the bright sunlight.

"By the appearance of the chips, the jagged hole in the butt of the tree and the leaves, I'd say he's been dead about two days," he remarked. There was a look of understanding as he again stared up at the branches of a nearby tree. The sheriff interrupted his musing by saying, "His watch stopped at 7:18. We don't know whether it was morning or evening, though."

"Morning, probably," commented Fordney. "The food in his lunch box hasn't been touched."

"With his years of experience, I don't understand such an accident," pondered Jordan.

"Accident? More likely murder," Fordney replied, once more looking up at the branches.

"Is the answer up there?" asked the surprised Jordan, following his gaze.

"No. The clue is right in front of you, sheriff!"

Official Autumn Style Season Opens in City's Shops Today

Now Is Time to Look for New Combinations of Color, New Sleeves and New Fabrics.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

OFFICIALLY, at last, one of the most popular hunting seasons is now open . . . hordes of clothes-hunting hounds are crowding around in all the shops, seriously intent upon finding all the newest news of fall and winter fashions. For the next few days clothes-conscious shoppers will forget practically everything else and wander blissfully in a daze dreaming about the most enthralling thing in their world—a new and fashionable wardrobe.

Every shop is filled with exciting new things . . . formal and not so formal. Fashion parades, with tall, slender mannequins gliding among the crowds of rather breathlessly silent spectators, whet the already sharp longing for something new and different.

Now is the time to shop . . . to look for new colors, new combination of colors, new silhouettes, new sleeves, and new fabrics. You will see spectacular French originals and even better American adaptations . . . you will see sleeves that will make you gasp . . . huge affairs with enough material in each sleeve to make a dress. You will see high necklines, square and round; miles of buttons, white bib collars, capes, and rib-hugging waistlines wherever you shop. . . . You will see demure Victorian silhouettes, with all the gentle charm of the 80's . . . the sort of a simple silhouette that starts with a tiny hat trimmed with ostrich tips . . . a frock of thin wool called by the quaint old-fashioned name "merino," a frock buttoned snugly over the chest to a high throatline and then accented by the smallest and most modest of narrow white collars. Sleeves are copied faithfully from the old time leg-o-mutton models. And then a gay little cape or pelerino of fur to sustain the demurely dangerous air of gayety.

Home going shoppers with a far-away look in their eyes will be thinking about the hats that topped every daytime and street ensemble . . . the very small creations that are made to perch lightly on the new flat coiffures, well away from the heaping shoulder festoons of fur that swathe the newest suit and coat shoulders. Hats that are trimmed, thank somebody, with feathers, ribbon bows, wings, quills and flowers, for the untrimmed hat languishes this season.

While hats are so designed as to expose a good half of the head, and that exposure in turn exposed to wind and weather, the coat makers have designed knockout looking cloth coats with lavishly fur trimmed collars that are effective high shields for scantily covered heads. These fur collars frame the face most flatteringly, they stand high above the top of the head and do everything possible to be decorative and warmly practical.

The greatest difference between the clothes of this year and last seems to be in the texture of the fabrics . . . suits and coats are fashioned of suede-like materials, and most of the thin woolens for street and daytime wear also feature this new suave smoothness.

Crinkled silk crepes, thick deep wrinkled effects that look like the old-fashioned mourning crepes are used for smart afternoon and evening dresses. And all kinds and colors and naps of velvet are good and grandly picturesque for afternoon as well as evening parade, with dull-sheens, such as chiffon broadcloth and other smooth dull fabrics, climbing high in popular feminine favor.

THE STAGE

Ina Claire's recently announced decision to return to the stage is confirmed by an announcement from the producing firm of Whitaker Ray and Margaret Hewes, who have engaged her for the central rôle in a drama called "Nine Pine Street." This piece, written by William Miles and Donald Blackwell, deals with the Lizzie Borden murder case, a sanguinary mystery that perplexed New England in the 1890s. It was staged experimentally in Provincetown, Mass., last summer.

Miss Claire left the stage three years ago to go to Hollywood, where she married and divorced John Gilbert, and participated in several cinema productions. Her last picture was "The Greeks Had a Word for It."

Jane Cowl will begin a tour in "The Man with a Load of Mischief," in Albany, N. Y., tonight. Therefore, she may be considered as a possibility for the Chicago season.

Katharine Cornell will open her new season with "The Rape of Lucrece" by André Obey, instead of Sidney Howard's "Alien Corn." She has postponed the latter because she is unable to obtain certain players needed in the cast. She is still vacationing in the Bavarian Alps, but expects to return to New York late in October.

Rowland Stebbins, producer of "The Green Pastures," has secured a play by John L. Balderstone and J. E. Hoare for immediate production. Mr. Balderstone is best known as the author of "Berkeley Square." C. C.

Virginia Skinkle Engagement to Sydney H. Heap Announced

Another Interesting Betrothal Is That of Juliet Earle of Baltimore to Arthur D. Welton Jr.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO engagements are this morning's interesting social news, that of Miss Virginia Randolph Skinkle to Sydney Heyworth Heap, and of Miss Juliet Earle of Baltimore to Arthur Dorman Welton Jr., of Chicago.

The popular and pretty Virginia Skinkle's engagement to the attractive young Englishman who has been living in Chicago for the last four years is being announced by her mother, Mrs. George E. Skinkle of 1210 Astor street.

Miss Skinkle went to the Latin school here and then spent a year abroad. She never made a formal debut but she is a member of the Junior league and of the Service club and is a great favorite with the younger set. She has done quite a bit of writing for local magazines, chatty society notes that are cleverly done and interesting.

Mr. Heap is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney R. Heap of Lemmington Hall, Church Stoke, Montgomeryshire, England. He was educated at Eton and Cambridge, taking his degree of Bachelor of Economics at the latter place. He came to Chicago to handle his mother's interests after the death of his grandmother, Mrs. Julia Heyworth. He and Miss Skinkle expect to be married in November—the date will be set after Miss Skinkle's uncle, Robert John Randolph of Washington arrives for a visit the end of this week—and they will go to England to spend Christmas with Mr. Heap's parents. Their future plans are indefinite but Mrs. Skinkle is hoping they will spend at least part of every year in Chicago, as do all the young couple's friends, of course.

Miss Juliet Gover Streett Earle's engagement to Arthur Dorman Welton Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Welton of 45 Bellevue place, was announced Saturday night by her father, Swepson Earle, at a dinner aboard his yacht, Semla. Miss Earle made her debut in Baltimore in 1927—all Baltimore girls make their debuts at the Bachelors Cotillions—and is a member of the Junior league. Mr. Welton is a graduate of Harvard college and Harvard Law school and is practicing law in Chicago now. He was in Baltimore for the announcement party Saturday night. No date for the wedding has been set.

Riding Club Horse Show.

The Indian Hill Riding club is getting ready for its tenth annual horse show to be held on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 8 and 9, on the grounds of the Londmeadow Hunt club at Happ and Hibbard roads in Winnetka. This will be the first time the show has been held on two days but this year there are to be classes for children at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning with events for adults that afternoon, starting at 2, and again Sunday afternoon at the same time.

The Indian Hill club's show each year is an informal, neighborly sort of an affair and one of great interest to Winnetkans and their neighbors. Clark Lawrence is chairman of the horse show committee, the other members of which are Mrs. William B. McIlvaine Jr., Ernest Hicks, Frank Ketcham, Maj. Roy D. Nordheimer, and Donald F. McPherson.

John P. Porter is to be host at a dinner dance tonight at the Saddle and Cycle club for Miss Elinor Durbin who is to be married to Mr. Porter's brother, S. Prentice Porter, tomorrow afternoon. The service is to be read by the Rev. Dudley Stark in the chapel of St. Chrysostom's church at 4:30 o'clock in the presence of the families and a very few friends, after which there will be a small reception at the residence of Miss Durbin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher M. Durbin of 1449 Astor street.

The Glenview Golf club has announcements out for its annual harvest home dinner and dance on Saturday, Oct. 1. The clubhouse will be partially closed for the winter on Nov. 1.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Neil is mystified by the peculiarities of Miss Bundy, who is broken in health and mentally disturbed. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff. He and his wife, a common, illiterate couple, occupy the lodge, and hold a strange influence over Caroline. Natasha Andrejev, Caroline's half Russian niece, beautiful but fiery tempered, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline puts Neil in charge of the library in the daytime, cautioning him to admit no one. She tells him her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Neil has a friend, Giles Glaborne, vicar of a nearby parish, who lives with his sister, Rachel. Neil has lunch in Bath with Rachel and Tasha. He sees Tasha hold a secret meeting with a strange man and later sees her pay the stranger's bill in the tearoom. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

THE CHEMIST'S PHIAL.

On the second evening when Neil returned the keys, he surprised Miss Bundy going over a mass of loose foolscap sheets, which she quickly began stuffing into the alligator bag, locking the latter with the tiny key attached to her gold chain. In spite of her haste to conceal the scattered pages, Neil recognized on those nearest him the characteristic hieroglyphics of her father's writing, waving and indistinct, like the effort of extreme age.

If fate could have granted him the remotest insight into the horrors which were going to take place before he again set eyes on these scribbled sheets, he would have snatched them from the stumpy hands then and there, read them and thrown them into the fire. Unluckily, no such premotion darkened his mind. Instead, pretending to notice nothing, he congratulated his hostess on her speedy recovery.

"Yes, yes, I'm quite well," she replied somewhat crossly. "Not that I was ever ill. I slipped and struck my head, that was all. If Graves were anything but and old fuss pot I'd be up and about."

Her bravado did not deceive him. It was not easy to say how he knew she was secretly alarmed about herself. The look in her eyes told him this. She handed him a note she had ready, sealed and directed to Alfred Tilbury. Would he take it down to the lodge for her?

He hoped to slip out unnoticed, but already she had turned, seen him, and drawn in her breath in dismay.

"If no one is there just open the door and lay it on the table. I should like Tilbury to get it the moment he comes in."

He knew she had chosen him as emissary because she dreaded the servants' gossip. At the same time he was struck by her avoidance of his eye, and equally by her unwillingness to let a day go by without communicating with her favorites.

The lodge was empty, the small living room, for all its gay cretonnes, in a state of squalid untidiness. Tilbury's camera occupied a large space, and beside it was a dusty safe, stacked up with account books and bottled stout. The table was such a clutter of unwashed tea things, socks to be darned, gramophone records and copies of "Home Chat," that Neil had to clear a corner before setting down the note. In so doing he picked up a three inch chemist's phial, partly filled with neutral colored liquid. A glance at its label made him frown and scratch his head thoughtfully.

Now, which of the Tilburys took thyroid extract? Hardly Connie, always bursting with exurbance. Alfred, to be sure, was a bit apathetic, though one would not have expected him to go in for this kind of preparation. Some friend must have put him on to it, with the view of boosting up his energy. Liquid, too. That was odd. Neil till now had not known of the stuff in other than tabloid form.

The matter did not occupy him long. What did stick in his mind with troublesome persistence was the information he happened on two days after this. It had to do with Natasha's situation.

Having broken his watch crystal he had gone in to Glastonbury to get a new one. In the long, narrow jeweler's shop he came on the girl, whom at first he failed to recognize, because she was unfamiliarly dressed in black, and standing with her back to him at the far counter. It was her voice, edged with keen disappointment, which revealed her identity.

"Only fifteen pounds for all these?" she was saying. "Surely that's frightfully little!"

The jeweler expressed regret. The stones were old fashioned in cut, the settings, unfortunately, counted for nothing. Perhaps she would care to try elsewhere?

"No—it's no use. "I'll take the fifteen pounds—though it's a pathetic start toward the hundred I've got to raise, isn't it? What a pity I wasn't trained as a burglar!" She gave a quick laugh, in which the man politely joined; but there was a note in hers which, to Neil's ears, conveyed only dire distress.

He hoped to slip out unnoticed, but already she had turned, seen him, and drawn in her breath with dismay. Then she laughed again to hide her discomfiture, but her face as he came up to her flushed scarlet.

The jeweler came from behind the partition to count some bank notes into her hand. She crammed them into her purse and was about to leave when Neil detained her.

"Why rush off? Let's get tea and go to a cinema. I feel the need of diversion. Don't you?"

From the way she hesitated he knew how deeply embarrassed she was; but her state of mind was too wretched to let this weigh with her for long.

"Well, then, I'll come if you want me to—but I warn you not to expect me to be entertaining. I've a splitting head, for one thing."

They found an empty tea shop with a high settle making an inglenook of the fire. Natasha sank down in the corner, her coat thrown back to disclose a scarf barbarically striped in red and orange. The close black hat she wore threw her Slavic contours into bold relief and accentuated the tawny pallor of her skin. She even looked a little gaunt, but the fact in no way detracted from the beauty which in her case relied more on line than coloring. In only one other head and throat had Neil remarked such perfection of modeling, and although she could not be said to resemble the Egyptian Nefretiti there was about her the same satisfying balance and poise.

The fire and the hot tea brought a faint tinge to her cheeks. He banked cushions at her back, and when he saw she was eating nothing, lit a cigaret for her.

"Headache better?"

"Thanks, it's going off."

For some moments he puffed in silence, summoning courage to take a plunge. Finally he said as naturally as he could, "you won't be annoyed if I ask you something, will you? It's about this hundred pounds you mentioned. Is it very urgent?"

She winced and did not look at him. "Very, I'm afraid. I've tried every way I could think of to get hold of it, and now the time's getting short. It's got to be found, somehow—but I'd rather not discuss it."

"But I want to discuss it," he objected. "Good God, do you suppose I haven't been in tight corners myself? I usually find it's a help to talk it over with someone."

"That's just it. I can't talk this over with any one. Not a human soul," she answered in a low voice.

"Look here, my child. Why can't you let me in on this? What is it you're wanting to do?"

For a fleeting moment he thought she was going to blurt out the truth, but he was mistaken. She merely said, "leave here. Go away."

She did not answer. He was right, then. She had a secret to hide, from her aunt, from all this small, censorious world in which she lived. Even though the idea hurt, her refusal to make the least bid for sympathy moved him more than any appealing outburst. She had pride—too much, perhaps, for her good. All the same, at the risk of a rebuff, he was resolved to try his luck.

"Now, listen to me, and don't misunderstand what I'm going to say. I can lend you that hundred easily, and it won't make any difference when you pay it back—if ever. Let me do it, please. I'll write you a check this instant."

He was almost alarmed by her reception of his offer. She had drawn back against the settle, was gazing at him with a sort of incredulous horror quite disproportionate to the circumstances—or so it seemed to him.

"Take money from you? Is it possible you thought I would? O! Can you imagine I'd have told you this if—if—" Speech failed her.

"No, no, of course not. What have you told me, except what I overheard by accident? Aren't you making a great fuss over quite a simple proposition?"

"I can't take your money. No, there's no use insisting. This conversation has got to end, now." She began gathering up her bag and gloves.

"O, well, don't annihilate me. Sit down. Let's thrash this out. I suppose you haven't thought of applying to your aunt?"

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

The average person isn't scientific. But a recent conference of scientists has been almost front page news; that is, the International Eugenics congress in Ithaca, N. Y. One of the conferences that made interesting reading for the layman was the one on marriage. Love and marriage are topics that catch almost any eye, aren't they?

Marriage clinics were advocated. For what purpose? For the purpose of informing and helping engaged couples, newly married people, and the long married in handling successfully this important relationship.

Paul Popenoe, who is general director of the Los Angeles Institute of Family Relations, has concluded that there are three important factors found present in every unhappy marriage. These three are:

a. Sexual maladjustment.
b. Bad homemaking.
c. (I'm sure this will surprise you)—Failure to use leisure time constructively.

But what, you may ask, has this to do with the subject of children, which is the concern of this column? It has two things to do with it.

First, an unhappy marriage is a handicap to the children who are the fruit of it, so we're interested in possible prevention.

And, second, at least two of the causes listed by Mr. Popenoe may reach back into childhood, and so may make us check up on what we can do to help our children to be better prepared for marriage.

The wise use of leisure is one subject of thought. Does your child's spare time hang heavily on his hands, or have you given him chances to form interests or express talents that make for a busy or rich leisure?

The other remark of Paul Popenoe's that has a distinct relevance for parents is the one on the part that sexual maladjustments plays in marriage. You may discount what I say and what others concerned with child guidance have expressed as to the importance of children having some sex education, so that they learn to be both natural and informed. But when some one who has reviewed thousands of marriage cases says the following it may impress you more:

"At least in the educated part of the population a serious sexual maladjustment exists in 25 per cent or more of all marriages. The sexual difficulties which underlie every family maladjustment either are due to distorted emotional attitudes toward sex carried over from before marriage, or to mere ignorance of the difference between the sexes, physiologically and psychologically, which any boy or girl of 14 should have learned in high school."

Personally, I think home is a better place to learn these things than suddenly in high school, but better there than not at all. To help parents our sex educational booklet was arranged. It has been asked for not only by parents, but by young people, as well as by schools, churches, and mothers' study groups. If you want it please remember that a stamped, self-addressed envelope is necessary to bring it to you.

When road hounds get together and the talk turns to tire treads and spark plugs—especially when one of the men has just annexed a spanking new limousine with or without hair curling attachments and cigaret lighters—the proper question to ask is, "How much mileage do you get?"

When food hounds get together and the talk turns to frozen desserts and ice box cookies—especially when one of the girls has just come out with a brand new refrigerator with all the trimmings—the correct, though too little asked, question should be, "And how much use do you get out of it?"

Two questions quite on a par, for the knowing cook, like the canny motorist, is cheating herself sadly if she does not recognize that the worth of a machine, whatever its purpose, is not in what she put into it financially, but in what she can get out of it—the maximum amount of service it will offer.

Mechanical refrigerators and ice boxes may both be so mistreated and misunderstood that we gain only a small per cent of the aid they are designed to give.

Improper placing of food, the wrong type of refrigerator dishes, incorrect storage of ice if our unit is non-mechanical, poor technique in meal plannings—all these points play a big part in determining wether our food budget is going to stretch itself over the year's needs or will require padding from none too fat clothes, shelter, and recreation columns. For when we realize that the purchases we make today and the dishes we prepare may actually last twice as long if our refrigerators are intelligently cared for and operated, we have something which brings us up standing.

But rules without reasons are a waste of good white space. In general, we all know the theory of refrigeration. Cold air is heavier than warm air. When the air in the refrigerator or ice box comes in contact with the cooling unit or ice at the top of the refrigerator it cools off and drops to the bottom, forcing the warm air up. And then when this cold air has heated itself on the warm foods, it rises, forcing the now cooled air down—and so on as long as the ice or coils remain colder than the foods in storage.

So what? Just this. Since air elects to follow the above circuit, foods must be arranged in certain places in the refrigerator and persuaded to stay there. Since the cold air drops just after it has passed down over the ice or coils, the space immediately below is the coldest and should hold the most perishable and delicately flavored foods—milk, cream, broths, and butter. The air as it passes over these foods should be fairly free from odors, as it has lost those picked up from the other foods in its passage through the cooling compartment. As a precaution, however, against falling dust, food particles, and possible circulating odors, these foods should all be kept tightly covered.

With the perishables thus occupying the floor space under the ice or coils, the remaining foods should be arranged on the refrigerator shelves in the order of their odor and perishability. The first shelf up from the bottom will take care of covered raw meats, custards, cereals, and cream desserts. The next shelf up can hold cooked meats, leftovers, eggs, and mild flavored vegetables and fruit. On the top shelf should be kept fish [tightly covered], strong flavored vegetables, and fruits.

We also used to advise wet towels and papers for wrapping celery and lettuce, but we are learning that these wrappings merely put an extra load on the motors and hasten the melting of ice, absorbing as they do the cold needed for perfect food preservation. Lettuce is kept much more crisp and unbroken if washed and placed in a squat, tightly covered refrigerator jar. Long refrigerator crisping pans may be secured for celery and other salad vegetables.

Next, don't overfill your shelves. If dishes are crowded against the walls or if large pans or trays are placed in such a way as to cover practically a complete shelf, the circulation will be shut off and food spoilage will result.

With ice refrigerators the most frequent offense is that of economizing on ice. The ice chamber should always be filled to capacity if the coldest possible temperature would be maintained. This temperature should never run higher than 50 degrees, and it is sure to if ice is allowed to sink below the three-quarter mark. Another futile economy move is that of wrapping ice to preserve it longer. It does. But it isn't the ice we are trying to preserve—it's the food. Wrapping again cuts off the circulation of air and lowers the ice box temperature. Finally, don't use your ice chamber as a storage space. Remember, it is not as cold on or around the ice as below it.

Refrigerators are usually small enough without wasting valuable space on nonedible beet and carrot tops and dried fruits which do not need cold for preservation. Neither do bananas need refrigeration unless they are to be chilled for salad.

Last of all—though perhaps first in importance—keep your refrigerator always immaculate. If only clean foods and wiped containers go into it and spills are cleaned up immediately, this will be an easy task. A thorough wiping once a week with warm soda water and an occasional scalding out of the drain pipes, if it is an ice refrigerator, is all a well kept box will need.

Council to Hear Dr. Nitobe.

The Chicago Council on Foreign Relations and the Japan-American Society are having a joint luncheon today at the Palmer house with Dr. Inazo Nitobe as the speaker. His subject will be "Japan, Manchukuo, and the Kellogg Pact."

Dr. Nitobe formerly was professor of political economy at the Kyoto Imperial university and for the last fifteen years he has been actively engaged in national and international affairs. From 1920 to 1926 he served at Geneva as the assistant secretary general of the league of nations and since 1927 he has been prominently associated with the independent movement in the government of Japan. He speaks English fluently.

Mrs. Howard Shaw and her daughter, Miss Theodora Shaw, and Mrs. Shaw's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson, are planning a trip to China and the Philippines for after Christmas.

Mrs. Shaw and her daughter have been in Lake Forest since they returned from abroad—the former was in Germany with Jackie McCutcheon and the latter took a walking trip through Ireland—but they will come in town to their apartment at 2450 Lake View avenue around the middle of October.

Mrs. Shaw's elder daughter, Mrs. John T. McCutcheon, and Mr. McCutcheon and their two younger children will leave Lake Forest to spend the winter in Arizona in mid-October. Their eldest child, Jackie, has left to enter the Milton academy. The Clay Judsons, she was Sylvia Shaw, and their youngsters, who also were in Lake Forest for the summer, are back at their residence at 2256 Lincoln Park West for the winter.

Mrs. Gardiner G. Hammond and her children, who spent the summer at Lake Geneva, are in town for the winter at the Ambassador East.

Mrs. Edmund Pincoffs, formerly of Lake Forest, who occupied the Thomas Dennehy house in Lake Forest during the summer months, has returned to Houston, Tex., where the family has resided for the last five years, returning to Lake Forest every summer.

Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, who will not come to town from her summer place, The Timbers, at Long Lake, Mich., until early next month, has been elected a life member of the Field Museum of Natural History.

House Party for Debutantes.

Ten of the season's debutantes and about fifteen of their beaux spent the week-end in Lake Geneva at a house party Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank gave for their two nieces, Miss Frances Bell and Miss Lucy Fairbank.

The young people motored up to the lake Saturday evening after Miss Elizabeth Baum's debut in Lake Forest, arriving in time for a late dinner. The girls in the party were, in addition to the two for whom it was given, Miss Jane Boyce, Miss Nancy Avery, Miss Nancy Taylor, Miss Mary Senior, Miss Josephine Patterson, Miss Marjorie Goodman, Miss Marie Swift and Miss Jean Schweppe.

Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson Jr. are planning to remain at their country place on the Newport turnpike in Waukegan until after Thanksgiving. Their plans for after that are somewhat indefinite, depending upon the result of the election, so Mr. Simpson says.

Mrs. William D. McIlvaine has returned to her apartment at 1100 Lake Shore drive from a fortnight's visit in Denver.

Mrs. Conde Nast, the former Leslie Foster, and her little daughter left for New York Saturday after spending the late summer with Mrs. Nast's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Volney Foster, in Lake Forest.

Mrs. Edward F. Carry and her grandchildren, Teddy and Peggy Nicholson, have come in from Lake Forest where they spent the summer at the Deerpath inn.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

With all due apologies, I think that the characters in "The Blonde Venus" act like half wits.

A most difficult picture to review! To me it was a conglomeration of unconvincing incident and blurred delineations. The story is, I suppose, what would be termed a tale of mother love, but the average person will not find it easy to understand the heroine's point of view.

The piece starts in Germany where a group of hiking American students discover six actresses bathing in a pool. Helen, the heroine, shortly afterwards marries Edward Faraday. The action shifts to New York, where you find the young husband, who for many months has been working on an invention that is near completion, about to die from "wave elimination"—acquired from his experimenting with radium. The only man who can effect his cure is, it seems, a specialist in Germany. The trip and the treatments would cost $1,500.

But where will the money come from? As matters stand there's barely enough cash in the Faraday coffers to keep the wolf from breaking in the door and eating Pape, Mamma and wee—Dickie Moore, God love him!

"I shall go back on the stage!" says Mamma. So for love of papa she gets work in a night club. WHERE she immediately succumbs to the attractions of Nick Townsend, a wealthy politician, who, he says, wants n-o-t-h-i-n-g for the check he hands her when he hears her story . . .

Helen dispatches Edward off to his doctor, informing him the funds are merely an advance in salary . . .

"For Johnny's sake you should stop working in that cheap cabaret," Nick tells her. So—for Johnny's sake she does, becoming instead the mistress of Nick, who puts her and small son up in a swell apartment with a bonne, same being one of those nurses who wear blue or gray widows' weeds.

Edward, completely cured, comes back several days before expected . . . Finds out the truth . . . Threatens to separate Helen from Johnny . . . Won't take her back, though she had intended returning to him. "He needs me, you see," she had told Nick—who says he needs her, too . . . When she finds that her husband will have none of her, she kidnaps Johnny and, though a devoted mother through it all, goes down, down, down, pursued implacably by detectives. When one does at last catch up with her in South America he doesn't recognize her—though dear knows why, since she still looks exactly like her pictures.

By this time, however, she's decided she's at the end of her rope. So—for Johnny's sake she gives up Johnny to his father . . . Time elapses and then doesn't she pop up on the other side of the water as the husky voiced, crooning rage of Paris. She's hard now. Nothing matters. "I'll never return to America!" she tells Nick who, still daffy about her, finds her singing in white pants and topper at a popular café . . . But she does . . .

Back in the old flat where Papa and Mamma and Johnny had been so happy and so poor there's a reunion by the little crib in which reclines Johnny, not grown one bit bigger than he was when Mamma first went out to work . . .

Miss Dietrich has a sweet way with Johnny and, as usual, proves vaguely disturbing in her sultry, hollow cheeked fashion as she saunters and sings through her café scenes. Herbert Marshall, that fine English actor, handles his dumb rôle conscientiously if unenthusiastically. He's supposed to be an American—which is why, I suppose, they picked a man with a dyed in the wool English accent. Cary Grant is exceedingly likable as Townsend. Dicky Moore as Johnny, is, of course, utterly adorable. Minor rôles are handled with capability, and I suppose the director did the best he could with the story.

Staging and photography are nice and the star's costumes are stunning.

Well—the management will be happy if you like their picture and, they say, brightly, you SHOULD see and hear "The Desert Song" on the stage. . . !

See you tomorrow!

Lilyan Tashman Doesn't Consult Hubby on Frock

And He's Perfectly Happy to Have It So.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Says I to Edmund Lowe at a recent tea given by himself and wife, Lilyan Tashman: "How much, if anything, should a husband have to say about his wife's clothes?"

"I'll be blinkety-blanked if I know—if anything," responded the husband of one famed as a national style setter via screen routes.

And that's about what any American male would answer, with heavy emphasis on the "if anything." Isn't it the truth?

Take a Frenchman, now, and ask him to go shopping with you, his wife, and he'd deck himself out in snappy morning suit, cane and a batch of authoritative advice which the saleswoman would listen to. Ask your American mate to take a day off doing the dress salons with you. If you could succeed in trapping him at all for the expedition, you'd have something on your hands by noonday that resembled a bear with a bad case of hives. And that, they tell us, is why the Frenchwoman achieves more individuality in her clothes than the American woman, why she concentrates on herself; the American woman on what is being worn.

"Eddie" seems to have disposed of the shopping problem by choosing a wife with the French woman's native flair for earning both feminine approval and masculine applause. Thus, he's permitted his golf rounds while his blonde Lilyan decides whether it shall be a Schiaparelli coq lei for the wide shouldered effect or an embroidered white batiste jacket with high, puffed sleeves.

At said tea, Miss Tashman was wearing a smart little white jacket with a black velvet frock, a tiny black velvet bell-boy chapeau that wouldn't mean a darned thing on a cold or rainy day but proved a fascinating complement to the new, high ringletted coiffure, most of which is permitted exposure. Tiny little "doll" curls ran riot over all her exposed hair, now cut much higher in the back than when I saw Miss Tashman a couple of months ago.

One Bears a Cross if Following the New Fur Trimming Trend

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Signs of winter styles are written with crosses. Lots of the fashionable coats this season are bearing fur cross trimmings, that mark them as new. Instead of the regulation fur collar, the Paris dressmakers have invented a thousand different ways of applying fur to keep the neck warm in winter months, and a fur band that makes an X across the chest is a favorite method of the best houses. You can see how it is done in the coat shown above. This coat has not only its fur trimming to give it chic, it is in the smartest color scheme of the French fashion palette—gray and brown. The coat itself is made of a soft light gray woolen, and the fur is sabelized marten.

The lines are quite straight, and the coat is wrapped over in front and buttoned just below the bust. A narrow brown leather cord holds the waistline. The sleeves are straight and simple. Lots of particular women are refusing to wear big sleeves in their practical coats this winter.

The sabelized marten is worked into a wide band that goes around the neck, crosses in front, and goes over the left arm and under the right, buttoning in back.

Episcopal Catholic Club to Hear Bishop Stewart

The dinner will be held at the Scottish Rite cathedral, 919 North Dearborn street. Bishop Stewart, who will be introduced by President Royal D. Smith of the club, will be the only speaker.

Elsie Is Hound for Punishment; Blames Love

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The eager pursuit of an ambition is a commendable quality—most of the time. But not if the ambition happens to be a gentleman who does not want to be pursued.

A young woman puts herself in a most unfavorable light with onlookers as well as with the pursued. No matter how she may want to trek after the man; no matter what she is willing to take from him in snubs and hurts, the unencouraged pursuer of female gender comes off badly in all eyes.

True, all women do a little pursuing. But the smart ones keep the secret of how they do it to themselves. The male pursued is the last one to discover he's a marked man. In other people's eyes he may be deaf, dumb and blind not to recognize what's going on. But so long as the woman is smart enough to make him think it's he that is handling the reins, all's well for her.

But when a girl like my correspondent, "Elsie," has been turned down time and time again—and still keeps on trying to bait the unwilling one, she succeeds in making only a ridiculous spectacle of herself. "Elsie" enjoyed the man's company on only a few dinner date occasions.

Then he disappeared, or apparently thought he was disappearing. But "Elsie" went to his place of business. The first time, she reports, he was lovely to her. The second time he became panicky, and the third time he told her to get out when she asked if she were intruding.

Now that should prove discouragement enough for any woman.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 25.—The 24th meeting between the Chicago Bears and the Green Bay Packers, defending champions of the National Professional Football league, ended in a scoreless tie today. Fourteen thousand, almost a capacity crowd, saw the two elevens play the fourth tie in their competition, which dates back to 1921.

Neither team penetrated within the other's 14 yard line, but until this territory was reached each demonstrated brilliant offensive football. The play was confined almost entirely to line plunges, at which the Bears, with Bronko Nagurski and Herb Joesting at full back, excelled, and to sweeping runs by the Packer backs. As for forward passes, when used, they only cost possession of the ball in critical minutes.

Wind Hampers Play.

The strong west wind also was a factor in the offense. The Bears had this advantage in the first and fourth periods, during which they threatened to score on the drives starting near midfield after an exchange of punts. The Packers' best offensive work was accomplished in the second and third quarters when they defended the east goal line.

Three successive downs in the first quarter with Grange, Nesbitt and Nagurski smashing inside the Packer tackles and guards, brought the ball to the Packers' 21 yard line for a first down. This opportunity was missed, however, when Nesbitt attempting a forward pass, threw hurriedly and O'Boyle intercepted and scurried back to his own 29 yard line.

Lewellen's kicking with the wind in the second period started the Packers on their drive, which also reached the Bears' 21 yard line. The ball was at the sideline and Fitzgibbon wasted a down getting more favorable position. Hank Bruder then was dropped behind the line on an attempted forward pass, after which he plunged for three yards. On fourth down Bruder's pass to Herber was incomplete.

Bears Miss Chance.

Favored by the wind, the Packers advanced into Chicago territory in the third quarter. After an exchange of kicks, Hinkle punted to Molesworth, who fumbled, and the ball bounded back into his end zone. However, Molesworth scooped up the ball and managed to get back to the Bears' two yard line before he was thrown. Kicking from his end zone, Nesbitt sent the ball out of bounds on the Bears' 18 yard line. Three line plays netted the Bays only four yards and on the fourth down Joesting intercepted a pass and ran the ball out to the Bears' 32 yard line.

Nesbitt's 75 yard kick, which went out of bounds on Green Bay's five yard line, opened the way for the Bears' final scoring opportunity. Lewellen's kick was run back to the Packers' 27 yard line. In two plunges Nesbitt made five yards. On the third down a forward pass was knocked down. Tackwell then was substituted for Johnson on the fourth down to try for a place kick from the Packers' 22 yard line.

The pass from center was fumbled by Brumbaugh, however, and all that he could do was attempt a pass, which was grounded behind the scrimmage line.

DODGERS WIN, 7-0.

Stapleton, N. Y., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Benny Friedman's Brooklyn Dodgers broke through in the last quarter to score a 7 to 0 victory over Stapleton in a National Professional Football league game here today. With Jack Grossman, former Rutgers star, doing most of the work in the fourth period, the Dodgers carried the ball 40 yards to Stapleton's 20 yard line. A pass from Wiberg to Friedman gained 18 yards and Grossman then scored the touchdown on a wide end sweep.

PORTSMOUTH BEATS GIANTS.

Portsmouth, O., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The Portsmouth Spartans pushed over a touchdown in the second quarter to defeat the New York Giants, 7 to 0, in the season's first National league encounter for both teams here today.

CHEER UP! BUSH PITCHES THREE HITLESS INNINGS

Guy in Great Form for Series Opener.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

It took Guy Bush only three innings in yesterday's season windup with the Cincinnati Reds to show 12,000 customers that he is ready for the world series opener. Guy pitched the first third of the Cubs' final and didn't allow a hit. It was no reflection on Bush, of course, that Pat Malone blew up for five runs in the sixth to give the Reds an eventual 5 to 3 victory.

It had been arranged for Bush, Malone and Tinning to work three innings each, regardless of what happened, with a special dispensation regarding the winning pitcher credit. The Cubs were leading, 2 to 0, when Bush went out, and had the lead been protected Bush would have received credit for his 20th victory of the season, even though he didn't pitch five innings after starting, as per the usual requirement. So the effect of Malone's collapse not only gave Pat his 17th loss, but prevented Bush from reaching the golden 20 win mark, something Guy never has done in his life.

How Guy Let 'Em Down.

But since it is certain that Bush will start the opening game of the world series, and the rôle of Malone is uncertain, let's forget about Pat for a while and speak of the brief but stellar performance of Guy.

Grantham, first up, flied to Moore. Bush then grabbed Crabtree's grounder with one hand and threw him out. Hendrick walked, thus becoming the only man whom Bush permitted to reach first base. The Mississippian promptly made amends for the lapse by fanning Babe Herman.

Roettger fanned to start the second inning and Morrissey made it three whiffs in a row when he couldn't hit three good ones. English accepted an easy chance to throw out Durocher.

Manion opened the third and last Bush pitched inning with a liner to Koenig. Frey then became Guy's fourth strikeout victim, and Grantham bounced out to Grimm.

Malone's work, beginning at the outset of the fourth inning, gave the season swan song a sour tone, of course, but there were several encouraging aspects, aside from the pitching of Bush.

For instance, Koenig got back into action with a perfect day at bat, with a double, two singles, and a walk. And also there was Kiki Cuyler, who accomplished three hits in five times at bat.

Cubs Get Good Start.

It now seems about time to get down to the routine description of how the eight runs of the contest were scored.

The Cubs made a pair off Benny Frey in the first inning. Herman opened the Chicago offensive with a single to right, paused while English popped to Grantham and went to third on Cuyler's single. Bill scored and Ki stopped at second on Stephenson's infield out. Moore singled between Durocher's heels, scoring Cuyler. Grantham threw out Grimm.

The 2 to 0 lead prevailed till the sixth, despite the fact the Reds clipped Malone for two singles in the fourth and two more in the fifth. Hendrick walked to start the sixth. Babe Herman shot a grounder at Malone, who threw to Koenig at second to start what should have been an easy double play. Koenig dropped the ball and both runners were safe. Roettger singled to center, Hendrick scoring and Babe Herman stopping at second. The bases were full after Morrissey singled to left. The runners held on while Durocher flied to Cuyler in short right, but Manion came up with a double to left center, scoring Babe Herman and Roettger and putting Morrissey on third. Frey singled to right, scoring Morrissey and Manion, and went to second on a wild pitch. Granthan flied to English and Crabtree bounced out to Grimm.

The Cubs wound up their National league scoring for the year in the eighth on successive doubles by Hemsley and Koenig.

It's Up to Mickey to Make New York Contest a Riot.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 25.—There have been lavish promises of savage brutality in the battle of the lithe, lean bodies of Max Schmeling and Mickey Walker at the garden corporation's big depression tomorrow evening, and the customers are beginning to evince renewed hope. The brutality was negligible in Schmeling's last fight in the same arena, but it is to Walker that the patrons are now looking for their money's worth in the way of animal ferocity.

Walker has failed the public less often than any other heavyweight now in practice, and those who were present at his last fight in New York still have a happy recollection of the injuries which he inflicted on Paulino Uzcudun in winning the decision. It was at the close of a round, about the twelfth, that Walker belatedly began the rally which lifted the show from the level of dull manual labor to the delightful spiritual height of a particularly messy traffic accident.

Socko! The War's On.

As the bell ended the round, Paulino accidently tapped Walker with a punch which had started before the clang sounded. Walker had dropped his hands, but Paulino half checked the blow and it did him no damage. Paulino then dropped his hands also. Walker hit him with a full swing in retaliation, landing under his left eye and taking a large divot.

Paulino's seconds worked excitedly on the wound during the intermission and told him to keep away from clinches with Walker after that, but the next round was not long under way before Mickey, always eager to give the customers the best available money's worth, yanked Paulino to his bosom with his left arm and with a vigorous up-and-down pumping motion of his right massaged the injury with the laces of the glove.

It's Swell, Say Customers.

The effect of this was highly satisfactory from the spectators' standpoint. After Walker had repeated the process in several more clinches, the Spaniard walked to his corner for the next intermission looking like one of those cases which the police records describe as "lacerations, contusions, abrasions and probable internal injuries."

This continued through the fifteenth round. There was some dissent from the decision, which went to Walker, but there was no dissatisfaction with the spectacle of the latter rounds. It was the opinion of some of the customers that Paulino landed just as many blows as Walker and should have had a draw. Others, however, gave Walker entire credit for the brutality which saved the show from the artistic standpoint.

There is no question that the customers cherish brutality above scientific boxing, which is a great bore. Neither is there any doubt that Walker has engaged in more fights which had the general aspect of a major operation performed with a pickax than any other prominent heavyweight of the present day.

It is with fond memories of Walker's exhibitions against Paulino, Harry Greb, Dave Shade, Joe Dundee and Ace Hudkins that the patrons cling to a forlorn hope that he may be somehow elected or managed into the heavyweight championship of the world within the coming year.

There is little to choose between these performances, all of them works of sheer beauty from the standpoint of savagery. But those who saw the Hudkins affair in the White Sox ball park will select that one as the most beautiful of all because the elements conspired to enhance the spectacular loveliness of Mickey's chef d'ouvre. The rain rained and the ring sagged, forming a sort of tank in which the two boys splashed around in an artistic transport, kicking up little sheets of pink, glistening water. Unfortunately, there were no knockdowns, because if there had been, one of them probably would have drowned, which would have been an artistic innovation.

Mickey Can Catch 'Em, Too.

But, without the rain to dramatize the affair, it might have been no more brutal than the one between Walker and Dundee. In fact, that one was so brutal that the referee stopped it,

Women's Golf Title Quest Opens Today

Peabody, Mass., Sept. 25.—(AP)—One of the greatest fields of women golfers ever assembled will start in the 18 hole qualifying round of the national championship tournament tomorrow morning on the 6,301 yard Salem Country club course. Among the 102 entries were the defending champion, Helen Hicks of Long Island, three former winners—Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, and Margaret Curtis. Enid Wilson, British champion, is also an entry.

Miss Wilson, who reached the semi-finals in last year's play at Buffalo, appears as one of the most formidable competitors.

Miss Van Wie Enters.

Among the other highly regarded entrants were Virginia Van Wie, another of last year's semi-finalists; Maureen Orcutt, Mrs. Opal S. Hill, western titleholder; Mary K. Browne, Mrs. Benjamin Fitz-Hugh of Vicksburg, Miss., southern champion, and two Canadians, Ada Mackenzie, former dominion champion, and Mrs. Charles Eddis, both of Toronto. The latter was runner-up in yesterday's Canadian championship final at Montreal.

Most of the entries were on the course today, but the only complete cards were those of Miss Wilson and Mrs. Eddis. They turned in 87, going 10 over par while experimenting on several short holes. Mrs. Vare, who has won the national title five times in the last 10 years, was indisposed, but word came from her sickroom that she would engage in the medal play.

Title Round Over 36 Holes.

The field will be reduced to 32 after tomorrow's single round. The 18 hole match play will start on Tuesday and Saturday's championship play will be over 36 holes.

Plaa Defeats Burke for Professional Net Title

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Martin Plaa won the singles championship of the professional tennis tournament here today by defeating Albert Burke, 6-1, 6-2, 1-6, 3-6, 6-4. Big Bill Tilden clinched second place by defeating Hans Nusslein, 6-2, 6-4, 6-1. The doubles title went to Karel Kozeluh and Burke, who defeated Tilden and Bruce Barnes, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Chattanooga Wins, 6-4; Leads in Dixie Series

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The Chattanooga Lookouts today defeated Beaumont, 6 to 4, to win the fourth game of the Dixie baseball series and gain a commanding 3 to 1 lead.

Tuffy Will Brave Max's Knockout Punch at Stadium.

Tonight's Card

Charley Retzlaff vs. Les Kennedy [8].
Paul Dazzo vs. Joe Pallazola [6].
Jackie Sharkey vs. Kid Irish [6].
Jack Roper vs. Pete Wistort.
Solly Dukelsky vs. Bill Connell [4].

Max Baer, whose unofficial knockout of Ernie Schaaf apparently has given him entree to the select circle of heavyweight contenders, comes back to the Stadium tonight against Tuffy Griffith. And if Max can lick Tuffy there'll be none to deny him the right to meet any heavyweight in the country.

Chicago should be extremely interested in tonight's bout. If Baer wins, he will be the lever by which Nate Lewis will pry loose some of the talent now monopolized by Madison Square Garden. It is conceivable that Baer can pay the Stadium's way this winter just as King Levinsky, with help from Griffith, once turned in profits for the west side corporation while earning a few gold pieces for themselves.

Layoff Hurts Griffith.

To a degree Griffith might serve the purpose, if he whips Baer, but Griffith, more or less retired from the ring for the last year, has lost some of the color which once made him a ranking favorite.

Baer has physical advantages, height, weight, reach and a wallop. He certainly can punch, but the problem tonight for the Jewish fighter is will Griffith stand still long enough to be hit?

Regardless of the future, the uncertainty of tonight's outcome should create crowd interest. That Baer was outpointed for at least eight rounds in his battle with Ernie Schaaf before hammering the sailor to the floor doesn't speak well for his chances against a faster man. It has been said, and with a great deal of truth, that Baer is another Levinsky, only more polished and intelligent in ring technique. There will be an answer to that assertion tonight.

Decision if Tuffy Wins.

If Griffith wins you may be sure it will be a decision. If Schaaf's best punches couldn't stop Baer it isn't logical to believe Tuffy can do it. Griffith lacks size, power and reach. Tuffy will be very chary of engaging in a blow for blow bout. Rather he is expected to stand back and box, or come in close to escape Baer's direct smashes. If he can succeed for ten rounds with this program he will win on points.

Baer, however, has this to say about his fight with Schaaf: "I fought a slow man when I met Schaaf so I slowed down my own attack, knowing I could outpunch him. Against Tuffy I'll speed up. He won't get away from me, and when I hit him he'll fall right out of the heavyweight picture."

Tuffy either needs some cash or he and Jack O'Keefe are very confident of the result. Jack O'Keefe has kept Tuffy in the money for a long time. He seldom has passed up a real purse, and in some cases he's grabbed a whole lot of it at the other fellow's expense. No one in the business except O'Keefe could have aroused Levinsky to the place where he gave up $25,000 to take a licking and at the same time only made $3,000 for his own.

Old Acquaintances on Card.

Tonight Tuffy is getting 22½ per cent. Baer is scheduled for 30 per cent of the receipts.

There are several old friends on tonight's card. Jack Roper, whom Tuffy knocked out in his first comeback fight at White City in one round, meets Pete Wistort. Then there's the old-timer, Les Kennedy, who meets Charley Retzlaff. Several seasons ago, the record books show, Kennedy defeated Max Baer.

Paul Dazzo, one of Chicago's coming featherweights, meets Joe Pallasolla, a youngster, while Bill Connell, Streator middleweight recently turned professional, opens the show against Solly Dukelsky.

A telegraphic report of the Walker-Schmeling fight will be announced at the ringside. Neither bout is being broadcast by radio.

YANKEES HAVE HOMER THREAT IN EVERY INNING

Hitting Power in Series Is All Against Cubs.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Yankees have the thing that gets 'em all—the long drive. It is what they hope to use against the Cubs in each inning of every game played in the world series. It's the thing that over powered the other seven teams in the American league this season. And it is what the experts contend is going to swing the world title back to the junior major league organization after one year in possession of the National league.

It is admitted that the Cubs have a sterling silver stamp in the matter of fielding. It is conceded that they have about as classy a pitching staff as any club in their own circuit. But their run getting ability is not something to shout about. If they go in for heavy run production it will be because the Yank pitchers are weaker than suspected. And if the Yanks are stopped cold in their attack the Cub staff will have to be recognized as something far superior to anything the American league owns.

Babe Can Still Hit.

Against a team like the Yankees the best pitcher in the business working at his very best, might easily be beaten. There is hardly an inning in which the Yanks can't get at least one potential home run hitter to the plate. The fellows with this extra punch might be set down time and again, but it frequently happens that at least one of them can break out just at the right moment to settle everything. Usually this comes when the pitcher is in his greatest distress, because of an error or lack of control.

There is an old belief that as Babe Ruth goes so goes the Yanks. The veteran slugger will start and his fielding will be nothing startling, unless he has been loafing with purpose all season. But the age that seems to have crept into his legs hasn't bothered his eyes yet. Neither has it diminished the power in his arms and shoulders. When Ruth is in there, he is a sort of inspiration to his mates, not to mention a source of worry to opposing pitchers.

Only Four Cub Threats.

If anybody thinks talk of the Yank hitting power is just boogey man stuff calculated to disturb the Cubs, the proof can be provided in the averages. The American league champions have exploded 159 home runs, according to unofficial figures. The Cubs must match this with 67. The Yanks have a team average of .287 against .277 for the Cubs, although this feature never is reliable because the figure can be pulled up if a team should happen to have a hitting pitcher who isn't in there every day or a pinch hitter with a high mark.

The Cubs at best can be figured to have only four men able to drive a ball out of the lot, except on rare occasions. The four are Hartnett, Moore, Cuyler and Grimm. They have accounted for most of the team's home runs this year. But none is a menace that can't be halted by smart, well controlled pitching. This doesn't mean, of course, that one or more of them might not break in with a devastating drive just at the right moment. In the course of a season they would not be regarded as home runs threats, but in a short series anything can happen.

There's Babe, Lou, and Bill.

Ruth never is anything but a threat. He not only hits homers, but singles and doubles. His homer total for the season was 41. Lou Gehrig is right behind Ruth, not only in the batting order, but in homers and in the averages. Gehrig has uncorked 33 home runs and he also must be reckoned with on account of doubles and singles. Bill Dickey, the Yank catcher, has picked up 15 homers against Hartnett's 11. Dickey's average also is in excess of Hartnett's by more than 30 points.

The home run mania extends beyond Ruth, Gehrig, and Dickey. Tony Lazzeri has accumulated 15, which is more than the best Cub mark. Ben Chapman has padded his average with 10 and Sewell with 11. Sewell is another who likes to take aim at the short right field fences. And as further distress for the Cub followers, it might be mentioned that the Yanks

"NOW, ABOUT WEDNESDAY—"

Cubs Leave for New York at Noon Today

The champion Cubs will leave for New York at noon today. They will depart on a special section of the Pennsylvania railroad's Broadway Limited, which will pull out of the Union station, Adams and Canal streets.

On arriving in New York the team will go direct to the Hotel Commodore, the headquarters for the series, just as it is when the Cubs play the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers during the regular season.

Koenig Knows Stadium.

The boys will be permitted to lounge about their apartments until shortly after luncheon, then they will go to the Yankee stadium for practice.

Most of the Cubs never have seen the inside of what generally is considered baseball's most luxurious premises. But Mark Koenig was a Yankee for six years and visited the stadium for a year and a half as a Tiger. So Mark knows all the bumps on the acreage, all the trick shadows and all the showers that run too hot or too cold, and should be able to lead the introductory invasion with great skill, it is believed.

Bush May See Ruth.

It is not likely, but possible, that Guy Bush, scheduled to pitch the opener, tomorrow afternoon will get his first look at Babe Ruth. Guy never has seen the Babe, except in the movies, even though the great slugger paid several visits to the Cub bench during the 1929 series.

The Cubs probably will have less than two hours to catch their train after the game Thursday. The plan is to flag a New York Central train at High Bridge, not far from the Yankee stadium. This will get the players back in time for plenty of rest before the Chicago opener Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

VAN GRAFLAN AND DINNEEN NAMED TO WORK SERIES

The American league has assigned its oldest and youngest active umpires to call 'em in the world series. They are William Dinneen, dean of the working staff, and Roy Van Graflan.

Dinneen was the hero of the 1903 world series, pitching three victories for the Boston Red Sox against Pittsburgh. He later pitched for the Boston Braves, St. Louis Browns, and Washington, finally jumping from the pitcher's box to an umpire's job in the American league back in 1910.

Van Graflan also was a pitcher, winning fame first as a star of a team composed of Van Graflan Sr. and his eight sons. He turned to umpiring in 1921 and did so well in the Pacific Coast league that the late Ban Johnson signed him as an American league arbiter in 1926. He is the youngest umpire on the American league staff.

CARDINALS WHIP BATTLE CREEK PRO ELEVEN, 19-0

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional Football league defeated the Battle Creek Maroons today, 19 to 0, before a crowd of 2,000.

Holm, Hill and McNally scored touchdowns, one in each of the last three periods. Hill made the extra point with a place kick. The Cardinals made 14 first down to Battle Creek's one, gained late in the game when Chuck Bennett, former Indiana half back, hit the Chicago line for gains of 6 and 8 yards.

Cleveland Sandlot Team Retains U.S. Championship

Dayton, O., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Cleveland's sandlot baseball team won a double header from the Grand Trunks of Detroit today, 1 to 0 and 10 to 4, to retain the championship of the National Baseball federation.

WHEN FAVORITE LOSES A RACE IT MAY BE 'OUCHY'

Bradley Trainer Tells All About Barn Swallow.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Every old time player of the races contends that for a hundred years or more there have been a thousand widely known reasons for the defeat of a horse.

But up pops Dick Thompson, head trainer for Col. Edward R. Bradley's stable, with a brand new one. He says that Col. Bradley's great filly, Barn Swallow, winner of the Tomboy handicap and the Matron stakes in the east, lost the famous Belmont Futurity because she was suffering from a bad case of "ouchy." Have you ever had a touch of the ouchy? You probably have but didn't know it.

"What is the 'ouchy'?" Mr. Thompson has been asked. "Well, it's the way a horse feels just before he develops an osselet, a bowed tendon, a charley horse or a case of the measles," explained Mr. Thompson.

There is an old idea among race goers that a great champion thoroughbred horse breaks the heart of the lesser lights in his division when he gives them a good sound trouncing.

Even that theory has been exploded this year in the case of the great champion, Equipoise, and the lesser light, Pairbypair, which races for Mrs. John Hertz of Chicago. Way back on May 12 at Belmont Park in the Toboggan handicap at six furlongs, Equipoise handed Pairbypair a trouncing. Equipoise ran the six furlongs in 1:09 3-5 and finished first. Pairbypair was last in the six horse field.

Pairbypair got his revenge in the Severn handicap at Havre de Grace last Saturday. This was also a dash at six furlongs. Five started. Pairbypair ran the six furlongs in 1:12 and finished first. Equipoise, the old guy who was supposed to be breaking the heart of the foes he conquered, finished last.

Now if you think you can pick the winners, try and solve that one.

Since the racing season opened in Chicago some five months ago, there's a kid jockey called Wayne Wright who has been thrilling the crowds at the different tracks. Some wise horsemen say he is better than Coucci or Mills and would have established the proof if he had been blessed with the opportunities Coucci and Mills were given this season.

Wright today will begin packing his saddle and his boots and on Wednesday will be on his way to the Tanforan track in San Francisco. Chicago players will miss this slender long legged kid. The other day he rode four winners at Lincoln Fields, including the daily double.

Coucci and Mills didn't ride enough around Chicago this season for Chicago's best critics to come to a conclusion as to whether Wright was as good as either of them.

One thing is certain. The Wright kid has plenty of nerve. He went down in a spill at Hawthorne more than a month ago. A bone was broken. He nursed his injuries for three weeks, but when he got back into the saddle he took every chance there is for a jockey to take.

Wright is under contract to A. A. Baroni of Reno, Nev., not a pretentious establishment. Baroni is likely to receive some very flattering offers for the kid's contract before the beginning of another racing season. For this kid belongs where the "big horses" are running.

Well, here's the old deceiver, Brown Wisdom, ready to go into action again at Lincoln Fields this afternoon. When he won at good odds the other day, folks who didn't bet on him snarled and growled as if they had a grudge against the 7-year-old son of Brown Prince II.

He goes against Betty Derr, which he beat in his last triumph in the Westchester purse at six furlongs. Others in the field are Miss Marr and Marmion. Brown Wisdom picks up four pounds and carries 112 today. Betty Derr carries 106. Cathop picks up one pound and carries 107. Even so it looks as if Brown Wisdom should win his last race. But all the uncertainties of every horse race enters into the struggle. Marmion might whip 'em all.

OLIVET DROPS FOOTBALL FOR THIS SEASON

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Announcement that Olivet college has abandoned football for this year leaves the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic association with only five teams in the race.

Hope and Kalamazoo college will meet in an association game Saturday. Hope lost to Western State Teachers yesterday, 31 to 6, while Kalamazoo was beating Manchester of Indiana, 18 to 6.

Albion will open at home with Detroit City college, which has had little luck in recent years with the M. I. A. A. teams.

Kalamazoo college, which carded the Olivet game for homecoming, is hit hardest by Olivet's decision. The homecoming will be moved up to the Hillsdale game Oct. 15.

Dr. Hubbs Has Fish Up Sleeve; It's New Bass

BY BOB BECKER.

Just as the bass fishermen have become used to the fact that we now have three species of black bass instead of the two that have been such popular game fish over a period of years, Dr. Carl L. Hubbs of the Institute of Fisheries Research, University of Michigan, announces that in the United States there is still another species of black bass.

Now instead of large mouth black bass and small mouth black bass, the two old standbys of the bass kingdom, we must recognize the northern small mouth, the northern large mouth, the recently discovered Kentucky or Ohio or spotted bass, and a fourth, a new species of small mouth which hasn't been given a name. The last communication we had from Dr. Hubbs, with whom we spent several days in the field last year, indicated that the new small mouth is a fact. The fish is figuratively up his sleeve, and soon he will give it a name.

New Bass Has Restricted Range.

Dr. Hubbs, best known to sportsmen for his remarkable surveys of Michigan lakes, and the practical, inexpensive methods he has evolved to improve fishing in waters which aren't producing as they should, hinted at the presence of a new species of small mouth bass in the streams of Georgia and Alabama when he spoke to the American Fisheries society last year. He told scientists that this new species is more closely akin to the small mouth than to the spotted or Kentucky bass. The newest bass is distinctly different from the ordinary northern small mouth. Moreover, it has a restricted range—streams in the high country of Georgia and Alabama which are tributaries of the Alabama river. The fish probably is in South Carolina, too—along the southern swing of the Allegheny mountains.

Thinks Differences Are Racial.

Dr. Hubbs' comment on this bass and the probability that there still may be other species of black bass still unrecognized is interesting. He says:

"What additional species may be discovered in the future I do not know. It appears as if four ought to be enough, when we remember that once there were only two. There is some question concerning the kinds of bass, even if we recognize these four species. The large mouth black bass of Florida is different from the large mouth bass of Minnesota.

"I do not think these differences are specific; they are racial. We all think, of course, of the giant black bass of Florida, which reaches a size far beyond that attained by the bass in any other part of the country. Is that base a distinct race or does it grow large because of some inherent quality?"

There Are 3 Uses for Lateral Passes in Football Attack

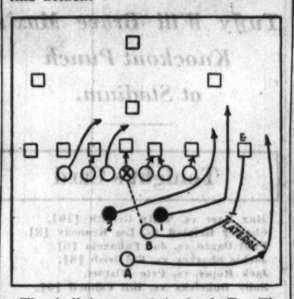
(This is the seventeenth of a series of articles on football. Address all questions to the Football Editor, sports department, Chicago Tribune.)

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—There are three general uses for a lateral pass.

1. A lateral or backward pass from one player of the attacking team to another on an end run from scrimmage. The principle of this lateral pass is to pass the ball over or around the defensive player. Thus it is not essential that the defender be blocked out. The offense outwits the defense. This lateral pass play is in common use. Notre Dame uses such a play and so do many of the Big Ten teams.

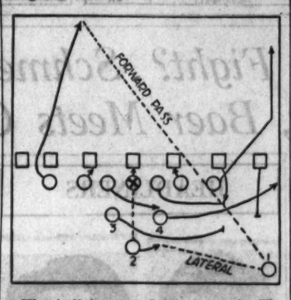
Following is a play which involves this attack:



The ball is passed to back B. The attacking team is lined up in a short kick formation with player A about eight yards back. Assignments of backs 1 and 2 may vary. This depends on the abilities of the players, the caliber of the opposition and the style of offense. But the principle involved is to pull in the defensive end E. An offensive back may fake to block him, but continues to get into the interference down field. One of the backs also may be assigned to block the tackle.

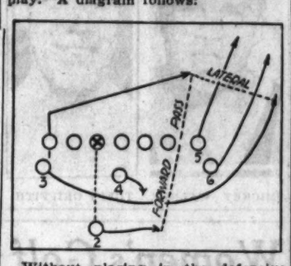
As the end closes in on B, he laterals the ball to A, who continues the end run.

2. The second usage is a lateral or backward pass to a player who then makes a forward pass. Indiana university used such a play last year. A diagram follows:



The ball is passed to player 2. The attack is lined up in a short kick formation with player 1 wide on the flank. The ends and one back, No. 4, go down field as on a pass formation. Back field man 3 and the guards block for the passer No. 1, who makes a forward pass after receiving the lateral pass from No. 2. If No. 1 is not covered, he may choose to run with the ball, or such a play may be called.

3. A forward pass is followed by a lateral pass. The forward pass must be short, from the line of scrimmage up to a distance of 10 yards. It is intended that the receiver of the forward pass shall be covered. But just as he is about to be tackled he suddenly makes a lateral pass to a back field man. Northwestern and Minnesota used this play consistently last year. Southern Methodist university was one of the first exponents of the play. A diagram follows:



Without placing in the defensive men, so that the principle of the play can be seen more easily, the ball is snapped back to the passer No. 2. He forwards it to the end No. 1, who in turn laterals the ball to the half back No. 3. Players 5 and 6 continue down field as if on a pass formation, but in reality become interferers for the runner No. 3.

awarding the fight to Dundee by a technical knockout. One of Walker's eyes had been hurt and he was giving a magnificent show when the referee, who had no appreciation of the elements of genuine beauty in a prize fight, thought he ought to interfere. There was great disgust among the customers that evening, but Walker only gained prestige because he demonstrated that brutality was a transitive art with him. He could do his stuff either pitching or catching, whereas Paulino is a one sided artist. He only catches.

The tickets for the battle of the lithe, lean bodies are offered at a range of prices from $1 for the steerage to $11 for the ringside, and the promoters are suggesting that the winner will be the next heavyweight champion because both boys have beaten Jack Sharkey within the last year.

The customers seem not to admire Sharkey, although he has sometimes been much more brutal than Walker. The objection to Sharkey, however, is that he is brutal to the customers, who always suffer much more than his opponents or himself.

PURPLE COACHES START HUNT FOR GUARDS, TACKLES

They'll Need Them in Missouri Game.

Northwestern's efforts to develop tackles and guards will be resumed again today as a result of last Saturday's showing against the freshmen. The fact that the yearlings were able to pile up seven first downs through the varsity line has convinced the coaching staff that much work remains to be done before the season's opener with Missouri Saturday.

Coach Dick Hanley, who has a bad case of tonsilitis, failed to receive much of a tonic from the way his varsity linemen were pushed around by the freshmen. Hanley stated yesterday that he is more at sea than ever as to whom he will select for his starting line men against Missouri.

About the only varsity line men who performed to the liking of Hanley were Eggs Manske,

CARDINALS SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER WITH PIRATES

St. Louis and Giants Tie for 6th and 7th Places.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The world champion Cardinals battled to the end today to find themselves tied for sixth and seventh places with the New York Giants, after the Pittsburgh Pirates won the first game of a double header, 7 to 1, and the Cardinals took the nightcap, 7 to 4. The Giants and the Cardinals have each won 72 games and lost 82.

Dizzy Dean, young Cardinal pitcher, was hit hard in the second game but won his 18th victory of the season. The Cardinals took a three run lead in the first inning and the Pirates tied the score in the fourth. St. Louis took the lead again in the fifth. Scores:

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The Boston Braves' hard hitting brought them from behind to end the season with a 13 to 7 victory over Brooklyn today.

The Dodgers collected six runs off Bob Brown in the second inning, but Boston smashed its way into a tie in the next inning and kept on pounding Eddie Pipgras and Fay Thomas. Randy Moore led the Braves' attack with a homer, two doubles, and a single. Stripp hit a homer with the bases full for the Dodgers in the second inning.

Foxx Hits 58th Homer in 9th; Senators Win

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Jimmy Foxx hit his 58th home run of the season in a perfect day at bat, but the Senators defeated the Athletics, 2 to 1, today. Foxx's homer came in the ninth.

The Philadelphia first baseman apparently fell just short of taking the American league batting honors away from Dale Alexander, despite his day's mark of 1.000, as the unofficial averages gave him .364 against .367. Foxx hit a homer and two singles in three times at bat.

Alvin Crowder of the Senators took the league lead in games won, getting his 26th victory of the year and 15th straight. Except for Foxx, only two Athletics got as far as second and none to third off Crowder's delivery.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Dusty Rhodes and Paul Andrews, former Yankees, allowed the American league pennant winners only six hits today as Boston defeated New York 8 to 3.

The Yanks used a patched up lineup through part of the game but were able to complete the season without a shutout and to run their consecutive game record in this respect to 211. The Yankees played 156 games this year and 55 in 1931 consecutively without failing to score. The old record for games without a shutout is 132, set by the Boston and Philadelphia league teams in 1894.

Pennock Is a Foxy Fellow; He Raises Fancy Fox Furs

[This is the twelfth of a series of sketches of New York Yankee players who will oppose the Cubs in the world series.]

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 25.—Herb Pennock began his career as a pay-ball player with a perfect game, 22 years ago.

At the age of 17 he pitched a no-hit, no-run game against a colored semi-pro team called the St. Louis Stars. His catcher was his neighborhood playmate from Philadelphia, Earl Mack, the son of Connie Mack. His employer was Ed Bader, a politician of Atlantic City, N. J., who had signed him, experimentally, at $100 a month, on the recommendation of Connie Mack, to pitch for a freelance club of his, which he called the Atlantic City Collegians.

The Atlantic City Collegians were not collegians and Pennock, himself, had gone no further in school than the Cedarcroft Boarding school, but a certain degree of poetic license is enjoyed by the operators of ball clubs and night club orchestras. The Chicago Cubs are not Chicagoans, and not many of the saxophonists who have whinnied and moaned in a thousand stuffy little dumps in orchestras named for Princeton and Yale could show any credentials from the deans.

After the no-hit, no-run game, Earl Mack asked his boy friend, Pennock, not to pay any attention to any of the major league scouts, who would now certainly close in on him with offers of jobs, until he had first spoken to his pa, Connie Mack. Pennock was quite willing to talk first to Connie Mack, because he was a Philadelphia boy and Connie was one of the gods of the town.

Connie gave him a contract, but left him with the Collegians for the rest of the season and called him in for spring training the next year, which was 1912.

Connie Sends Him Down to Red Sox.

He was a stretchy, skinny kid and, at his full height of six feet he has never weighed more than 160 pounds, so he was always had to rely on his skill rather than on rugged power. He has been one of the most graceful players in the game for years. A fine fielder at his position, no book-scholar, but much more intelligent than the average, extremely careful with every pitch, always polite or most always so, and, of course, a credit to the sport. In pitching he makes use of the corners of the plate and has never thrown a ball through the heart intentionally.

Connie Mack made little use of him during the first two years of his schooling with the Athletics, sending him in just now and again for a few innings to give him the feel of major league competition. But, in 1914, he made him a regular and even let him throw them at the Braves for three innings in the world series.

Connie broke up his ball team the next season and sent Herb to the Red Sox at the waiver price. The Red Sox farmed him out to Buffalo in 1916 and also parked him for a while in Providence. This spell and the year he spent in the war business in 1918 have been the only interruptions in his service in the American League since 1912.

He has pitched in four world series, winning five games and losing none, but was unavailable for one nerve in his arm went wrong in August and didn't mend until the next spring.

Pennock Raises Some Foxy Foxes.

There was a great row among the customers when the late Harry Frazee, who owned the Red Sox, traded Pennock down to the Yankees in 1922 for three players and some money. The players were Camp Skinner, Norman McMillan and George Murray, a right hand pitcher. The New York patrons thought their ball club was being victimized in the deal and it said in the papers at the time that Miller Huggins, the manager of the Yanks, was a terrible manager for making this trade because any one of the three men sent to Boston was worth more than this passé left hand pitcher who had never amounted to much, anyway.

Since then Pennock has won about 150 ball games for the Yankees and he is still on the active list, though no longer a regular first string man, years after Skinner, McMillan and Murray were last heard of.

Being serious and trustworthy, Pennock enjoyed the privilege of traveling ahead of the ball club if he was due to pitch the opening game of the series in the next town so that he could enjoy a day's rest from the train ride. His only troubles with the management have related to problems of salary and he has held out a couple of times for his price which, at the top, was about $23,000 a year.

Everybody who has heard of George Washington will also have heard of Pennock's off-season business of raising silver foxes or foxen or fix or whatever the plural may be for the hide market and also about his winter habit of bouncing over the privet and holly hedges and stone fences in the suburbs of Philadelphia on the ridgepole of a dashing charge, yelling "tantivy" and "yoicks" and similar foolish remarks as a member of a stylish hunt club.

POLITICS RULES GRAIN MARKETS UNTIL ELECTION

World Supply Holds Up Buying.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Politics promises to displace the stock market as the main factor in causing sharp bulges and breaks in grain prices from now until the end of the presidential campaign. Rumblings of favorable political developments have been heard in grain circles of late, and have been a factor in inducing buying. However, they have not as yet been followed by actual happenings.

Wheat traders generally can see nothing in the supply and demand situation in the world at the present time to encourage taking the buying side. Practically every government is now embroiled in a battle with supply and demand to such an extent that the world's trade has been upset, and some trade leaders claim that a set opinion on the market is worthless.

The low level of prices—materially below the cost of production—in the leading exporting countries tends to encourage buying on the breaks in wheat on the belief that changes in economic conditions will have to be for the better. On the other hand, there is the fact the world's carryover at the end of the 1931-'32 season was 664,000,000 bu, or within 100,000,000 bu of normal world's import requirements.

Wheat a World's Problem.

For six consecutive years the world's carryover has been increasing, and whereas a supply in all countries before the war of over 300,000,000 bu was regarded as excessive, the latter is now less than half of the amount held in the United States, Argentine, Canada, Australia, England, afloat on ocean passage and held at the leading European ports.

Wheat traders who have lived through previous business depressions and have seen the agricultural commodity markets right themselves quickly, claim there has never been a situation such as exists at the present time, and blame politicians in all countries for the economic muddle.

The foreign idea of the situation is graphically set forth by Agricultural Attaché Steere at Berlin, representing the United States department of agriculture in Europe. He points out in his summary of conditions that, notwithstanding the small wheat crop in the United States and Russia this season attention continues to be focussed upon the relatively large stocks of old wheat still available in North America. Europe's requirements will be largely covered from its own supplies for months to come, according to views expressed to him abroad, and there will be no difficulty in covering import needs later on.

More favorable economic reports from the United States have not materially influenced trade opinion, states Mr. Steere, as they consider more substantial evidence for a turn necessary before a change in buying policy is warranted. Even when such a turn comes, however, it is believed that currency and general trade restrictions will undoubtedly hamper its free development.

Bulls Have Two Hopes.

Those who are bullish on wheat see in two prospective developments hopes of a higher market. The first is the possibility of tremendous damage to the new Argentine crop. According to cables from the latter country conditions in the northern zone so far have been very similar to those which prevailed in the American winter wheat area the past summer, and resulted in a drop in the total crop to 442,000,000 bu, compared with 789,000,000 bu in 1931. The other hope is that the contemplated sale of 25,000,000 bu or more wheat to China on credit will be consummated.

It is pointed out that if the Chinese business finally materialized, regardless of whether the sale be on credit or an actual gift, it will practically eliminate the federal farm board as a market factor, and thereby remove one of the most potent factors in disturbing the world's situation. In the 1931-'32 season China and Japan bought 88,000,000 bu wheat in the world's market. The sale of American grain in consequence may be regarded as simply displacing an equal quantity, which would, under normal conditions, have been shared by Canada and Australia.

Wheat fluctuated erratically the last week within a range of 3½@4c, with the close on Saturday showing net gains of 1½@2c, as compared with the previous week. September closed the week at 51⅞c, December at 54½@54⅝c, and May at 59⅞@60c. Range of prices follows:

	Sept., old.	December.	May.

Country Sells Cash Corn.

Export demand for American corn has failed to materialize in the volume expected by many traders, despite the fact Chicago December is quoted around 5c per bu under the same delivery in Buenos Aires.

Farmers appear to be highly impressed with the favorable outlook for the new corn crop and are estimated to have sold close to 1,750,000 bu old grain to arrive during the last week. The hedging sales against this corn had some effect as futures closed Saturday ⅛c higher to ⅝c lower as compared with the previous week.

As corn is largely a domestic proposition, and export business has little lasting effect, it is expected that any improvement in the economic situation will be quickly reflected in the market. September closed Saturday at 27⅝c, December at 29@29⅛c, and May at 34⅞@34½c.

Work on Plan for American Natural Gas

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 25.—With legal details pertaining to the sale of remaining assets of the American Natural Gas corporation completed, plans are nearly ready for the reconstitution of the properties formerly owned by this concern under a new company to be incorporated for the purpose in which certain security holders of the liquidated company will share.

The former American Natural Gas properties, which were previously a unit in the defunct Tri-Utilities corporation, will be the second major system in that group to achieve complete independence and reconstruction as a going concern. The Oklahoma Natural Gas corporation, which escaped receivership in the Tri-Utilities collapse, will be vested in the new proposed company, as will American Natural Gas assets recently sold at auction, which were acquired in coöperation with the debenture holders' committee.

Eberstadt Heads Committee.

Ferdinand Eberstadt heads this committee, which also includes Robert P. Brewer, R. V. Mitchell, E. G. Parsley and Paul D. Weathers. The committee is reported to have participated actively in the reconstruction plan for the properties.

The Federal Water Service corporation was the first former Tri-Utilities unit to become an independent group. At the same time, the Southern Natural Gas corporation was separated from Tri-Utilities and now is closely affiliated with Federal Water Service, which had a large interest in the property before the Tri-Utilities receivership.

In addition to American Natural Gas and Federal Water Service, the Peoples Light and Power corporation was the third principal unit in the Tri-Utilities system. After the sale at auction of one of the chief Peoples Light and Power properties, efforts were begun to reorganize the group, but no reconstruction plan is ready as yet.

Pays Out $400 Cash.

The remaining unit of Tri-Utilities, the Power, Gas and Water Securities corporation, recently paid out $400 in cash for each $1,000 principal amount of its collateral trust 5 per cent gold bonds and issued two shares of capital stock in a new corporation, which owns formerly pledged securities of the company, for each $1,000 principal amount of the bonds. With this retirement of debt, the investment unit will continue to operate as an independent company.

The final step affecting the Tri-Utilities corporation itself is expected to be the distribution of whatever proceeds of its liquidation are available after settlement of receivership expenses, counsel fees, etc. For this reason it is considered unlikely that any of the properties formerly in this group ever again will come under common ownership.

RAIL ASSOCIATION FINDS TRAFFIC IS IMPROVING

Assuming that rail travel is a barometer, general business conditions are undoubtedly improving, according to a report issued by the American Railway association which begins an annual meeting in the Stevens hotel today.

"Passenger traffic reached a low point in July, but preliminary returns from August business show a better situation," the report stated.

There is a close analogy between the traffic and employment conditions in general, according to the statistical department of the association. In 1931 riding was off 9.7 per cent, which figure is similar to that generally agreed upon as representing the general slump in employment.

"In February of this year, when many authorities said that the depression was turning the corner, traffic gained more than 2 per cent. Another slight decrease was noted in March and it continued until the brighter days of August. This rise is coincident with the stock market rise."

The problem of retaining passenger business with a return to "good times" and the resultant purchase of more automobiles, is one question which will be taken up at the meeting planned this year to be devoted largely to business with no extensive speaking or entertainment program.

Demand Equitable Freight Rates for Sugar Beets

Denver, Colo., Sept. 25.—(AP)—A demand for equitable freight rates for Rocky mountain sugar beet areas as compared with Atlantic seaboard and gulf ports will be made before the interstate commerce commission at Washington next Tuesday by Edward E. Wheeler, member of the state public utilities commission. Wheeler's plea will have particular reference to the Chicago market.

ANNOUNCE PLAN FOR FINANCING 4 BOND ISSUES

Greenebaum Firm to Be Manager.

BY AL CHASE.

Reorganization plans on four defaulted first mortgage bond issues underwritten by the Greenebaum Sons Investment company, all of them designed to avoid receivership, were announced yesterday by Edgar N. Greenebaum, vice president of that concern. The quartet of issues totaled $2,880,000 originally. They have since been reduced to $2,761,500. All of the reorganizations contemplate the exchange of the present bonds by the bondholders for income bonds.

The four properties are the Milwaukee-Diversey building, at the southeast corner of Milwaukee and Diversey avenues; the Clark-Arlington building, at 2433 North Clark street; the Speed office building, Louisville, Ky., and the Jewelers Exchange office building, in Los Angeles, Calif.

The Milwaukee-Diversey $600,000 bond issue, since reduced to $585,000, is secured by a four story fireproof building containing six stores and ninety-six small apartments, operated as a hotel. The 1931 income, according to Mr. Greenebaum, was $39,578, whereas principal and interest requirements were $52,562. The income for the first six months of 1932 was $7,997, with interest charges alone of $17,781.

Bonds to Be Exchanged.

The reorganization plan provides for exchange of bonds par for par; the new securities to be income bonds with interest at a rate not in excess of 6 per cent for any one year, provided, however, that only two-thirds of such net income in each year shall be used to pay interest on the bonds and the balance shall be used each year to retire new bonds.

The capital stock of the corporation owning the property will be pledged as additional security for the bonds until all of the new bonds and interest have been paid in full.

The Clark-Arlington building original issue was $280,000, also at 6½ per cent, since reduced to $264,500. This is a 300 car garage. For 1931 the net income was $22,064, while principal and interest called for $24,906. The income for the first six months of 1932 has dropped to only $2,540.

Property to Be Leased.

The reorganization plan provides for the owners of the equity deeding the property clear of all encumbrances and liens to the bondholders. This requires the cancellation of subordinated indebtedness totaling $83,000 now owned or controlled by the present owners.

When the plan is consummated it is stated that the property is to be leased to the Lakeview Garage corporation for ten years for a rental said to be sufficient to pay the bondholders 3% per annum on their bonds. Inasmuch as the lessee also pays the taxes, this requires a rental of approximately $15,000 a year. The lease also provides that in addition the lessee will pay 10% of the gross sales and gross income in excess of $75,000.

The Speed building bond issue originally was $1,500,000 at 6 per cent, since paid down to $1,451,000. The Jewelers' Exchange building in Los Angeles had a bond issue of $500,000 at 6¼ per cent, reduced to $461,000 at the time of default. In all four of the properties the Greenebaum Sons Investment company is the reorganization manager. The Central Republic Bank and Trust company is depositary for the two Chicago issues.

CHAIN SYSTEMS EXPAND SALES OF OWN BRANDS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—(AP)—An "enormous increase" in the dollar volume of goods sold by chain stores under their private brands from 1925 to 1930 was reported today by the federal trade commission. The commission said 276 chain store systems reporting private brand sales sold more than $750,000,000 worth of merchandise under their private labels in 1930.

The report, constituting one phase of the commission's investigation on chain stores, will be transmitted to the senate tomorrow. The inquiry is being made at the senate's direction.

The commission said that "although the mark up or gross profit on chain store private brands was equal to or higher than that on competing standard brands, according to a majority of the reporting chains, the retail prices of private brands generally were the same or lower than those of competing standard brands.

"Only three chains definitely favored curtailing private brands," the commission reported, "while 21 companies were inclined to favor their expansion, and 27 expected the ratio between the private and standard brands to remain the same."

Bankers Cheered by Report Mexico Plans Gold Return

New York, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Bankers here regarded reports from Mexico that the nation was working on plans to return to the gold standard as another indication of world-wide financial improvement. Mexico's return to the gold standard, they said, would improve trade and place the American continent as the only one capable of keeping all national currencies on a firm basis.

12 YEARS OF EFFORT TOWARD RAIL UNITY NEARS COMPLETION

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Twelve years of effort looking to efficiency in railroad operation through uniting the smaller and weaker lines with the larger today appeared close to realization, with four big carriers preparing petitions for approval of consolidation into four great eastern systems.

That the interstate commerce commission will approve the plans agreed upon in New York last week by the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel Plate and the Baltimore and Ohio was said in official circles today to be virtually certain. The commission already has given its approval to a lineup suggested last spring by the four systems, making only minor changes.

This plan did not altogether meet the approval of the railroad chiefs. The fifth eastern system—the Wabash-Seaboard—was declared by railroad executives to be unfeasible.

The matter of consolidation has been under discussion ever since the roads went back to private operation after the war. On Dec. 30, 1930, President Hoover announced at the White House that at his suggestion chiefs of the great eastern roads had agreed to a consolidation plan.

MOSCOW HAILS OIL PURCHASE BY JAPANESE

MOSCOW, Sept. 25.—(AP)—A large slice of the refined oil market in Japan, which heretofore has been shared almost wholly by American Standard and British Shell interests, has been captured by soviet Russia, and important inferences were officially drawn from this development today. One was that the deal for "more than 200,000 tons of refined oil will have an important economic effect on the development of Russo-Japanese relations."

The announcement yesterday that a contract had been signed between the soviet union oil export department and Kojiro Matsukato of the Japanese private oil importing company of that name was supplemented in the press today. Newspapers hailed the deal as the first big sale of soviet refined oil on the Japanese market, although crude petroleum had been sold there for some time.

It is now revealed that the contract covers the five year periods beginning in 1933, but the price involved in the transaction was not given.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Sept. 25.—Tokio traders remain skeptical regarding the practical effect of the contract entered into by Kojiro Matsukato with the soviets. The sale of gasoline here is in the hands of six Japanese and foreign companies, whose systems of distribution are highly organized. To compete effectively any new company will have to create a sales organization on a national scale, and it is not believed Mr. Matsukato commands the necessary resources.

FURNITURE AND AUTO SALES GAIN, BANK REPORTS

Automobile sales in the middle west showed an improvement for August over July, although still behind August, 1931, according to a report on business conditions issued yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. Furniture orders likewise expanded in August, the report stated.

Wholesale sales of automobiles for August increased 10 per cent in number in comparison with July and 6 per cent in value, while retail sales were 1½ per cent smaller in number but 5 per cent higher in value. Used car sales for August, while slightly under July, were but 7 per cent behind August 1931. Stocks of new cars in dealers' hands on Aug. 31 were but half those of a year ago and used car stocks were substantially lower.

Furniture orders were 10 per cent ahead of July whereas commonly there is a falling off of new orders from 15 to 25 per cent in August as compared with July. Shipments gained 36 per cent over the previous month.

REPORTS CREDIT AID TO BUSINESS WELL HANDLED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 25.—Most concerns requiring banking accommodations have been taken care of to their satisfaction by their banks, according to preliminary findings of a survey of the bank credit situation made by the national industrial conference board. The survey shows that of the concerns reporting, 37 per cent had no need for bank credit, while 81 per cent of those needing banking assistance reported no credit difficulty.

The analysis of the reports, according to the conference board, shows that small concerns have had most difficulty in obtaining credit. It was found that 76 per cent of those reporting credit difficulties were establishments having less than 250 employés, although of the total reports received from those regularly relying on banks for working capital only 47 per cent fell in this category.

Begun Two Months Ago.

The survey was begun about two months ago to ascertain the commercial bank credit situation in the principal commercial and industrial centers of the country. About 6,000 questionnaires were sent in July to manufacturers and business concerns of all sizes. About 3,000 replies were received, of which about 1,700 have been tabulated and analyzed.

"While the facts thus far developed do not furnish a complete answer to the questions involved in the inquiry," the conference board says, "they do afford a basis for certain conclusions. When efforts are being made to break the vicious circle of credit liquidation some facts are better than none.

What Report Shows.

"The fact that so large a proportion of the concerns that replied reported no credit experience reflects in the first place how deeply imbedded the ideal of independence from banking obligations, so conspicuous in postwar times, has become in the financial policy of American business corporations. In the second place, it reflects the overhanging effects of the sustained prosperity of the postwar period from 1922 to 1929, during which huge corporate surpluses were accumulated, a substantial part of which was regularly maintained in highly liquid investments.

"In the third place, it reflects the consequences of the security and money market inflation recurring more or less continuously from 1922 to 1929, which enabled business concerns to finance themselves readily by means of bond and stock issues, notably the latter, from 1927 to 1929, and thus to obtain abundant working capital funds without recourse to bank credit."

TELLS POTENTIAL ILLINOIS MARKET IN PORTO RICO

Rafael Rios, chief of the Porto Rican bureau of commerce and special commissioner for Porto Rico to the Century of Progress Exposition, has furnished the Illinois Manufacturers' association with a list of articles which Porto Rico might take from Illinois and other middle western states. It includes meat products, leather and manufactures of leather, grain and preparations of grain, oatmeal and rolled oats, biscuits and crackers, confectionery, corn products, men's and women's clothing, iron and steel manufactures, electrical machinery and apparatus, toys, athletic and sporting goods.

The total imports of Porto Rico from the United States in 1931 amounted to over $63,000,000. Shipments from Porto Rico to the United States amounted to nearly $95,000,000, of which $54,500,000 consisted of cane sugar.

Mr. Rios has expressed himself as much impressed with the possibilities of an exchange of products between Porto Rico and Illinois, particularly in view of the fact that Porto Rico will have an extensive exhibition of all its products at the World's Fair.

GOTHAM BANK FINDS BONUS DEMANDS SLOW BUSINESS RECOVERY

New York, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The "persistent demand" for further veterans' bonus legislation, says the Guaranty Trust company in its monthly survey of business conditions, "is unquestionably hampering business recovery, particularly in view of the continuing deficit indicated by the treasury statements for the first two months of the fiscal year."

"With a certainty that requirements for unemployment relief will be very heavy throughout the winter and with a distinct possibility that the coming session of congress may be obliged to resort to further tax increases in order to balance the federal budget, the continued agitation for immediate cash payment of the bonus is far from favorable in its effects on business confidence in so far as the latter is related to the outlook for government finances."

The survey notes some "tangible improvement" in business indices, adding:

"Thus far the most that can be said is that business activity seems to be responding to the seasonal influences making for expansion. To conclude that this response marks definite progress toward recovery would be premature, although the present trend certainly contrasts very favorably with the almost complete absence of seasonal revival at the beginning of the autumn season a year ago and two years ago."

Atlas Seeks Tight Hold on Subsidiaries

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 25.—In a step toward complete ownership of three of its subsidiaries, the Atlas corporation has renewed offers made to stockholders of the Ungerleider Financial corporation, Securities Allied corporation, and Federated Capital corporation on June 4, and has extended these offers to permit those who wish to obtain an income bearing security to accept Atlas preference instead of its common stock in exchange.

Renew Recommendations.

At the same time, A. G. Becker & Co. of Chicago and the Manufacturers Trust company have renewed their recommendation to holders of three and five year notes of the Pick Barth holding company to exchange these notes under a current offer by Atlas. The new letter includes a statement of condition of Atlas as of Aug. 31.

Except for the alternative of exchange for Atlas preference instead of common stock, the new offers are identical with the first. They will expire at the close of business Oct. 10 unless terminated sooner by Atlas. The company says it owns more than 75 per cent of Federated Capital preferred, more than 76 per cent of Securities Allied capital stock and more than 91 per cent of Ungerleider Financial capital stock. The new offer is in the nature of a "mop up" of minority interests in these companies.

Aug. 31 Statement.

The Aug. 31 statement of Atlas shows that net assets have increased since April 30 from $53,346,232 to $58,345,627. One of the principal changes in the portfolio was a heavy reduction in government bond holdings from $8,110,756 to $1,207,156. Cash increased from $12,082,922 to $20,411,459.

Investments in marketable securities at market prices increased from $23,598,185 to $27,369,145. The total amount applicable to capital stocks of the combined companies outstanding in the hands of the public increased from $48,010,003 to $54,572,825. The company has decreased its holdings of America, British and Continental 5 per cent debentures from $3,741,000 to $2,864,000.

Only 2½ Pct. of French Bondholders Ask for Cash

PARIS, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Louis Germain-Martin, finance minister, today announced only 2½ per cent, about 2,000,000,000 francs, or $80,000,000, of the 85,000,000,000 franc bond conversion had been paid in cash. [A total of $3,400,000,000 was involved.] The finance minister said one reason given by those bondholders demanding cash was the "fear of an imminent war."

The plan was to convert $3,400,000,000 in bonds from a high interest bearing series of issues to other bearing reduced interest, and has been hailed as a great success.

WALL ST. PUTS ON MOST LIVELY RALLY IN WEEKS

Hopes Highest Since Crash of 1929.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 25.—Wall street turned the corner of the third anniversary of the beginning of the world-wide business slump last week with the most brilliant stock market recovery of the current bull movement. As a result the new week finds share prices a good 100 per cent above their July lows and popular hope at about the highest point it has attained since the big crash back in the fall of 1929.

The recovery is beginning to look like the "real thing" to a widening circle of erstwhile skeptics. For one thing, this year's depression anniversary—the street dates the start of it all back to Sept. 19, 1929, when averages reached their all time highs—is the first of the cycle that has not found the market, along with other security marts, undergoing a process of "shakeout." The last two weeks of September in 1929, 1930, and 1931 were all marked by wholesale selling movements which bore stocks headlong to lower and yet lower levels. Each of the declines, as a matter of course, had its deleterious effect on business activity and sentiment just at a period of the year when precedent normally demanded at least a seasonal pickup in buying activity.

Growing Retail Sales.

This year on the brighter other hand the picture presents the spectacle of growing retail sales throughout the country, constantly improving carloadings figures, improved electric power consumption, higher commodity prices, and a better feeling in industrial circles generally.

True, the improvement in some directions is not measuring up to the exorbitant claims so lately ballyhooed in its behalf. The steel industry, for example, is still lingering around 15 per cent of capacity in spite of a good deal of parading of expectations, and the latest power output figures fail to carry out the promise held out by last week's excellent showing. But the financial community, having struggled out of the throes of black despair which held it so recently, views even a seasonal gain as cause for high optimism and invests its surviving funds accordingly.

One of the most encouraging phases of the situation, as the average trader views it, is the stubborness with which the market resists every attempt to beat it down and the readiness with which it recovers after each

A Mortgage Mixup.

TO THE EDITOR: In 1928 I bought a first mortgage from a real estate man of very good reputation in his neighborhood. A bank issued the mortgage and an organization controlled by the same bank held the second mortgage on the property. I have always cashed the interest coupons at the real estate man's office. In May this year the real estate man could not cash the interest note, informing me the second mortgage holders had foreclosed on the property two years ago and now have no money to pay me the interest. In the meantime, the bank failed. I have an owner's policy, but apparently subject to the first mortgage which I hold. This mortgage expires next May.

I understand the real estate man did not collect the last two notes he paid me from the people who foreclosed. As it appears, in case I would want to release the first mortgage, I am shy the two coupons. Can the real estate man legally put these two interest notes against me or the property? Why didn't he collect them from the second mortgage people who collected rent from the bungalow? The original cost was $5,700 and I already have put over $5,000 into the bungalow; so I never can realize on my investment—savings of fifteen years. V. Z.

ANSWER: Your statement regarding "owner's policy" is not clear. Did you buy the title or is it a mortgage policy? The foreclosure of a second mortgage would be subject to the lien on the first mortgage and would not affect its validity or priority. A mortgagee should always insist upon cancelling the notes, marking them "paid" when he receives them. Otherwise, there is a possibility that the man from whom he receives the money is purchasing the coupons, and in that case it is a legal question whether the notes have been subordinated or on a parity with the rest of the mortgage.

Inasmuch as the mortgagee gives up his interest coupons when they are paid, and eventually, when everything is paid, delivers his principal note, there is no reason why he cannot issue a release. The trustee in the mortgage at the time of issuing release should insist upon all interest and principal notes being exhibited and marked "paid." Remember, your first mortgage continues to be a first mortgage until paid and a release is issued. We suggest you find out whether or not the taxes and special assessments are paid to date. We suggest you consult a lawyer.

LETTERS

Grabbing at Straws.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—I state bluntly that publicists in general and business and political leaders in particular have become exceedingly proficient in grabbing at straws and masking their desperation with the artificial optimism that results from continual injections of pap and bunk that lacks even the most visionary insinuations of practicality and probability, if I may use the last. In other words this widespread and frantic effort to hypodermic the public into a delusion that we have reached a prosperity corner has not a leg to stand on.

First, the condition out of which this so-called depression developed are not changed one whit for the better. In fact the factors on which we depend for employment and sustenance are in greater distress than at any time previous. I refer to agriculture, which is admitted to be the pivotal industry round which all economic processes and services revolve.

Hogs are still paying their railroad fare to the stockyards and the live stock brokers' commission, but not enough is left to permit the hog raiser to hire any factory hands to make the clothing, tools and tires he needs. The beef cattle industry is in a slightly better position, for the feeder and finisher, not for the producer of range or feeder cattle.

Cotton prices almost approximate production cost and there is a faint hope southern planters will be able to pay their fertilizer bills. But the two million families who produce the nation's cotton supply will still be absent from the merchants' counters. West Texas will, if the weather does not ruin too much of the crop, make a cent or two a pound at 7 to 8 cents.

The fruit and vegetable list is a statement of agricultural bankruptcy. For the last two years 90 per cent of the produce entering the terminal markets has barely paid packing, transportation and handling expense. This great industry is and has been in the red and those producers of these items who formerly placed billions of dollars in circulation are out of the markets. Florida, California and Texas growers are ruined.

Despite the ballyhoo about improvement of butter and egg prices, these important items are still costing the farmers more than the selling price and are furnishing no impulse to industry.

To sum it up the 2 per cent increase in commodity prices is infinitesimal in comparison with the needed improvement that must occur if the 60,000,000 rural people are to have sufficient buying power to return the 10,000,000, more or less, unemployed to work. Nothing less than the 1926 level of farm product prices will suffice. The great question before the American people is how shall we compel business to so adequately finance farm product distribution that sufficient money will be placed in circulation to run the industrial machine.

N. A. CROMWELL.

Business Is Good.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Our business for September shows an increase of 33 1-3 per cent over the average of past months this year; 10 per cent better than last September and 7 per cent better than the average of 1931. I am vice president and a director of The Crystal Tissue company of Middletown, O., as well as their Chicago manager, and their business shows a wonderful increase, and the number of orders and volume of tonnage from all over the country indicates it is not a local condition of improvement. All prices in our lines are on the upward trend.

If people would pay their taxes and the local governments would pay their bills and salaries, Chicago would be in the midst of a boom, with no necessity of raising emergency relief funds.

WALL ST. PUTS ON MOST LIVELY RALLY IN WEEKS

Hopes Are Now Highest Since Big Crash in 1929.

of the temporary setbacks that inevitably attend an upward movement of the present scope. The reaction which followed the Maine election was the worst upset so far experienced, but a good 40 per cent of this ground was recovered last week—most of it in a single session, i. e., that of Wednesday. Some improvement has been registered in subsequent dealings.

Average Still Down.

In spite of the progress, however, quotations are still substantially lower than they were at this time last year. The average price of 100 standard stocks at the close of business last Friday was $33.16. On Sept. 19 of last year, the average for the same stocks was $45.02. On the corresponding date of 1929—to show just how far the decline had gone—the average was $144.51 a share. The 1930 average was $89.54.

Incidentally nearly half—forty-six to be exact—of the 100 stocks figuring in these averages have suspended dividend payments since 1929, and the yield of the remaining fifty-four on the basis of last Friday's closing figures, only slightly changed by yesterday's dealings, has fallen to 6.66 per cent. For a further comparison the total value of the 1,300 and odd stocks listed on the big board fell from $89,668,276,854 on Sept. 19, 1929, to $27,782,501,806 on the corresponding date of this year. The compilation on Sept. 1, last year, was $44,587,026,110, leaving some $17,000,000,000 yet to be added by the recovery to bring levels up to those of early last fall.

Expect Sluggish Trade.

In view of the comparative laggardness of the expected autumn business upturn, most commentators are now predicting a more or less extended period of narrow price movements and sluggish trading unless some unforeseen stimulant or deterrent should be provided by news developments. The best that many conservative experts are hoping for on the basis of current conditions is an approximation of the high of Sept. 8.

There are a number of favorable developments on the calendar for the next two weeks, including an expected further increase in unfilled U. S. steel tonnage figures, a good report on General Motors sales—due around Oct. 8—and prospects of some further good news affecting the railroads. But third quarter corporation earnings reports are coming along shortly and no one doubts that they are going to make rather sorry reading on the whole. The hope is that the market, having grown used to such "bad news," will ignore it this time.

Bankers Life Insurance.

I am considering taking out endowment insurance with Bankers Life Insurance company. Does it have a good record? Thank you very much for this information.—E. C.

Bankers Life Insurance company of Nebraska [Lincoln, Neb.] was incorporated in 1887. Growth has been fairly rapid. Insurance in force at the close of 1931 was $146,040,000, against $124,928,000 on Dec. 31, 1927, and $33,022,000 on Dec. 31, 1912.

Policyholders' surplus is ample and the reserve basis is strong. Expenses are low and the mortality rate is favorable.

Income in 1931 was $6,193,000 and disbursements, including $942,000 dividends to policyholders, were $4,498,000.

Total admitted assets at the close of 1931 were $41,280,000. Invested assets were $39,798,000. The company had $1,473,000 invested in real estate [2.70 per cent of invested assets], $27,453,000 [68.98 per cent] in mortgage loans, $9,230,000 [23.19 per cent] in policy loans, and $1,642,000 [4.13 per cent] in bonds. Bonds were carried at Dec. 31, 1931, market price.

The company's mortgages are on farms, distributed as follows: Nebraska, $14,462,000; Kansas, $5,926,000; Iowa, $3,363,000 and Missouri, $3,702,000.

Of total bonds owned, government issues total $151,000; state, etc., issues, $1,168,000; railroad, $59,000; public utilities, $175,000, and miscellaneous, $88,000.

The company's reputation is excellent.

A. E. Staley Manufacturing.

Kindly give me data on Staley company. I might be interested in their 6s, due 1942, on a favorable report. What denominations do these bonds come in?—D. G. W.

A. E. Staley Manufacturing company was established in 1897. It manufactures and distributes corn products.

Profits in the past have shown wide variations, fluctuating with the price of corn. Gross revenues for 1931 were $3,527,000, against $3,154,00 in 1930, $4,897,000 in 1929 and $3,002,000 in 1928.

Only 57 per cent of charges was earned in 1931. In 1930 charges were earned 2.43 times, against 6.72 times in 1929 and 2.40 times in 1928.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $4,151,000 and current liabilities were $348,000. Cash alone was $1,265,000. Working capital was $3,803,000, against $4,456,000 the year before.

Funded debt consisted of $4,800,000 first 6s, due 1942. They are secured by a first mortgage on all assets of the company. They come in denominations of $500 and $1,000.

The bonds are somewhat speculative.

ABSOLUTELY

You Must Have the Proof.

First of all, what you want to know is—How much can I make? This, of course, is imperative, and the only way we can answer is, come in and find out about a plan that has made money for hundreds of others. A plan the average man can really succeed at—a plan that appeals not only to the salesman but to the businessman—a plan that has started many a man towards real success in life.

YOU WRITE YOUR OWN PAY CHECK.

For several years men have made big pay checks with our company. For instance, this year Jack Farrar made $1,526 in a single month. Harris made $1,500; Baker, $1,586; Strahan, $1,401; Fitzgerald, $1,713. These, understand, are monthly earnings and made during 1932 when most people think it can't be done. Wednesday of last week DEAN EARNED OVER $60 ONE DAY.

SUCCESS IN ACTION

is first success in thought. You can and will succeed with us if you are an average man, have average ability and are willing to work eight hours a day. So wake up to real possibilities and investigate a real proposition for real men.

NO DISCRIMINATION.

Men in all walks of life are succeeding with us. The kind of work you have done in the past makes no difference. You owe it to yourself and family to look into our plan and a short interview will certainly convince you beyond a doubt that here you will find real joy and happiness, which results from real earnings.

STOP WORRYING.

Make today a new start. Forget the past; look forward, not backward. Spend the time necessary to find out about our business and call at our office Monday and let us explain exactly how you can get started. Apply Employment Manager, Suite 1030, 75 E. Wacker-dr. Remember the times—11 o'clock and 3 o'clock today.

A FEW MEN

with direct sales experience are required for our sales extension program; business is better; our sales plan is especially designed for present conditions, and those accepted can earn a good living right now. You are paid at once on DRAWING ACCOUNT AND COMMISSION Call personally from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. STOCK & BOND CO. OF AMERICA, 834 W. 63d-st., or 3320 Lincoln-av.

A NEW INVENTION.

FREE INSTRUCTION. IMMEDIATE STEADILY INCREASING EARNINGS THROUGH REPRESENTING THE WORLD'S FOREMOST SERVICE IN ITS FIELD.

Our extraordinary product has grown steadily in sales since its introduction in 1924. 1932 is so far our biggest year, and our men are making more money than ever before. They are real business men without investment in merchandise or overhead expenses, and usually without experience. For example, Frank Briggs, former potato farmer, made $1,092.36 his first 6 months with us; $6,491.73 last year—has money in bank, paid cash for car and home. A. Orvis, former aviation instructor, made $79.00 his first month with us. $509.00 his second month. $667.65 third month, and $7,641.89 during next 12 months; a former chauffeur, who has been earning $150.00 to $200.00 every week, told us: "Electrolux has paid for my car—Electrolux paid for furnishing my home—Electrolux will buy my wife a trip to Europe."

Six great factories manufacture this remarkable new mechanical specialty (not refrigeration) in America and Europe—with this invention easily leading in sales and commanding public interest that is world-wide. It has attracted the highest type of energetic, ambitious, dependable, adaptable men with character, determination, courtesy, and given them permanent, unlimited opportunity to advance themselves. No deposit required—but full days and hours and earnest work demanded. Must have good references and live in North Side. For interview call Monday morning, 9 to 12, at 215 McGraham Bldg., 1063 Wilson-av.
